LAW TO SHATTER CONVICTED TRUSTS

Justice Department Prepares for the Guidance of Trade Wrested from the Guilty Corporations.

SEEKS TO GRIP STANDARD

Federal Receiver to Be Asked from Courts for Powder and Tobacco Combines to Shear Subsidiary Powers.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., July 8.—[Special.]—The department of justice has a new rod in pickle for the trusts.

Hereafter mere injunction to restrain illegal combinations from doing business will not be enough for the government. Wherever conditions permit, it is proposed to request the court to appoint a receiver to operate the business of a convicted corporation, squeeze out the water, and sell plants so as to revive competition. By this method the interest of the public which needs the products of these plants will be safeguarded and the interests of all stockholders will be protected by distribution among them of the proceeds of the sale.

As devised by Attorney General Bonaparte and Assistant Attorney General Purdy, the program of the department hereafter will be to petition the courts to act along one or more of the following lines:

That an injunction be issued for the dissolution of an illegal combination.

That contracts or agreements in restraint of trade be abrogated.

That receivers be appointed to sell plants of combination found guilty of violation of the anti-trust law.

That criminal sentence be imposed as provided by anti-trust law.

That conspiracies in restraint of trade shall be punished in accordance with the conspiracy statute as well as the anti-trust law.

Strikes at Two Combines.

The department proposes to ask for the appointment of a receiver in bills it is preparing against the powder trust and tobacco trust.

These combinations are peculiarly liable to such action in the judgment of Mr. Bonaparte and Mr. Purdy. The powder trust, for instance, is made up of the Du Pont International Smokeless Powder company, which is the holding company and owns a majority of stock in five large concerns which in turn have bought up the plants of more than a hundred independent factories.

If the government were to merely ask for an injunction against the Du Pont International Smokeless Powder company, the business would remain in the hands of the five subsidiary companies and there could not be developed competition. Much the same situation exists with respect to the tobacco trust.

After careful deliberation the attorney general and Mr. Purdy have come to the conclusion that in order to get results which the country desires it is necessary to adopt a new method. The anti-trust law confers upon courts the authority "to restrain and prevent" violations of the act, and according to the view of officials of the department it is within the power of the judiciary to appoint receivers or do anything else justified by legal procedure to prevent illegal combinations from carrying on business after an injunction has been issued against them.

Standard Not Within Reach.

The Standard Oil company has not reached the stage of legal development which the powder and tobacco trusts have attained, and probably it cannot be gripped by the receiver method. But in this case the department has asked for the dissolution of the trust and the court will be expected to take action to bring this about.

There is no doubt the trusts will fight bitterly this new plan of the department, and the matter will be appealed to the Supreme court, where final decision as to its legality can be obtained. The department will welcome the presentation of the question to the Supreme court, feeling that an early decision is desirable because of the effect it will have upon future prosecutions. With the prospect of a receiver hanging over them few combinations, in the opinion of the department, will be formed to glaringly violate the law as in the past.

Success of the government in its criminal prosecution of the turpentine trust encouraged it to institute criminal proceedings against the National Umbrella Frame company, which constitutes an umbrella trust. This course will be followed in other prosecutions. As to the Standard Oil, the department does not expect to institute criminal proceedings in view of the fact that officials of the company are to be called upon to give evidence in civil proceedings at St. Louis and also have been on the witness stand in Chicago.

Studies Harvester Company.

The attorney general is still studying the complaint against the International Harvester company to determine first whether the combination actually violates law, and secondly whether a receivership shall be asked for as in the cases of the powder and tobacco trusts. No decision in the International Harvester case will be reached until October.

As a result of a complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission today, it may be the department of justice will be asked to proceed against a number of railroads for violation of the anti-trust law. These roads are the Illinois Central, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, Chicago Great Western, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, Chicago and Northwestern, and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

The complaint is made by the Beatrice Creamery company of Lincoln, Neb., Blue Valley Creamery company of St. Louis, Mo., and the Blue Valley Creamery company of Sioux City, Ia. Competition with other creamery companies caused them to determine to locate butter factories in Chicago. In order to be able to do business at a profit, they induced the railroads two years ago to reduce the rate from outlying stations in the territories named to Chicago from 70 to 38 cents for each ten gallon can. The creamery companies spent in Chicago over $500,000 and obligated themselves for future expenditures, when they were advised by the railroads of the abrogation of the agreement.

A rate of 70 cents a can means 3 cents on every pound of butter, and it is insisted that at the present selling price of this product it is impossible to pay such a tariff and do business, save at a loss.

$1,235,400 FOR FORTS IN PACIFIC

War Department Will Rush Work on Coast and Harbor Defenses of Hawaii and the Philippines.

GUNS READY TO SHIP.

Ordnance Made for Atlantic Fortifications to Be Sent to Far East on Transport Crook.

Washington, D. C., July 8.—[Special.]—There is to be no delay on the part of the war department in utilizing the appropriations made at the last session of congress for fortifying the American dependencies in the Pacific ocean. In order that the keys to these possessions may be put in condition for defense as rapidly as possible, the department is arranging for the transportation of ordnance material purchased for American coasts to Hawaii and the Philippines, and will replace it at once with funds which became available on July 1.

The appropriations included $200,000 for the construction of sea coast batteries in the Hawaiian islands and $500,000 for the same purpose in the Philippines. For accessories $180,000 was granted and for the construction of mining casemates, etc., necessary for the operation of submarine mines, $200,000 was authorized. For the purchase of submarine mines and the necessary appliances to operate them an appropriation of $205,400 was made.

It is understood that orders have been issued to the transport Crook to make a special trip to Honolulu and Manila. The transport will carry mines for Pearl Harbor in Hawaii and Olongapo in Subig bay, the two points which would have to be defended in the event of a war.

Fleet in No Hurry.

Announcement was made at the navy department that the proposed voyage of the battleship fleet to the Pacific will in no way interfere with the plans already arranged for the summer maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet. The maneuvers will be completed some time in October. Then, following the usual custom, the fleet would move southward toward Guantanamo for drill operations and target practice, but instead of doing so this fall the battleships will go on their long cruise to the Pacific.

The proposition to send the fleet to the Pacific at an early date—that is, this summer—has not been considered and will not be considered unless there is danger of an immediate outbreak of hostilities on the part of Japan, which officials do not believe at all likely. Greater difficulty would be experienced in getting the big ships around to the Pacific now than five or six months later. The south Atlantic now is in midwinter, the weather is unfavorable, and much danger might be encountered. Whatever good effect may be had by sending the ships there, it is contended, will be produced by the mere announcement of the decision that they are to go later.

Of course, if there should be an outbreak on the part of Japan, the plan to delay the sending of these ships until next winter would be changed immediately. The impression, however, which officials seek to convey is that the fleet is not to be sent to the Pacific as a menace to Japan or because there is any danger of war, which is scouted, but to demonstrate our ability to make a dash around the Horn in the event of an emergency.

Jap Admiral Misquoted?

Naval officers are inclined to doubt the accuracy of the reported statement of Admiral Sakamoto in which he casts reflections upon the valor and patriotism of American sailors.

"You may say for me," said Rear Admiral Brownson, chief of the bureau of navigation, this morning, "that I do not believe Admiral Sakamoto has been correctly quoted. It is true that we have desertions from our ships in time of peace, but that is due to the fact that the men get homesick and weary of sea life, rather than to any lack of patriotism. But desertions in time of war are extremely rare. In fact, our experience has been that the very men who would desert in time of peace were among the first to try to get back into the service in time of war."

In expressing the conviction that Admiral Sakamoto had not uttered the contemptuous words attributed to him by the Tokio newspaper and cabled to this country, Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, called particular attention to the authority for the reported interview, the newspaper Hochi.

"The Hochi," he said, "has no standing that would lead one to give credence to such a statement. The admiral is a young man who has done fine service and has spent much time in Europe. You can be sure that he said nothing of the kind attributed to him. In Japan, as here, the officers of the navy are not permitted to comment upon matters in relation to other nations, but even if they were so privileged Admiral Sakamoto would have said no such foolish thing as that. It is too foolish."

Official Denial Expected.

Statements also were made at the Japanese embassy that the government at Tokio would not permit the Hochi story to pass unnoticed in spite of its questionable source, and that an official denial might confidently be expected. The embassy staff is angry over the matter and declares that it is merely a part of an attempt to bring about bad relations between Japan and this country. Officials of the embassy and the state department have not failed to note that most of the news cabled from Tokio to the American newspapers is credited to the Hochi, while statements printed by the reliable press of Japan seldom get to the United States. This condition is regarded as significant.

Japanese Are Misinformed.

There is evidently an impression in Japan that great excitement prevails in the United States over the prospect of trouble with that country. This impression arises from the sensational stories that are sent to Tokio newspapers by their correspondents on the Pacific coast. Every incident is exaggerated and the idea generated that outrages against the Japanese in America are frequent. Readers of the yellow press in Japan are given to understand that the United States, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, is wildly agitated.

To stop these publications in Japan is virtually impossible. "There is in Japan a free press, just as there is in this country," said Ambassador Aoki. "The government

SCHMITZ WILL RUN AGAIN

SAYS HE WAS "RAILROADED"

Declares His Trial Wasn't Fair—Sensational Scene in Court.

San Francisco, Cal., July 8.—Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, within five minutes after he had been sentenced to serve five years in state's prison for the crime of extortion, announced himself as a candidate for reelection, claiming he had been railroaded to prison.

The sentencing of the convicted mayor was in one respect without a parallel in the criminal annals of San Francisco. Half a dozen times Judge Dunne was interrupted by Schmitz, who protested in strong words against being "lectured."

As the last words of the sentence fell from the judge's lips the great crowd that had stood throughout the dramatic scene sent up a thunderous cheer. "Good for you!" shouted a man in the back of the room. His shout was echoed and reechoed by one after another of the spectators.

Schmitz Faces the Judge.

After refusing a motion for a new trial Judge Dunne turned to the prisoner and said:

"Eugene Schmitz, stand up."

The large, black bearded figure of the convicted mayor arose at the counsel table. His face was the color of ivory. His lips were pressed tightly together. He fixed his eyes on the judge, and never once did he drop them.

Judge Dunne returned the prisoner's gaze fixedly and proceeded:

"In pronouncing judgment in this case the court has but little comment to make. It can be said that the verdict of the jury in this case has a deeper significance than ordinarily attaches to the finding of guilt. It is a message to all the people in the city of San Francisco that law and order are supreme; that no man, however exalted his station or how strong and powerful the political, social, and financial influences which surround him, is above the law.

"Eugene E. Schmitz, you have heretofore occupied the highest office which the city of San Francisco can confer on one of its citizens. You were elevated to that position because of the confidence and trust reposed in you by the mass of the——".

Prisoner Rebukes Judge.

"I am here," interrupted Schmitz, in a voice, though quiet and controlled, that carried to the far corners of the room, "to receive sentence at your hands, and not to be humiliated by a lecture which the newspapers can repeat in print."

Beyond pausing, Judge Dunne paid no attention to the interruption. "You were elevated to that position, I say, because of the confidence and trust imposed in you——"

Attorney Metson interposed: "We are here to take sentence, not to be lectured. We——"

"Mr. Metson," said Judge Dunne, warmly, "if you interrupt these proceedings again I will send you to jail. You would be in far better business if you were here begging for a day in court to answer the charge that you willfully and improperly attempted to tamper with a juror in this case."

"I am ready," responded Metson, "to answer, now or any other time, any charge that may be lodged against me. I take exception to the remarks of the court addressed to the defendant and to the improper and uncalled for insinuation of the court against myself."

How He Betrayed His Trust.

To this Judge Dunne made no reply, but, turning to the mayor, he resumed:

"You were elected to a position because of the confidence and great trust reposed in you by the mass of the people. You have by your willful criminal act, so a jury of your fellow citizens has declared, broken that confidence and betrayed that trust."

Here Schmitz spoke up again, protesting against the "lecture."

Judge Dunne took no notice. "Therefore," he continued, "it may be said that the penalty which the law permits in this case is insufficient to meet the demands of justice. It may be suggested, however, that by your conviction you will lose the respect and esteem of all good citizens and men; that you will suffer the humiliation of knowing that your career of hypocrisy, duplicity, and dishonor——"

Goads Judge Into Retort.

"I stand here as an American citizen to demand my rights," interposed Schmitz. "I'm not asking any leniency at the hands of this court. I am prepared to receive sentence. I ask that your honor do your duty and pronounce it immediately and that I be not subjected to humiliation and degrading remarks which the papers are copying and will print. I say if your honor has any self-respect you will proceed with the sentence."

"It is not unusual," was Judge Dunne's stinging reply, "for courts to be brought into contact with such brazen acts of effrontery as yours in the present instance. It is the duty of the court in such cases to view the conduct of a convicted felon with patience and toleration, not to say pity. By your conviction you will lose the respect and esteem of all good men and citizens. You will suffer the humiliation of knowing, I say, that your career of hypocrisy, duplicity, and dishonor has been exposed and that you stand before those who believed in and honored you morally naked, shamed and disgraced."

"Railroaded," Cries Schmitz.

"I deny that," shouted Schmitz. "The people of San Francisco know how I was railroaded through."

Judge Dunne resumed:

"Morally naked, shamed, and disgraced. It is in the knowledge of these things rather than in any mere term of imprisonment in a state penitentiary that the full measure of your punishment will be found.

"It is the judgment of this court that you be confined in the state prison at San Quentin for a term of five years."

Immediately after resuming his seat at the counsel table Schmitz dictated the following statement to the press:

"I have never asked for mercy, and before a court where I did not receive a fair trial I certainly did not expect it. I intend not only to fight this case step by step, but all the charges that have been brought against me and with the knowledge in my own conscience of my entire innocence, I expect to be successful in the contest.

"I now repeat what I have said already, that I will be a candidate for mayor of the city and county of San Francisco this fall, when the people of San Francisco will have an opportunity by their votes of demonstrating whether they believe me guilty or innocent. The people are always right. I am satisfied to leave my case with them."

3 NEW TRUSTEES IN SCHOOLBOARD

TRACTION GETS A DELAY.

Further Time Is Allowed for the Union Company to Accept Its City Ordinance.

MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

ADOLPH F. GARTZ, to succeed John J. Hayes, removed and term expired.

OSCAR F. GREIFENHAGEN, to succeed Mrs. Keough, term expired.

BOARD OF EXAMINING ENGINEERS.

BOARD OF EXAMINING PLUMBERS.

O. W. HERMANN, to succeed C. J. Boyd, resigned.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION.

ELTON LOWER, to succeed himself.

The foregoing appointments were made by Mayor Busse at the city council meeting last evening, and promptly confirmed, the only dissenting vote being that of Ald. Dever. Of the new members of the board of education—

Mr. Urion is a lawyer well known at the local bar, and general counsel for Armour & Co.

Mr. Gartz is treasurer for Crane & Co., and well known among the younger Germans. He was a member of the civil service commission under Mayor Harrison, but resigned.

Mr. Greifenhagen was formerly in the woolen business, but now retired. He has a high standing among the older Germans of Chicago.

Union Traction Gets More Time.

The Union Traction company asked for and obtained from the council an extension of time in which its ordinance can be accepted from July 26 to Sept. 15. When the story that an extension was likely to be asked for was first printed in THE TRIBUNE Judge Grosscup said he did not think it would be necessary to ask it, as he hoped to have everything ready on schedule time. Since then he has found he was mistaken. He sent to the council a letter in which he said:

"The ordinance to the Chicago Railways company requires that the acceptance be made on or before July 26, and by that date the company be in lawful possession of the railway properties of the Union Traction company in the hands of receivers of the United States Circuit court. It is still necessary, before the acceptance and transfer can be made, that the Circuit court hear and determine a petition asking the properties in its hands be turned over to the railways company, and there is great danger that between now and July 26 this cannot be fully accomplished, in which case the ordinance to the railways company, notwithstanding all which has been accomplished thus far, would fail."

Ald. Hurt at once started a loud protest, saying it would delay the improvement of streets in his ward where rails are to be laid, but a letter from General Manager Roach was sprung on him stating all contracts for street work already made would be kept, and the work on Ald. Hurt's streets would begin on Monday.

Ald. Foreman explained that if the ordinance was not accepted it would mean a long delay on all rehabilitation work, and the extension of time was granted 61 to 3, the negative votes being those of Hurt, Harding, and Uhlir.

Telephone Junket Abandoned.

No council committee will go to New York at all to inquire into the working of the measured telephone rate system there. This is the result of Ald. Bennett's desire to shirk a disagreeable duty. As the special committee was appointed it consisted of three aldermen committed to the measured rate, three on record as opposing it, and Ald. Bennett, whose opinions were not known. Naturally the report of the committee rested with Ald. Bennett. So when Ald. Young as chairman of the gas-oil committee made the request that the entire committee of thirteen be authorized to go in place of the special committee of seven, and the council showed every indication of being primed to reject it, Ald. Bennett moved that all previous action be rescinded and nobody go.

This relieved Ald. Bennett of the necessity of acting as umpire between the two factions, and had the argument back of it that it would save the people money, so the council adopted it.

New Smoke Ordinance Passed.

The ordinance establishing the new smoke abatement department was passed without opposition. It establishes the office of chief smoke inspector at $4,000 a year, of assistant chief smoke inspector at $3,000 a year, of chief boiler inspector at $3,600 a year, of assistant chief boiler inspector at $3,000 a year, of a board of eight citizens to advise the mayor, of a board of three engineers to advise the advisory board and "whatever inspectors and clerks the council may determine upon and fix the pay of." The present boiler inspection ordinance was amended to conform to the new one.

An amendment to the ordinance forbidding the storage of sawdust in larger quantities than 3,000 pounds, took up a full hour of the council's time. Ald. Uhlir and Zimmer of the Twelfth ward claimed the storage of large quantities of sawdust and shavings in their wards was a nuisance and Chairman Dever for the judiciary committee said if the ordinance was enforced it would put many planing mills and similar industries out of business. Finally the limit was raised from 3,000 to 20,000 pounds and the trouble was settled.

Council Reconvenes on Sept. 3.

On the representation of Ald. Bennett that it was necessary to hold a couple of council meetings before the new charter is voted on in order to pass some financial measures, the date for the reassembling of the council was changed from Sept. 23 to Sept. 3.

An ordinance was passed providing for the renting of 20,400 square feet in the Rand-McNally building for the election commissioners, 15,800 feet at 76 Fifth avenue for miscellaneous uses, and 12,000 at 82 La Salle.

BLIND MAN GETS A CITY JOB.

Frank K. Rittenhouse on Board of Examining Engineers.

KNOWS ALL ABOUT ENGINES.

Wife Hopes Salary Will Pay for Operation to Restore Sight.

Frank K. Rittenhouse, "the blind coffee man," who runs a coffee shop in the front part of his residence at 1494 West Thirty-fifth street, was appointed as a member of the city board of examining engineers yesterday, with a salary of $2,000 a year.

There was joy in the household of the blind man when his friend, A. C. Heiser, vice president of the Fifth ward republican organization, brought the news. Mrs. Rittenhouse apologetically shed a few tears of joy later in the evening when she talked about her husband's new job.

"Since Frank was stricken blind three years ago we have managed to make a living, and that's about all," she said. "I know he can fill the position even if he is blind. It isn't so much the possibility of being able to live better than we now do, but we will be able to save up enough money to have an operation on Frank's eyes, which may restore his sight. That would mean more than riches."

Knows All About Engines.

As Mr. Rittenhouse is the only blind man ever appointed to a city position in Chicago it is interesting to know how he will manage to officiate.

"For twenty years before I became blind, I was a stationary engineer," said Mr. Rittenhouse. "I know every technical and mechanical point about an engine, and can conduct as competent an examination as if I had my sight."

For twenty years Mr. Rittenhouse was head engineer in the lumber mills of Rittenhouse & Embree, Thirty-fifth street and Center avenue. One day three years ago there was a breakdown in the plant. In his efforts to expedite the repairs he lifted a driving shaft and strained himself, rupturing a blood vessel back of his eyes. The result was blindness. Two years ago he opened a coffee store, and now is known throughout the neighborhood as the "blind coffee man."

Mr. Rittenhouse cannot credit his appointment to any pull.

"I got the job because I had the nerve to go after it," he said. "I learned of the position and knew I was capable of filling it. I got Ald. Burke of my ward, the Fifth; John J. McKenna, president of the republican ward club; Mr. Heiser, Representative D. E. Shanahan, and other representative citizens to sign my petition, and then I went to the city hall.

"I'll admit I stumbled about the place a good many days there hunting up the men I had to consult. It was tedious work, and at times I felt like giving up in despair. Some gently hinted that a blind man couldn't do the work, but, as I say, my nerve didn't give out."

Director of the Blind Club.

Mr. Rittenhouse is a constant reader of books printed for the blind which he gets from the city library. He is a director of the Blind club, which has headquarters in the Masonic temple. It was greatly through his energy that the state legislature continued its appropriations for the Industrial Home for the Blind, Nineteenth street and Marshall boulevard.

M. F. Rittenhouse, head of the lumber firm of Rittenhouse & Embree, is an uncle of the blind man. The uncle is wealthy, but since Frank Rittenhouse lost his sight in the lumber firm's employ he has had a hard struggle for a livelihood. He is 40 years old and has one son.

TELLS BAPTISTS BY HAIRCUTS.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 8.—The Rev. Dr. Ritchett, president of the general conference of the Methodist church of Australia, addressing the conference today, said the adherent of every religion has something distinctive in his appearance, adding:

"If I dropped from a balloon into a gathering of Baptists I could tell their sect by the way their hair is cut.

"If I fell into an Anglican synod I could tell by their collars.

"If I dropped into an assemblage of Methodists from any sky, I would not regard either their hair or collars, but would know their religion by their faces, which are of the type displaying intelligence and kindness."

DYNAMITE WRECKS HOME OF CONDON.

Family of Blind Owner of Racehorses All Escape Injury, Being by Chance in Upper Room.

BLAME PLOT TO ENEMIES.

Explosion Startles Residents in Vicinity of 2623 Michigan Avenue; Police Arrest Man Suspected.

A dynamite bomb arranged with a time fuse exploded on the window sill of the "Napoleon room" in the residence of "Blind John" Condon, 2623 Michigan avenue, last night. It had been placed there with the intent to murder the entire family. Contrary to their usual custom, however, Mr. and Mrs. Condon and their son, John, were in the upper part of the house when the explosion occurred and thus escaped.

The explosion shook the house to its foundations, tore away the stone wall under the window, demolished the window, and damaged pictures and furniture in the room. It occurred at 8:40 o'clock, just before the hour when the regular night watchman employed by Mr. Condon came on duty.

While no one was seen around the premises, either before or after the explosion, the race horse owner and gambling king, who is the head of a coterie of big Chicago gamblers, gave information to the police that led them to arrest a suspect in Forty-second place an hour after the trouble.

"Blind John" puts the plot up to his gambling enemies. He said it was a remarkable coincidence that on the day this happened the City of Traverse should have received its death blow, for he is credited with being the mind that engineered the fight on the boat.

All Escape Injury.

At the time of the explosion Mr. and Mrs. Condon were in the sitting room in the rear of the second story of the large brick and stone residence, which is surrounded by a high iron fence. Mr. Condon has received many letters threatening his life during the last few years—none recently, however—and he has taken pains to protect the lives of himself and family.

Members of the family were reading quietly in the sitting room. The servants were distributed in safe places, as it happened. Several of the maids were sitting on the front porch, and the coachman and other servants were standing in the back yard. Scott Linn, a young man residing in the house next door, was reading in the window facing the Condon residence. The watchman was over at Twenty-sixth street and Indiana avenue. The policeman on the beat was standing three blocks away.

Explosion Startles Neighbors.

Mr. Linn was disturbed from his reading a few minutes before 9 o'clock by seeing a bright flash on the window sill of the southeast ground floor room of the Condon residence. This was followed by a roar that made the house tremble. There was a sound of shattered glass and splintering wood. Rushing to the front door he saw that the street and yard were deserted. The smoke hung thickly around the hole in the house that looked as if it had been struck by a ship.

Policeman Ahearn came running down the street, followed by dozens of excited neighbors. "Blind John," in dressing gown and pajamas, reaching out his hands in trembling and helpless fashion, tottered downstairs on the arm of his wife. John, the 13 year old son, rushed into the yard, but could find no evidences of any one having been around.

Furniture and Pictures Wrecked.

The "Napoleon room," filled with costly furniture and pictures, was a wreck. The furniture was smashed into kindling wood. One large mahogany chair, in which Mr. Condon usually is found at the library window at the precise hour when the explosion occurred, was left in splinters. Chairs in other rooms were overturned and covered with a fine dust. There were pieces of stone in the wall and on the pictures.

A valuable painting by an Italian master, which hung just across the room from the window where the bomb was placed, was broken. The window in the dining room was broken and one in the basement. The thick stone wall of the house had been crumbled away like sand. The downward blow of the powder demonstrated that it was dynamite beyond a question. A window also was found blown out in the basement of the Linn residence, and Mr. Linn said the house trembled under his feeet.

Capt. White of engine company No. 9 was the first of the firemen to reach the scene. He saw that there was no need of water, so he helped to straighten things up and keep the crowds that clamored around the iron fence away. Ten policemen from the Cottage Grove avenue station were sent over under charge of Lieut. Dawney. Capt. McCann arrived from the Twenty-second street station and Assistant Chief Schuettler's office was notified. Thus half an hour after the explosion the police were active. They found nothing around the premises to lend them any aid.

Police Sent After Suspect.

"Blind John" was taken into conference with Lieut. Dawney. He refused to tell what the information was that he had given the lieutenant, but soon afterward detectives were sent to arrest the suspect in Forty-second place. The police would not reveal who the man was or even the fact that a suspect had been arrested.

"It may be some man whom I sent to the penitentiary many years ago," said Mr. Condon, as he sat later in the hallway, surrounded by police and neighbors, still trembling from the excitement of it all. "I cannot tell who it was. Of course I have enemies.

"I have received many letters telling me what dire manner of destruction was going to be visited on me. None has come recently, however, and I am at a loss to account for this. I have not been active in horse racing affairs lately, anyway."

"Do you think the City of Traverse crowd might have had anything to do with it?" Mr. Condon was asked. "You know the United States government took away the boat's license today?"

"I don't see what they would want to injure me for," he answered, but there was a shadow of fear in his voice. "I do not think they would be so cowardly. I have had nothing to do with their affairs.

Old Weapon of Gamblers.

"Dynamiting is not a new weapon of warfare among gamblers," he continued. "There have been many times when it has been used in Chicago. "Jim O'Leary's place has been attacked in that manner. There were bombs thrown at 157 Clark street and 311 Clark street, 'Mushmouth' Johnson's place, a few years ago. But I can't say anything about this. We may find out something later."

"Blind John" is credited by the underlings at least of the City of Traverse crowd with being the most active agent in fighting the boat.

By these men Mr. Condon is placed at the head of the powerful clique that has gained control of the downtown handbook business—a clique that was determined to drive the poolboat out of business in order to keep the betting population on shore.

About three years ago Mr. Condon became a central figure in the fight between the Western Jockey club and the American Turf association. The latter organization was started by Edward Corrigan, Matt Winn, and other horsemen who objected to the rulings and the treatment given them by the Western Jockey club. The fight between the two organizations led to the closing of horse racing in Chicago and St. Louis. Later the fight became so bitter that reformers took up the matter and racing was stopped in Missouri, Arkansas, and Tennessee, after laws prohibiting racing had been passed.

The fight began when the Western Jockey club refused to give racing dates to the City Park Jockey club of New Orleans, La., which was built by Edward Corrigan and others. The Western Jockey club claimed that the New Orleans Jockey club, being the oldest racing organization of the south, should be alone in that field. The fight gradually spread. Much money was sunk in the racing war by both factions, which are still at war.

Mrs. Condon Keeps Calm.

Mrs. Condon was quiet through it all. She said she did not mind about the furniture—that she was thankful principally because all were safe.

"I do not see how any one could be so cruel as to plan a thing like that," she said. "We all might have been sitting here. Any other night we would have, but tonight we went for an automobile drive and had not been home more than half an hour when this happened."

She moved around the wrecked library, touching the pieces of furniture and brushing the dust from the pictures.

"It was a terrible explosion," said Mr. Linn, the only eye witness to the scene. "It nearly blinded me at first. Then I felt the house tremble under me. Other people said they felt it a block away. I ran out, but could see no one. I could smell the dynamite plainly."

Watchman Arrived Later.

"The explosion was timed just before my time to come on duty," said Night Watchman Charles Knipping, who has been employed by Mr. Condon for several years. "Whoever placed the bomb there must have done it just after dark, and they knew my habits and the habits of the servants well. I have not noticed any suspicious strangers around lately, but it would not be hard to watch the house and not be seen. A room might have been hired in some house overlooking this one. The habits of the family were well known, too."

Policeman Ahearn was standing at Twenty-ninth street and Indiana avenue when he heard the explosion. He was the first to reach the spot. He couldn't do anything, however, except stand guard by the gate. Several detectives arrived with Lieut. Dawney. After the conference with Mr. Condon two of them were sent out. The lieutenant gave a number on Twenty-second place.

"I know him," said one of the detectives.

"What does he do?" asked the lieutenant.

"O, he's a loafer," said the detective.

Bomb Set Off by a Fuse.

That a fuse was used to set off the dynamite Capt. McCann was certain, as a woman servant and others said they had seen a blue flame shortly before the explosion.

"Detectives in my command are making a thorough investigation of the affair," said Capt. McGann. "I am of the opinion that a stick of dynamite with a fuse attached to it was thrown into the yard by some person, probably an enemy of Mr. Condon's. About three years ago an attempt was made to destroy the grand stand at the Harlem racetrack, which is owned by Mr. Condon, but it was prevented by a quick discovery."

Chief Shippy and Assistant Chief Schuettler were notified of the explosion at the Condon home. The latter sent four detectives to the place to investigate the affair, while Chief Shippy said he would detail detectives from his office to make a thorough investigation.

"It is a serious affair," said Chief Shippy, as he was leaving the council chamber. "I will detail detectives to make a thorough investigation."- Further than this the chief refused to talk.

Crowds surrounded the house for hours after the explosion. Men and women commented on the brutal nature of the plot. They picked up pieces of stone and other souvenirs when the police let them get near enough. The yard was filled with fragments of stone, some of which had been blown as far as the sidewalk.

POOLBOAT TO LOSE LICENSE; ACTION DUE TO ROOSEVELT.

Appeal to President Results in Order Against City of Traverse—Cancellation if Gambling Charges Are Proved.

That thorn in the side of the police department, Bud White & Co.'s floating poolroom, the City of Traverse, was removed yesterday by action of the United States government in ordering the revocation of the boat's coasting trade license if it was found to be a gambling place. This is supposed to mark the end of a two years' war carried on by the police against the gambling boat, a fight that has been punctuated by some of the most spectacular raids in the history of Chicago gambling.

Collector John C. Ames of the department of customs in Chicago was ordered by the department of commerce and labor to investigate the complaint that the boat was used purely for gambling purposes, and, if the charge was found true, to cancel the license at once.

The action was brought about by the direct intervention of President Roosevelt, who was appealed to by Congressman James R. Mann. It was Mayor Busse who stirred Mr. Mann to action.

The investigation was begun at once by Deputy Collector Hitt, and a report is expected this morning. Police Chief Shippy had no doubt that he would be able to furnish the government with all the evidence wanted.

Capt. Ira B. Mansfield, in charge of the local steamship inspection service, said:

"By interfering with the operations of the City of Traverse I thought we might set a precedent whereby every vessel on the lakes would be affected. There is more or less gambling on every vessel, and slot machines and dice games are common."

VICIOUS PARROT FREE IN CITY.

Mike's Owner Gives Warning That Bird May Injure Person Who Attempts Capture.

Beware of the parrot that gets confidential and remarks "Mike's all right." The parrot will probably be Mike himself, and his owner, who has known him ten years, says Mike is vicious.

Mike, despite his name, is a Mexican parrot, speaking German and English, has an orange head, and lived at a lower State street hotel. International complications seem to have gotten on his nerves, and he took French leave.

"Mike is liable to bite some one," said Miss Kate Stross, proprietor of the hotel, yesterday. "He's a vicious bird, and whoever catches him will have to handle him gently. I will give a liberal reward to the one who brings Mike back to me. I don't see how I can get along without him. I really can't imagine why he left me."

SHOOTS AND IS HIMSELF SHOT.

Assailant of Brother-in-Law Wounded by Policeman as He Is Fleeing on a Street Car.

After shooting his brother-in-law, John J. Shea, in the left shoulder at the Shea home, 252 Sacramento avenue, Michal Moran was himself shot in the left hip yesterday afternoon by Policeman Horan of the Warren avenue police station while trying to escape on a rapidly moving West Madison street car. After wounding his brother-in-law Moran had pursued his wife, whom he left a week ago, upstairs and attempted to attack her. Shea, though severely wounded, managed to summon the police

VEIL STILL HIDES OIL TRUST DOINGS.

Standard's Attorneys Refuse to Tell Whether It Has Violated Laws Often.

JUDGE LANDIS IS DEFIED.

Court Announces That a Fine Will Be Imposed on the Company Aug. 3.

If Judge Landis wants to find out what a good trust the Standard Oil company of New Jersey is and has been ever since it was organized he will have to be insistent and make a demand on the company's attorneys. Of their own volition they have refused to furnish the data, taking a chance in so doing of adding several hundred thousand dollars to the company's fine.

In a statement that some attorneys think borders on contempt Attorney Moritz Rosenthal denied the right of the court to make such a demand and by inference intimated that justice had been swayed by "gossip of the street and charges of the mob." Judge Landis did not choose to take judicial notice of this veiled arraignment nor did he comment on it, but at its close said:

"The final order in this case will be entered on Saturday, Aug. 3. Call the next case."

The explanation made by the Standard Oil attorneys for this refusal to give a certificate of good moral character for their client is the same as their contention when called on to furnish data detrimental to it. They contend that in fixing the fine the court can take cognisance only of such evidence as was presented at the trial.

To accept the invitation of the court, Mr. Rosenthal said, would be to create a "situation unheard of in the history of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence."

Heavy Fine Is Expected.

It is not likely that Judge Landis will insist that the attorneys furnish this information. An opportunity to do so was given and their silence doubtless will be construed in a manner none too favorable for their client. It is probable that an adequate answer to the Standard Oil attorneys will be included in the opinion which Judge Landis is expected to deliver in fixing the fine.

When the case was called in the morning John D. Archbold and several other witnesses, brought here from New York, were present.

H. E. Felton was called to the witness stand. On Saturday he had stated his belief that the schedules by which the Chicago and Alton paid the Union Tank Line company, of which he is president, ¾ of a cent a mile for the use of the tank cars had been filed with the interstate commerce commission. He was forced to confess yesterday that the schedules had not been filed.

Advantage Over Competitors.

"However," he explained, "it has been the custom of railroads for the last twenty-five years to make these payments."

"Regardless of published tariffs?" inquired Judge Landis.

"Yes," continued the witness. "You see, the railroads paid this to the company owning the cars, not as a rebate, but as a rental."

By this statement he demonstrated the often repeated charge that even at the same rates the Standard Oil company, owner of the Union Tank line, would have the best of its competitors, as the railroads would pay the Standard rent for every car used, whether for trust or independent business.

"Have you anything to offer, gentlemen, in this case this morning previous to the entering of the final order?" inquired Judge Landis, turning to the Standard Oil lawyers.

"We have a formal statement," replied Mr. Rosenthal, "which I will read to the court."

Formal Statement Is Read.

After stating that such a proceeding as outlined by the court would be extra-judicial and beyond the legal power of the trial judge, he said:

"Indeed, since the passage of the interstate commerce law until the year 1906 there never has been an indictment even charging this defendant or the Standard Oil company of New Jersey with any violation of the interstate commerce law.

"For this defendant now to assert its innocence of matters that it is not charged with, or attempt to show that it has been innocent of any wrongdoing in connection with matters outside the court record of the case, when there is nothing before the court charging it with such wrongdoing, would present a situation unheard of in Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence.

"This court, in the absence of anything in the record to the contrary, paying no attention to the gossip of the street or the charges of the mob, and guided by the fundamental law of the land, must certainly presume the complete innocence of this defendant of any prior violations of the interstate commerce law, and fix the penalty, if any, solely upon the record of this case."

Fees Paid to Witnesses.

The last of the Standard Oil witnesses to secure his mileage and witness fees from the government was C. M. Pratt, secretary of the company. His bill against the government was $92.70. Mr. Pratt was preceded by John D. Archbold, vice president of the company, who was described by the deputy marshal as "a funny little man, looking like he wanted to crack a joke."

It is stated at the United States marshal's office that the Salvation army's effort to get the witness fees of Mr. Rockefeller and others probably will be unsuccessful. It is said that the fees are never paid unless the witness receipts in person for them and that probably Mr. Rockefeller will not make another trip to Chicago for this purpose.

FIX HEARINGS ON VALUATIONS.

Taxpayers to Be Called Upon to Show Why Assessments Shall Not Be Increased.

Hearings for the purpose of revising the valuations fixed on property by the board of assessors will be opened by the board of review on Monday.

The reviewers met yesterday and adjourned to Thursday, at which time they will compare the assessors' valuations this year with those of a year ago. In cases where valuations are lower or no higher than a year ago the taxpayers will be summoned to show cause why the figures should not be increased.

The board of assessors let the contract for printing the personal property lists to Hedstrom & Barry, and the lists are expected to be in the hands of taxpayers within a week.

Chief Clerk Kingsley said that the totals of the real estate valuations by towns will be completed in about ten days.

COURT FINES KING SOLOMON.

Negro with Majestic Name Is Ordered to Pay One Dollar and Costs for Fighting.

King Solomon was arraigned in Municipal Judge Sadler's court yesterday and fined $1 and costs for disorderly conduct.

When King Solomon's name was called out by the clerk there was a craning of necks in the courtroom.

King Solomon proved to be a comical looking little black man. He was accused of smashing the head of Henry Jones, colored. He denied the charge, and as the evidence showed that both men had been disorderly, Jones was fined $1 and costs also.

SHUT SUNDAY READING ROOMS.

Public Library Directors Issue Order Effective During July and August at All Branches.

Directors of the Chicago public library decided last night to close all the branch reading rooms on Sundays during July and August, and then adjourned for their summer vacation. The next meeting of the board will be held on Monday, Aug. 12.

NAME SANTA FE IN TRUE BILL

FISH CHARGES MAY BE HELD

Additional Evidence Likely to Delay Report in Booth Case.

The federal grand jury, which reconvenes today after an adjournment of ten days, will return indictments against the Santa Fé railway company, and probably the United States Sugar and Land company of Garden City, Kas. There are a number of other smaller indictments charging various post-office frauds and swindles against individuals.

The indictment charging the Lake Shore railway with granting rebates to A. Booth & Co. is hanging fire. It may be returned today, but it is more probable that additional evidence will be submitted to the grand jury and there is a possibility that a second adjournment will be taken and the indictment not returned until Aug. 3.

Just what is causing the uncertainty in the fish rebate cases has not developed. It is said that several important witnesses, whose presence before the grand jury is desired, have not been found.

Shipper and Carrier Involved.

It is practically certain that when these indictments are returned they will include the names of those individuals believed by the grand jurors to be responsible for the illegal rebate agreement. As in the case of the Standard Oil indictment, each shipment will constitute a separate count. The total number may equal 200, involving a possible fine of $4,000,000. In the fish rebate case, however, both shipper and common carrier are liable to prosecution.

The indictment of the Santa Fé may be classed as a foregone conclusion. The officials of the company had practical confirmation of it several weeks ago. Moreover, the facts charged by the government investigators are admitted by the Santa Fé.

The charge of the government is that the Santa Fé offered a rebate of $35,000 to the sugar beet company on the $100,000 worth of freight shipped from Chicago to Garden City, Kas., consisting of materials for erecting the plant. The officials of the road claim this sum was a bonus which was granted to a great industry to establish a plant on the road. Of the bonus or rebate offered $12,000 was paid, and in this way the sugar company becomes involved for accepting a rebate.

It is possible, however, that in return for its good faith in submitting its books for grand jury inspection it may not be prosecuted.

More Evidence in Furniture Case.

While the grand jury was in session certain evidence relative to the so-called school furniture trust was presented to it. This was said to be due to an effort on the part of the government to secure an additional indictment of the E. H. Stafford Manufacturing company. At an investigation of this combine held last February indictments were returned against fourteen concerns, and all save the Stafford company pleaded guilty. They were fined in sums ranging from $10,000 to $500 each. The Stafford company elected to contest the government. There was also some talk of indicting certain men other than F. A. Holbrook, who was the only individual singled out at the former investigation.

OFTEN LOST BOY GONE AGAIN.

Police Called On to Look for Eight Year Old Simon Robinson, the Champion Wanderer.

Simon Robinson, 382 West Fifteenth street, the most lost boy in Chicago, is lost again. Late yesterday afternoon he rambled away from his home and when he failed to answer roll call with his brothers and sisters at the supper table, one of his little brothers was sent to the Maxwell street station to report that Simon was missing. Simon is 8 years old and his chief occupation in the last five years has been getting lost. Every police station in Chicago at different times has held him after he had been "picked up" on one of his trips, and twice he was found in Evanston and once in Aurora.

CITY GETS NEW PLAYGROUND.

George K. Schmidt's proposition to allow the use of eight lots for a playground if the city will pay the taxes on the property was accepted yesterday by the small parks commission. The lots, which belong to the K. G. Schmidt estate, are at Wrightwood and Perry street. They will be used by the city as a playground for eight years.

Chicago's short respite from excessive heat conditions gave way yesterday to another wave of humidity, which was responsible for the death of at least two persons and the prostration of several others. Many cases of suffering occurred during the day which were not reported to the police.

The highest point reached by the temperature was only 84 degrees, but the oppressive condition of the atmosphere was reported by the weather bureau to be unequaled at any time this summer. The prospect for today is a continuation of warm weather of the sultry kind. The only relief in sight will come through possible showers during the day.

The Dead.

BLANEY, HUGH, 53 years old, 6009 Wabash avenue.

SCHWETZE, ERNEST, 65 years old, 417 School street.

Mr. Schwetze, who was a machinist, fell from a second story window of his boarding house early in the morning and received injuries which caused his death soon after. The aged man was found in an unconscious condition on the sidewalk by Mrs. Mary Lohse. A physician was called but Schwetze died before his arrival. The police investigated a theory of suicide, but decided that the man was suffering from the heat and in an effort to obtain more air, sat on the window sill, lost his balance or was overcome, and fell to the pavement.

Heat Causes Heart Disease.

Heart disease superinduced by the heat is supposed to have caused the death of Blaney, who died suddenly while sitting in a chair in the parlor of his home. He had been complaining shortly before of the excessive heat.

Herman Roosler, 33 years old, a teamster, was overcome by heat and fell backward into the box of his wagon at La Salle and Polk streets. Pedestrians saw the man fall and came to his aid.

While working in the kitchen of a restaurant in the Republic building, State and Adams streets, Charles Wise, 50 years old, a cook, fell to the floor in an unconscious condition. He was removed to the county hospital, where it was said his condition was serious.

HELD FOR ATTACK ON A GIRL.

Young Men Threatened with Mob Violence at Harvey Are Unable to Give Bail.

John Stark and George Gibson, both 20 years old, whose arrest at Harvey on Sunday almost caused an attack on the lockup by men eager to do them violence, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Justice Applegate at Harvey. They were accused by Annie Harrington, 12 years old, 15625 Vine street, Harvey, who said they attempted to attack her.

Frank Thorn, 30 years old, a colored cook, who lives at 2325 North Ashland avenue, was arrested by the Town Hall police yesterday on a charge made by the parents of Louisa Brown, 14 years old, 2448 North Paulina street.

1,700 ARE TURNED AWAY.

Housekeeping Instruction Feature of Course Offered Girls.

Eleven vacation schools, supported jointly by the woman's clubs and the board of education, opened yesterday. Out of 8,700 applications 7,000 pupils were accommodated. This is the largest attendance on record, and a greater number could not be accepted on account of the lack of funds.

The housekeeping instruction offered in all of the schools attracted more than 2,000 girls. For the boys there are physical culture and manual training in addition to the regular courses of study.

The most novel feature of the summer work is at the Dante school, where the children are entertained with dramatic tales. This attraction is intended to offset the allurement of the 5 cent theater.

Fine Arts Given Attention.

At the Holden school Mrs. Bogan, wife of the superintendent of the vacation schools, with Miss Isabella Patterson and Mrs. Kolloch, will devote particular attention to the fine arts, particularly music, painting, and sculpture.

A nursery will be installed at the Keith school during the day for practical lessons in nursing. Women in the neighborhood have evinced a desire to leave their babies in the care of the novices.

There will be one excursion a week for the pupils to points of interest in and near Chicago.

Condemn Site for New School.

The buildings and grounds committee of the board directed its law department to begin condemnation proceedings for a site for the new school for truants in Ewing, near Desplaines street. The property has 313 feet frontage, with a depth of 119 feet, and adjoins the proposed new Juvenile court building. The land will cost the board $30,000, and the property, combined with the eight story building which the committee purposes to erect, will cost $80,000.

TOOK MONEY FOR SAFEKEEPING.

"Scully the Robber" Convinces Court He Was Not Trying to Rob Saloon of Dying Man.

"Scully the Robber," arrested on Sunday on accusation of robbing the saloon of James Monahan, while Monahan lay dying, told such a convincing story in Judge Sadler's court yesterday that he was released, only being required to make a weekly report that he was working at his trade as a bricklayer.

According to Scully's story, supported by the evidence of the barkeeper, he had not stolen any money from the cash register, but had taken $28 given to him by the day barkeeper for safe keeping, as the night man was liable to go to sleep and be robbed. He said he had known Monahan from boyhood and wouldn't think of robbing him when he lay critically ill.

WORRY FOR HARVEY'S MAYOR

Returns from Mexico to Find Officer He Ousted Is Reinstated.

HIS OWN TENURE IN DOUBT.

Recount of Votes May Cause Decision That He Was Not Elected.

Elmer Flewelling, who was elected mayor of Harvey last April, returned to the city yesterday from a trip to Mexico and found several things which surprised and shocked him.

Shortly after Flewelling's election he removed J. E. Bates from the office of chief of police, and from that time until the mayor's departure for Mexico the town got along without a "marshal." Ald. Frank Stevenson, who was acting mayor during Flewelling's absence, restored Bates to his old office.

But that was not Mayor Flewelling's only surprise. His opponent in the mayoralty race had been W. E. Kerr, who preceded Flewelling in office. Flewelling, according to the returns, was elected by a vote of 375 to 373. While Flewelling was in Mexico the matter was taken before Judge Dupuy and a recount showed thirteen votes "doubtful." Without these Kerr has a plurality of four. Judge Dupuy has not yet announced his decision in the case.

Now Mayor Flewelling, when he is not busy wondering how long he will remain mayor, is trying to find a way to remove Chief Bates from office. He asked the chief to resign and the chief replied, "Not in a hundred years."

Charges of incompetency are regarded as improbable, for Bates, it is said, is the most efficient chief of police the city ever had. If Kerr is declared mayor it will clear the situation, for he has anonunced that he will confirm Bates' reappointment.

Meanwhile the entente cordiale which has existed between Mayor Flewelling and Ald. Stevenson is badly strained.

LITTLE GIRL ESCAPES DEATH; TAKES RIDE ON A FENDER.

Struck by Halsted Street Car While Crossing in Its Way and Is Slightly Hurt—Other Accidents of the Day.

Cecilia Henrich, 6 years old, of 111 Halsted street, ran in front of a street car at West Monroe and Halsted streets yesterday. When it struck her she fell upon the fender and was given a short ride before the motorman could stop. She escaped with slight injuries.

The police of the West Chicago avenue station were busy explaining yesterday why Officer Winge did not arrest a beer wagon driver known as Schneider, who, Sunday afternoon, ran down and injured Nels Nelson, 3 years old, 1246 Monticello avenue. The officer reported the accident and said the driver was intoxicated. Capt. Kandzia said he did not know anything of the incident. The desk sergeant finally explained that he had made a mistake in the report, and that the boy was not seriously injured.

"If he had been hurt badly I think the patrolman would have arrested the driver," he said.

Mrs. Charlotte Rudd, 75 years old, of Bellwood, Ill., died at the People's hospital of a fractured skull which she suffered on Sunday when riding in a Halsted street car. Mrs. Rudd was leaning out of a window when she was struck by another car going in the opposite direction.

Benjamin Byer, 29 years old, 1345 Lock street, fell from a Thirty-first street car last night at Rhodes avenue and received a serious injury to his spine. Byer is a conductor on the Thirty-first street line.

LOSES FIGHT TO REGAIN CHILD.

Dr. James A. Printy's Petition Dismissed by Judge Honore, and the Mother Is to Continue as Custodian.

Dr. James A. Printy, 1334 Sheridan road, was defeated before Judge Honoré yesterday in an effort to obtain possession of his daughter, Catherine, 9 years old. His petition was dismissed and the child will remain in the custody of its mother, who lives at 536 Seminary avenue.

Mrs. Printy and several witnesses refuted charges of her husband, including one of excessive use of intoxicants. A counter charge accused the doctor of taking their older daughter, Eileen, now 18 years old, to the Bismarck garden three years ago, and when she returned home, Mrs. Printy said, the girl was intoxicated.

Judge Honoré was disinclined to give full credence to the charge that the daughter had become intoxicated while with her father, but he closely questioned Dr. Printy concerning it.

TOWN OFFICIALS GET JAIL TERMS.

SEQUEL TO BITTER FEUD.

Judge Kavanagh Gives Heaviest Sentence to Justice Kruse and Adds a Severe Lecture.

W. B. McAuliff, president of the village of Franklin Park, and W. D. Kruse, justice of the peace in the village, were sentenced to forty days and four months, respectively, in the county jail yesterday by Judge Marcus Kavanagh. They were convicted of a conspiracy to defeat justice. Herman Beemer, a resident of Franklin Park, was given thirty days in jail for assisting in the conspiracy.

The decision of Judge Kavanagh ends a two year litigation which started in a saloon fight in River Grove between McAuliff and Edward J. Voelkel, the complainant in the case. The two men had long been political and personal enemies. Voelkel accused McAuliff of assaulting him July 5, 1905. On July 17 of the same year he secured a warrant before Justice Roth in Chicago, charging McAuliff with the assault.

When the case was called for trial McAuliff appeared in court with a certified transcript from Justice Kruse's court in Franklin Park showing that he had been arrested on complaint of Beemer for assault on Voelkel, and on July 6 fined $3 by Justice Kruse. On the showing of the transcript Justice Roth dismissed the case against McAuliff.

Transcript Declared Fictitious.

Later Voelkel claimed to have discovered that there never had been a hearing before Justice Kruse. He went before the grand jury and had the three men indicted under the conspiracy act. At the trial the principal witness against the three men was Thomas B. Courtney, former constable. He testified he had served no warrant as shown in the transcript from Kruse's court, and that he did not know of any hearing being held.

The three men waived jury trials and submitted their case to the court. In sentencing the men Judge Kavanagh said:

"Mr. Kruse, you are by far the most guilty of these three men. You were elected by the people of your town to a position of trust. Instead of upholding the dignity of the law you lent the aid of your office to prevent justice being done. For that reason your punishment will be the heaviest."

Criticises the Decision.

Mr. McAuliff, who has been president of the village board for two terms, criticised the decision.

"I can't help thinking that Judge Kavanagh used bad judgment," he said last night. "We have appealed the case and will carry it as high as we can. The whole thing is political persecution and the state's attorney's office has been used as a tool. That man Voelkel has sworn he would get my scalp, but he has got a long way to go yet.

"We brought the papers into court to show that the case was heard and the fine made. The only witness against us was Courtney and he is a bad man to get mixed up with. I soaked Voelkel one that day, I admit, but I pleaded guilty and paid $3 for the pleasure next day. The judge decided according to what he thought ought to be done, not as what was right."

KAVANAGH HAS COLLINS' CASE.

Judge Will Decide on Thursday as to Trial of Former Dunne Employes.

Judge Kavanagh will decide Thursday whether John M. Collins, Edmund H. Hehe, Frank D. Comerford, and William O'Donnell will have to stand trial on the indictment accusing them of political activity in the recent campaign of Mayor Dunne.

Judge Kavanagh during the afternoon interrupted former Judge Nathaniel C. Sears, who referred to the injury which would be done to the men, as they all occupied prominent places in the community.

"Their positions will have nothing to do with this case," Judge Kavanagh said. "This motion is a legal motion and will be decided solely upon the legal points involved."

The argument was closed.

FIND CHICAGO SLAYER IN EAST.

Walter Edwards, Accused of Killing Fred Byrd, Arrested in Johnstown, Pa.

Walter Edwards, alias "Berry," colored, who shot and killed Fred Byrd, also colored, head bellman in the Lexington hotel, Jan. 8, 1908, was arrested by the police of Johnstown, Pa., yesterday. He will be brought to Chicago this week.

Oddie Johnson, colored, was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary by Judge Pinckney for the murder of his wife, Beatrice Johnson. He waived a trial by jury, pleaded guilty, and submitted his case to the judge.

William Vogel, 5343 Union avenue, was held by a coroner's jury without bail to answer to the grand jury for the murder of Frank R. Schaub, 934 West Sixty-third street, who died from a fractured skull which he received in a fight with Vogel July 1.

END AUTO TOUR OF LANDS ABROAD

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin S. Smith Back in Chicago After 6,000 Mile Ride.

ONLY ENGLISH IS SPOKEN

Entire Trip Made Without Serious Mishap or Resort to Railway Transportation.

Calvin S. Smith, general agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, returned yesterday with his wife from one of the most remarkable automobile trips on record.

Speaking no language except English, Mr. and Mrs. Smith, who live at 3982 Lake avenue, toured 4,500 miles in Europe without a serious breakdown or clash with foreign customs. Not having exhausted the pleasures of motoring, they toured several eastern states on their return to this country and then motored to Chicago, where they arrived at 4 o'clock in the morning.

Without once resorting to railway trains they traveled a total distance of 6,000 miles in their car and only relinquished it as a means of transportation for the ocean passage. The entire trip cost them $4,000 and the machine in which it was made $5,000.

American Cars Good as Foreign.

One thing he said he had learned from his trip was that the best American cars are superior to the foreign built cars of the same price. This applies strictly to half a dozen first class American machines. The American manufacturers have reached this perfection only within the last two years, he said.

The Smiths are enthusiastic motorists, and previously have sped their car over a large portion of the North American continent and the West Indies. The machine in which this latest trip was made was a sixty horse power touring car, which was shipped direct from the factory to Genoa, Italy. On Feb. 15 Mr. and Mrs. Smith, accompanied by their chauffeur, Norman Clark, left Chicago and sailed from New York for Genoa.

With two auto trunks in the rack behind the Chicago couple started out along the Italian and French Riviera, stopping at Monte Carlo and at Nice, where they played golf for ten days. At Biarritz they had for their fellow guests at the Grand hotel King Edward VII. and Mrs. Potter Palmer. From France they motored into Spain at San Sebastian, where they were required to deposit 1,000 lires as a damage guarantee. At the French border they had previously deposited 600 francs for the same purpose.

In a Village of Thieves.

The first real adventure encountered was between Burgos and Madrid. Mr. Smith had laid in a large supply of gasoline at Burgos, but the party got into a snow storm, and the going became extremely heavy. They ran out of fuel in a barren, inhospitable village thirty-five miles from Madrid.

"I never saw such a thieving, rascally aggregation of human creatures in all my travels," said Mr. Smith, "as the crew of villagers that gathered about us as we stepped from our machine. Mrs. Smith had no sooner alighted than half a dozen foreign hands were thrust simultaneously into the pockets of her fur coat.

"We had a puncture to mend, and whep we finished the job the old outer casing was missing and not to be found high or low.

"Well, they had no gasoline, and it was all we could manage to make them understand that kerosene would do. My chauffeur said he could use kerosene while the engine was hot. But the natives only grinned, admitted they had kerosene, but refused to sell it. Finally in a stable outhouse I found five cans of kerosene holding five gallons each. As the three chief villains grinned and prepared to lock it up I seized a large spike and drove it into one of the cans.

"Immediately as the fluid spurted out there was a great uproar. I would have to pay for what had leaked out. I was only too willing, but I insisted on buying what was left in the can, too. I got it for $1.25 a gallon. It worked all right, but we ran that thirty-five miles to Madrid smoking like a soft coal railway locomotive."

Central Spain Almost Treeless.

At Madrid the Smiths remained ten days, and a dinner was given in their honor by Ambassador Collier. Then they visited Toledo. Mr. Smith said that central Spain was disappointing on account of its barrenness. The peasants have cut down all the trees in the belief that trees attract birds which destroy their crops.

After visiting other principal cities in Spain the party returned to France, passing up the Rhone valley, and spending several weeks in the central château district. Then circling to the north they reached Paris via Rouen.

After a rainy ten days in Paris in the latter part of April they set out for Switzerland, passing through Orleans and Dijon.

Speak Only Restaurant French.

"By the time we had done Spain and France on the American language we began to get proud of our proficiency," laughed Mr. Smith. "Of course we knew a little railway and restaurant French, but that is a language of its own, and we spoke that with an American accent that often effectually disguised its intelligibility. But we rarely failed to get what we wanted.

"Aside from punctured tires, the only breakdown we had was the snapping of a spring near Burgos. But the village blacksmith made a new one that I have on the car yet. The ordinary foreign artisan is more proficient in all around work than his American brother."

Switzerland was the only country in which there was a conflict with the law. In circling Lake Geneva the travelers unwittingly passed through a corner of French territory at Grenoble and when they returned to Geneva were arrested because their passports were not visèed at the Swiss frontier.

"Another time," said Mr. Smith, "we ran up eight miles from Geneva to Monetier for breakfast. When we got there we were arrested for the same reason. We had passed in and out of a corner of France. They held the machine while we went back to Geneva and got our passports."

Only one other time did they collide with the law—that was for fast speeding where the limit was eight miles an hour and they didn't know it.

On Alpine Pass 10,000 Feet High.

They tried to cross the Alps by the St. Gothard pass, but found it closed. So they took one of the southern passes of an altitude of 10,000 feet and crossed easily, the machine passing between solid walls of snow ten feet deep.

Descending into Italy, the motorists visited Lake Como and Milan and sailed from Genoa on May 27 aboard the Königen Luise.

"We enjoyed every mile of the trip," concluded Mr. Smith. "We never stopped for rain, because with our curtains up we were as snug as in a Pullman car. I drove the machine mornings and my chauffeur afternoons. The worst roads we encountered were between New York and Chicago during the last week. It rained every day."

Used Up $500 Worth of Tires.

Mr. Smith said he used up $500 worth of tires on the trip. Gasoline, however, proved the most expensive item. It is 40 cents a gallon throughout France, and in Italy and Spain ran as high as $1.25.

"In villages where we stopped for the night," said Mr. Smith, "we often paid more for our supply of gasoline than for the lodging and meals for the three of us."

Mr. Smith doesn't look as if he had been motoring. He has only a touch of tan, and he startled his business associates when on appearing at his office in the morning he informed them he had passed the night in his auto plowing Indiana mud.

"The mental strain was more than the physical," declared Mr. Smith. "I feel as if I needed a vacation from my late vacation. I would like to go up in the wilds of northern Wisconsin and just lie around and rest for ten days."

Lake View Bird Causes Annoyance to German Professor.

APPEAL MADE TO POLICE.

Squad of Bluecoats Urged to Put Chanticleer Out of Business.

A squad of policemen under command of Lieut. McCarthy is expected to swoop down upon the premises at 1309 Cornelia avenue today and put out of commission a yellow rooster that is accused of disturbing the peace of Lake View.

Mrs. William Winterhoff, wife of a teamster and owner of the bird, says she will resist the efforts of the police, and will advise them to look after the complainant.

The charges were made yesterday before Corporation Counsel Brundage by Prof. Franz Sommerfeld, who owns two houses on the lot at 1317 Cornelia avenue and lives upstairs in the rear one. He said he represented a committee of neighbors which included P. Weber of 1315 Cornelia avenue and J. William Killian of 1323 Cornelia avenue. He was referred to Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler by Mr. Brundage.

Sommerfeld said he taught German in the public schools, but was let out some years ago because he criticised Supt. Andrews for his stand on the silver question.

Disturbed by Loud Crowing.

"That rooster is awful," the professor observed. "He crows incessantly from 2 o'clock in the morning until dark. I complained to Winterhoff and the rooster is not crowing now. I haven't heard him today. I guess it is too warm. I am the only man who went to the front, because the others haven't the backbone. I am the man who stopped them from spilling ashes in the alley. I believe in being a good civilian. I also made the children stop roller skating on the sidewalk.

"But that rooster disturbs everybody's rest. I leave my house at 9 o'clock in the morning and reach the office at 10. I never saw a rooster like him. Yes, I did keep chickens. That was years ago, and I had only four. I didn't keep a rooster, though, because I wouldn't disturb the neighbors."

Complaints Denied by Neighbors.

Mrs. Killian, after expressing surprise at learning that Sommerfeld had used her husband's name, said: "Why, he just asked me on July 3 if I heard the rooster crow that morning, and when I said yes, he remarked: 'That's all I want to know.' The rooster crows only about an hour in the morning, but I wouldn't fall out with the professor for anything. He's a good neighbor, because when any bad boys are around the house he goes after them as if he was going to kill a half dozen at once."

Mr. Weber said he didn't care if the Winterhoffs had a dozen roosters.

"The professor is queer," he added. "He would even like to get rid of this nice big dog of mine. He don't like dogs, cats, or anything like that."

Mrs. Winterhoff said: "I can't tie my rooster's mouth shut and won't kill him for the professor. I keep my chickens penned up and this is the first complaint I have heard."

RESCUES TWO FROM DROWNING

Frank J. Walsh, 2511 Indiana avenue, a life saver, qualified for a Carnegie medal yesterday when he rescued two drowning boys at the Twenty-fifth street pier.

One boy, 11 years old, was fishing with a companion 19 years old, when the younger boy fell into the water. The older boy jumped in to save him. When the attention of Walsh was called both boys were drowning. He jumped into the water and succeeded in guiding both to shore.

Walsh and other life savers "rolled the water out of them" and the boys went home unassisted. The life savers did not learn their names.

Walsh performed a similar exploit about the same time last year.

SUES CASHIER AND PROMOTER BECAUSE OF BUSINESS LOSS.

Inventor Says William Rupp Jr. Advised Him to Invest Money in Factory Which Failed Subsequently.

William Rupp Jr., cashier of the Chicago Savings bank, with John L. Taylor, formerly a promoter, was sued for $10,000 yesterday by M. J. Sasgen, an inventor.

According to Attorney F. A. Bingham, Taylor met Sasgen at Benton Harbor three years ago and said he owned a large factory which would go to the wall unless several notes, amounting to $4,000, were paid, and that the factory would be profitable if freed from indebtedness. Sasgen, it is alleged, advanced the $4,000 on an agreement to receive half the stock, acting on the advice of Mr. Rupp, who said he thought the stock was valuable. The factory failed later.

"I gave honest advice to Sasgen, and I am much surprised that he should sue me, considering the fact that I lost $1,500 in the same proposition myself," said Mr. Rupp in the evening. "Attorney Frank P. Graves of Chicago lost about the same amount as I did. I was in the Benton Harbor State bank at the time. I advanced Sasgen money from personal funds so that he could come to Chicago and seek work."

Vice President Lucius Teter of the Chicago Savings bank said he has investigated the matter thoroughly and that the bank is confident that Mr. Rupp's advice to Sasgen was given honestly.

FACES FIRST DIVORCED WIFE IN NEW COURT WRANGLE.

Bert A. Thayer Claims Release from Paying Alimony, but Judge McEwen Wishes Expert to Pass on Signature.

Bert A. Thayer and the first of his three divorced wives gave so much conflicting testimony in Judge McEwen's court yesterday he postponed further hearing of the case until handwriting experts could be summoned.

Thayer's first wife was divorced Jan. 12, 1900, and was to have $5 a week alimony. Four days later Thayer married Ora L. Russell, but they failed to agree, and in three months the second wife filed suit, was granted a decree and $30,000 alimony.

The first wife now is Mrs. Leola Loewenmeyer. Thayer told Judge McEwen the present Mrs. Loewenmeyer had seven years ago signed a stipulation which released him from paying alimony.

Mrs. Thayer as positively insisted that the instrument was a forgery. Recently when she made a demand for $1,720 due her for the support of her daughter, 8 years old, she says she first learned of the stipulation. It was drawn early in January, 1900, and Jan. 12, 1905, Thayer, through his attorneys, presented it before Judge Brentano and obtained an order to clear title to some real estate owned by him.

NEWPORT THEATER OF WAR; "ENEMY'S" VESSEL CAPTURED

On Land and on Water Forces Are Alert to Protect the City from Threatened Attack.

Newport, R. I., July 8.—Newport tonight bore an unusually martial appearance, and every one connected with the army and navy forces stationed here for the war games was on the alert for a possible "attack" on the city.

In the bay were two torpedo boat flotillas of the Atlantic fleet, the first submarine flotilla, and the submarines Octopus and Cuttlefish, together with the monitor Arkansas of the naval cadets' training squadron.

On land, in addition to the usual forces at the forts, were two regiments of Rhode Island National guard, the First regiment at Fort Greble and the second at Fort Adams. The militia were put through hard work today, including many kinds of drills.

Early in the evening the searchlights picked up the quartermaster's steamer Charles W. Rowell, one of the enemy's ships about seven miles out to sea, and the guns of both forts were trained on it. After several rounds of blank ammunition had been fired the "enemy" was "captured."

The remainder of the attacking fleet could not be located, however, and the officers thought a landing might have been effected.

Good Looking Hero of Courtroom Osculation Is Retained, While a Score of Brother Deputies Are Laid Off.

Kenosha, Wis., July 8.—[Special.]—"There are only a few good looking men in this department, and we can't spare a man who has been kissed by a millionaire's daughter."

This was the message that Deputy Game Warden Michael Kleist received this morning from Madison in connection with his reappointment for another year. Kleist had a good record, but when it was decided to lay off twenty of the game wardens it was supposed he would go, but his record for gallantry saved him.

A year ago Kleist arrested Millionaire E. J. Richardson of St. Louis on a charge of violating the game laws, but his daughter pleaded so hard with the deputy warden that he asked for the minimum fine when his prisoner pleaded guilty. The justice followed his request, and the young woman threw her arms around Kleist and kissed him. Kleist has taken a great deal of chaffing as a result of the kiss, but it saved him his place. He is the only warden in this section of the state to keep his office.

Martinsville, Ind., July 8.—[Special.]—Fifteen hundred railroad tickets, representing a value of about $30,000, were stolen last night from the Big Four railroad office in this city. The office stamp and punch were taken also. There is no clew to the thieves.

BURGLAR BEATS A STUDENT.

Russell Lowe Struck Down in Phi Delta Theta House.

HIT ON HEAD BY BLACKJACK

Young Man's Search in Darkness for Thief Ends Abruptly.

In an encounter early yesterday morning with a burglar whom he was trying to chase out of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house Russell Lowe, a summer student at the University of Chicago, was struck on the head with a blackjack and seriously wounded The burglar escaped.

Lowe, M. C. Mattison, and another student living at the fraternity house, at 5532 Monroe avenue, spent the evening at the White City and returned home in an automobile shortly after midnight. A man was seen loitering in the neighborhood, but no attention was paid to him at the time. It is believed he followed the trio of students into the house.

Roused by Dark Lantern.

A little after 1 o'clock Lowe was awakened by the play of a dark lantern in his face. He saw the intruder, and asked him what he was doing. The man made no answer, but fled from the room.

Leaping out of bed and seizing a revolver from the bureau Lowe followed the burglar down the hall, firing three shots, none of which took effect.

Lowe heard the front door open, and supposed that the burglar had fled from the house. He ran down the stairs to follow him from the house, when suddenly he was felled in the doorway.

Struck by Blackjack.

The burglar instead of going out had hidden behind the door, and struck Mr. Lowe with a blackjack as he ran past.

The student fell to the floor unconscious, and the burglar, leaping over his prostrate form, escaped. Dr. W. Storck, Monroe avenue and Fifty-fifth street, was called and revived Lowe and dressed his wound. So far as could be discovered, nothing was taken from the house by the burglar. The occurrence was reported to the Hyde Park police.

The students in the chapter house and in the neighborhood were aroused and joined in a search for the burglar, which was continued for hours, but without success.

MRS. EDDY'S SON SEEKS $125,000

George W. Glover of South Dakota Asks Court to Guard Christian Science Leader's Trust Fund.

Concord, N. H., July 8.—A bill in equity, seeking to place under the jurisdiction of the court a trust fund of $125,000, created by Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science faith, last February, subsequent to which time a suit for an accounting of her property was brought by certain next friends of Mrs. Eddy, was filed in the Merrimack county Superior court today. George W. Glover of Lead, S. D., son of the Christian Science leader, and his wife and four children are the plaintiffs. The bill is one of many that have been entered in connection with the already complicated litigation involving the property of Mrs. Eddy. The pending legal proceedings, it is alleged, have prevented the Glovers from enjoying the trust fund, and they, as plaintiffs, ask the court to order that the money and securities mentioned in the trust deed shall, during the pendency of the suit to determine Mrs. Eddy's competency, be held as trust property under the guardianship of the courts. The defendants to these last proceedings are Gen. Frank S. Streeter, Mrs. Eddy's counsel; Irving G. Tomlinson, and Archibald McLean. The last two are Christian Scientists.

Makes Cigar Deadly.

St. Paul, Minn., July 8.—Edward Lindig, a well to do farmer of Centerville township, Anoka county, was charged in the police court today with attempting to kill Philip Nadeau, a neighboring farmer of New Canada township, by poisoning him with strychnine. Nadeau says Lindig tried to induce him to smoke a poisoned cigar. Lindig was held to the grand jury.

ACCUSES VANDERBILT AID.

Girl Says C. H. Wilson Married Her When He Had a Wife.

HE DENIES WEDDING STORY.

Tells Crowd on Steamer Entering Port No Ceremony Was Read.

New York, July 8.—[Special.]—Miss Florence R. Schenck of Norfolk, Va., and Charles H. Wilson, manager of Alfred G. Vanderbilt's show ring horses, arrived here today on the steamship Minnehaha from London.

Miss Schenck is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Powhatan Schenck. She is 19 years old and renowned as a whip of skill. At the Norfolk horse show last fall she drove some of Vanderbilt's horses in the show ring and when the string to be sent to the other side of the Atlantic to compete was picked she accepted an engagement to go with them. Her father and mother tried to dissuade her, and when she persisted they declared they would have nothing more to do with her.

Miss Schenck, who was in a highly nervous state, talked about her troubles to the reporters as the steamship came up the bay. She said:

"Wilson and I were married in Richmond, Va., on Oct. 19 last. We went abroad as man and wife. I have learned he has a wife and children, who live in Orange, N. J. Now I hate him. He has ruined my life," she declared, hysterically. "I am now an outcast without a friend in the world, even my father and my mother have disowned me."

Wilson Denies Ceremony.

While she was talking this way the passengers gathered around and listened. Wilson, who heard all she said, sullenly declared he had not gone through any marriage ceremony with Miss Schenck.

"We were married—we were," vehemently persisted Miss Schenck. "I have my marriage certificate to prove it."

"Don't put any of this stuff in the papers," pleaded Wilson to the reporters. "It is not true. I have a wife living in Orange to whom I was married seven years ago. I'm afraid if Vanderbilt sees this, I'll be asked to leave his service."

Wilson tried to get Miss Schenck to stop talking, but she insisted on telling her story, and declared she would have Wilson punished for the way he treated her.

She said: "I'm going to tell all about this, as much for Mrs. Wilson's sake as for my own. We were married in a Richmond hotel on Oct. 19. Some time after our marriage he took me out to Orange and presented me to his wife as a friend of his. We had a terrible time. Then it came time to go to London, and I didn't know what to do. My parents had cast me off, and I simply had to go. He sent a cablegram to my father from the other side telling him we were married. When it came time for us to sail back he tried to induce me to stay in London, but I insisted on coming back.

Tells of Brutal Treatment.

"He treated me brutally all the way across the ocean. On Sunday night he knocked me senseless. Look here where he struck me." Miss Schenck bared her arm and showed large bruises which she said were caused by Wilson.

"He threatened a dozen times to kill me if I said anything about what he had done to me.

"I don't know what I am going to do. I haven't 50 cents to my name. On the way up the bay I was offered $200 to sign a paper repudiating my marriage, but I refused."

Miss Schenck went to the Victoria hotel as soon as she landed tonight. According to Dr. Smith, the hotel surgeon, she is suffering with nervous prostration and he declined to allow any one to see her.

EX-JUDGE GARY PROPHESIES HEAVY BUSINESS DECREASE.

Chairman of the Steel Corporation on Eve of Sailing for Europe Tells About Future Trade Reaction.

New York, July 8.—[Special.]—Ex-Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, who will sail for Europe tomorrow, talked today about general business conditions in this country. He made no attempt to hide his belief in a general business reaction during the next six months or year, due to the expansion of business heretofore beyond the ability of the country and the business community to finance it.

Mr. Gary was asked what the conditions were to which he attributed a diminution in the general volume of business. He said: "To begin with, next year is a presidential election year.

"The second point is we have been doing too much business for the amount of money available to finance our needs.

"I have seen signs also in the decrease of building activity.

"I think also another contributing cause has been the investigation, exposure, and radical agitation we have been through the last year or two. These influences had a tendency to make investors timid and produce a feeling of distrust."

"But," Mr. Gary was asked, "have not the exposures of financial corruption proved beneficial to the country?"

"They will prove so," he replied.

Although It Denies Any Violation of New Statute Large Brokerage Company Suspends Business.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 8.—[Special.]—The Pittsburg Brokerage company, one of the biggest concerns of the sort in Pittsburg today suspended business. The new Mesta law, an anti-bucket shop measure, is held responsible for the decision, although the firm avers that it never has done any bucketing of sales.

The firm sent word to its patrons that, should the Mesta law, now being tested, be declared unconstitutional it will reopen its doors.

The company had direct wire connections with many New York and Chicago exchanges, as well as those in other cities.

It is understood that the move of this company is but the first of a series which will be announced soon.

HONORS FOR CHICAGO TEMPLARS

St. Bernard Commandery Will Act as Escort for Most Excellent Grand Master at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 8.—[Special.]—Knights Templar are here from nearly every state in the union besides Canada and England. By tomorrow there will be representatives from 171 grand and subordinate commanderies. Illinois ranks among the first in numbers. St. Bernard commandery No. 35, K. T., of Chicago arrived in Saratoga this morning in a train of ten Pullmans. This commandery is the official escort for Most Excellent Grand Master of the Grand Encampment Sir Knight George M. Moulton.

CAB STAND TO BE ABOLISHED.

Council Committee Recommends Repeal of Ordinance Relating to Wabash Avenue and Congress Street.

Repeal of an ordinance creating a cab stand at Wabash avenue and Congress street, which was passed several months ago, was recommended yesterday by the council committee on streets and alleys south. Property owners declared that the maintenance of the cab stand made it difficult to secure tenants. Representatives from the cab drivers consented to the repeal of the ordinances.

M'CLELLAN SLAPS TAMMANY CROWD

New York's Mayor Ousts Corporation Counsel Ellison from City Office.

TELLS OTHERS TO QUIT.

Chamberlain, Street Commissioner and Member of Merit Board, Allowed to Resign.

New York, July 8.—[Special.]—The storm which has been threatening the city hall for weeks past broke today when Mayor McClellan removed Corporation Counsel Ellison, demanded the resignation of Civil Service Commissioner Talley, and accepted the resignation of Street Cleaning Commissioner Craven.

The mayor put an end to all speculation by announcing that he had made these changes in his administration:

Ousting of Ellison No Surprise.

The removal of Ellison was no surprise. That the mayor and Ellison were not on friendly terms was a matter of common knowledge. The breach between them came after the so-called peace conference between Ellison and Big Tim Sullivan, which was supposed to have been engineered by Morgan J. O'Brien, with the consent of the mayor and Charles F. Murphy, for the purpose of bringing about peace between the city hall and Fourteenth street.

After Ellison and Big Tim had met about half a dozen times Ellison gave out a statement in which he asserted an understanding had been arrived at between the administration and the leader of Tammany Hall, indicating that the mayor had dropped his fight against Murphy, and adding that there would be no appointments of men to office "who may be inimical to the organization or its leaders."

Criticism Leads to Breach.

As the announcement brought forth comment unfavorable to McClellan, he immediately began to sidestep the supposed agreement, and has not been friendly with Ellison since.

About ten days ago Ellison issued a statement that he had no intention of resigning, and McClellan never intimated he was to be removed. It is understood the mayor regarded this as a personal affront and sort of gratuitious threat that the mayor, because of the Sullivan support, dare not remove him.

Not one of the four men put in office today are friendly to Murphy, while James J. Martin, the new chamberlain, is an avowed enemy. Polk and Pendleton are members of the Tammany general committee of their districts, but they are opposed to the existing control of the organization. Commissioner Talley, in responding to the mayor's demand for his resignation, declared he had been removed solely because he was regarded as a friend of Murphy.

Sketch of New Appointees.

Francis K. Pendleton, the new corporation counsel, is a son of former United States Senator Pendleton of Ohio. His father ran for vice president when Gen. McClellan ran for president in 1864.

James J. Martin for many years has been one of the best known democrats of the city. He broke away from Tammany Hall and Charles F. Murphy immediately after the Buffalo convention which selected Hearst as the democratic candidate for governor.

Dr. Benzel has been connected with the sanitary bureau of the health department since 1892.

Mr. Polk is a son of Dr. William Polk, a great-nephew of President Polk.

The new appointees all were sworn in today. The salaries they will receive are: Corporation counsel, $15,000; city chamberlain, $12,000; street cleaning commissioner, $7,500; and civil service commissioner, $5,000.

GIRLS' NEED FOR HUSBANDS MAKES TRADE BOARD ACTIVE.

Massachusetts Town Refuses to Take In Factories Unless Men Are Employed as Workers.

Worcester, Mass., July 8.—[Special.]—Manufactories employing only female help must steer shy of the town of Ware. The board of trade believes the town already has far too many girls. The board wants a boom for its town, and the glad hand is out for marriageable bachelors, and there are a lot of unrented tenements waiting for willing workers who will take some of the surplus female population off the minds of the board.

Ware recently had a chance to add to its list of industries a hat company which was burned out elsewhere. The firm employs several hundred girls and the board of trade voted to keep them out.

"The town soon will be overrun with girls," said one of the members. "We must have more men or the town will cease to exist. It won't be race suicide, but merely a fading out because we can't get men to marry our girls. Therefore let us have only industries which employ men and get rid of some of the extra females who are looking for a chance to stop working in a shop to go housekeeping."

John Bettenhouse Explains Situation to Judge Wright, Who Excuses Venireman.

John Bettenhouse of Tinley Park was excused from service on a jury in Judge Wright's court yesterday.

When he was questioned as to his fitness for service he asked to be excused. The court wished to know why.

"Well, boys," he said, turning toward Judge Wright, "we are short of help on the farm. I got to get back; I can't stay with you, boys. You know it is our busy season now, so I just can't stay. If it wasn't in this season I wouldn't care—in fact, I would be glad to help you, boys, but you see how it is."

ORCHARD'S STORY OF BOMB DENIED

VICTIM CHANGES OPINION

BY O. K. DAVIS.

Boise, Idaho, July 8.—[Special.]—The defense in the Haywood trial began today the introduction of what is has all along counted part of the strongest evidence in contradiction of the story of Harry Orchard, but because this evidence was in the form of depositions regarding the Bradley explosion, the most important features of which have already been published, there was little interest in the court proceedings and few spectators in the room.

The effort of the defense is to show that the explosion which Orchard testified he caused with a dynamite bomb was in fact due to a gas leak. It was on the gas theory that Linthforth, owner of the house, got a verdict against the gas company, but the parts of depositions referring to that fact were excluded today by Judge Wood on the state's objection because of the appeal which leaves the case still undecided.

Slow Progress Is Made.

Slow progress in reading the depositions was made today, and unless there is a decided improvement in pace, Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, will not be called to the stand as a witness in Haywood's behalf until Wednesday.

The principal depositions read today were those of Walter Linthforth and Bradley himself. Linthforth told of complaints of gas leaks having been made before the explosion, and of having had plumbers there to inspect the gaspipes. He described the results of the explosion, and said that some time afterward a hole was found in one of the meters, which had not been touched from the time of the explosion until the inspection was made, which resulted in the discovery.

He also said that it was impossible for a person to climb on to the flat roof over the backstairs, as Orchard said he had climbed when waiting to poison the Bradley milk.

Bradley's Views Undergo Change.

The Bradley deposition revealed some change of attitude on the part of Bradley since he has read the testimony of Orchard. Up to that time he was positive that he had been injured by a gas explosion. He so declared in an affidavit which he made for Linthforth at the time the gas company appealed from his verdict. He said then that "There is absolutely no doubt in my mind," and declared that he "would have detested the fumes of dynamite" if that had been the cause of the explosion.

In this deposition he said that the idea it was gas had been shaken by Orchard's testimony and that if he were making the affidavit now he would qualify it to some extent. He now believes that it was possible that a bomb was placed there and did produce the explosion. Mr. Bradley said that pieces of the mosaic tiling in the floor and hairs from the doormat were picked out of his body when he was taken to the hospital. He had previously smelt gas in the house, but on that morning did not notice any. He lighted his cigar in the library and as he opened the outside door leading to the street he saw a blinding flash in front of him, apparently at the end of the cigar, felt a smashing force knock him down, and then the lifting force which threw him into the street.

Did Not See Bomb.

Two other depositions were also read today, one by Tracy Cummings, a railroad man, who lived in the corner flat, and one by J. B. Reilly, who was deputy county clerk at the time of the explosion.

Cummings went out and by the Bradley door but a minute or two before the explosion, and did not see a bomb or a newspaper or a piece of string at the door.

Reilly went up the street to Guibbini's store to get his regular half past 7 drink and saw a Jap cleaning the steps. Orchard testified that he saw the Jap there that morning and waited until he left.

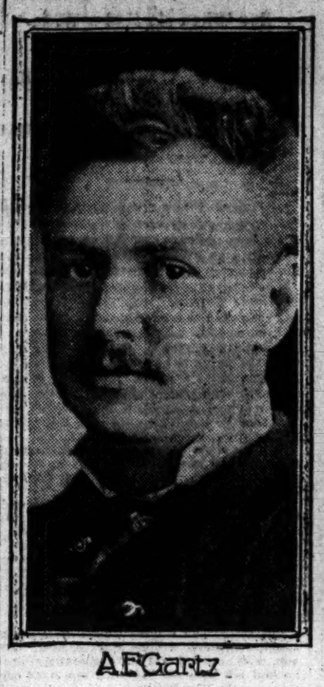
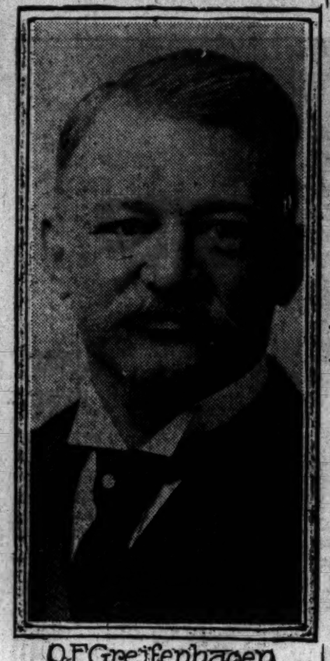
New Appointees to the School Board.



A. F. Gartz



O. F. Greifenhagen

A. F. Gartz was born in New York in 1862, but has lived in Chicago nineteen years. He is treasurer of the Crane company and has been in public office several times. He was appointed by Mayor Harrison to fill an unexpired term as a member of the civil service commission. Subsequently he was nominated as the republican candidate for city treasurer, but declined to make the race. Mr. Gartz was married in 1888 to Miss Kate Crane, daughter of the president of the Crane company. They live at 5225 Lexington avenue.

O. F. Greifenhagen is a wholesale woolen merchant, and has never held a public office of any kind before. He was born in Chicago in 1859, and for the last fifteen years has lived at his present address, 1911 Deming place. In 1882 Mr. Greifenhagen was married, and he has two sons, one of whom is a student in the Lake View High school. Mr. Greifenhagen is a member of the North Side Turner society and the Germania Männerchor. He is not personally acquainted with Mayor Busse.

Ald. Brennan reopened the controversy over the widening of Halsted street by sending to the finance committee an order for $30,000 to start the work.

Ald. Fished wanted a state law requiring the use of electricity in place of steam in all suburban traffic, and his petition went to the committee on state legislation.

City to Keep Dock Property.

An ordinance to vacate that part of Front street in the Ninth ward, between Dix and Halsted streets, for the Featherstone Foundry company in consideration of $14,745 was beaten on the ground it was dock frontage and the city should not part with it.

The ordinances allowing hospitals outside of 400 feet of schools, and providing that the capacity of all milk bottles be blown in the glass, were passed.

It being the last meeting of the council before vacation, and probably the last one in the present chamber, a picture of the gathering was taken, and Mayor Busse, spying Fernando Jones in the gallery, called him to the seat alongside of himself, and got him into the front of the large photograph.

GERONIMO, OLD APACHE CHIEF, MAKES A DASH FOR FREEDOM.

Captured by Soldiers After He Slips Out of Camp While on Parade—Says He Will Escape Later.

Cache, Okla., July 8.—[Special.]—The old Apache warrior Geronimo, who terrorized the southwest for many years with his bloodthirsty band, while attending a celebration at Cache, under parole, as the guest of the Comanche chief Quanah Parker, made an attempt to escape across the Texas Panhandle into New Mexico.

Geronimo was missed from the Indian camp for about eight hours, and a detail of soldiers from Fort Sill captured him several miles out of Cache this morning.

Wanted to Lead Braves.

The old warrior had heard of the troubles of the Apaches in Arizona, who, according to reports, have threatened to go on the warpath. The chief says he wanted to go with his people and help them fight.

He has been having family troubles lately, his eighth wife having left him. Recently he drank liquor to excess and lay out on the reservation all night. This incensed the church going people, as they expected interesting sermons from Geronimo himself during the revival services they had arranged.

Geronimo recently poined the Dutch Reformed church, to which President Roosevelt belongs, in the hope, it is said, of obtaining a pardon.

Says He Will Escape.

Criticisms of Indians greatly affected Geronimo, and he has been mentally unbalanced for several days. Indian scouts have been guarding him, but he managed to elude them.

"Some day I shall get away from the president's men," he said when captured today. "I am tired of being a prisoner."

RACE LINES BARRED ON ROADS.

Railways Must Provide Equal Accommodations for Negroes and Whites, Rules Commission.

Washington, D. C., July 8.—The interstate commerce commission in a decision today, in the case of Georgia Edwards against the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, held that where a railroad provided certain accommodations for a first class passenger of the white race it is commanded by the law that like accommodations shall be provided for negroes who have purchased similar tickets. It holds that in this case it is manifest the railroad "has unduly and unjustly discriminated in some particulars against colored passengers," and orders that where the railroad provides a washbowl and towels in the coaches for white passengers and a separate smoking apartment, similar accommodations shall be provided for negro passengers paying similar fare.

EARL'S SON AS A STOKER.

NOW WORKING IN NEW YORK

Wealthy, but Thinks He Has No Right to Live in Idleness.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 8.—Somewhere in New York is the son of an English earl, whose name is not made public, who has a thirst for work which his exalted sphere at home cannot supply.

The Shipping Gazette first gave the news, saying the young man worked his way across the Atlantic in the stokehold of a liner. Inquiries at Southampton confirmed the main fact.

A few days after the steamer sailed the early himself arrived at Southampton and made inquiries concerning his son. He learned that a well dressed, lusty youth, exactly filling the description of his son, applied for work in any capacity. He was engaged as a stoker. Nobody was aware of his identity.

The earl's son made a good record on board, and before quitting the steamer he was offered a permanent job. He preferred, however, to take his chances in New York, where he is now earning his living. It is stated he is impelled to his strange course by the deep conviction that he had no right to live in idleness, as his abundant means would have enabled him to do, and that he ought to work for a living.

RULER SLAIN: SLAYER KILLED.

Governor of Province of Nganhwei, China, Assassinated by Revolutionist, Who Is Decapitated.

HANKOW, China, July 8.—The governor of the province of Nganhwei was murdered yesterday at Nganking, capital of the province of Nganhwei, by a subdirector of police who was detailed to guard a number of officials who were to attend the distribution of certificates at the police school. The assassin was seized and decapitated at once. He confessed that he belonged to the active revolutionist organization.

TASTE FOR LITERATURE WANES?

British Woman Poet Declares Bridge and Motoring Destroy Love of Good Reading and Art.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 8.—Matilda Betham-Edwards, poet, novelist, and writer of French rural life, who was awarded a civil list pension of $250 annually, says the taste for literature and art has deteriorated in England, owing to bridge, motoring, and bad novels. She says the taste of France is higher and that French life is more sober.

Sees No Menace to Japan.

TOKIO, July 8.—The Asahi Shumbun prints a statement, which it credits to "an influential naval expert," denying there is any menace to Japan in the dispatch of sixteen American battleships to the Pacific. The expert says:

"The movements of the American navy are of no special importance. They are part of a prearranged plan which has been adopted, because of the constant growth of the American navy during the last decade, for the sake of training and for purposes of protection to America's wide interests in the Pacific ocean.

"Meanwhile it is proper to understand that the squadron is not composed exclusively of battleships, but includes a number of cruisers as well. From a strategical point of view it does not concern Japan whether the squadron remains in the Atlantic or proceeds to the Pacific, although for Americans there is some reason to believe that the Atlantic would be preferable."

Thinks Fleet Will Go Back.

The Asahi says editorially that the transfer of the Asiatic fleet to the Pacific is "the natural consequence of McKinley's imperialism." The new republican platform, it says, includes the extension of the Monroe doctrine to the Pacific, where American interests are destined permanently to remain. The report that the fleet will return to the Atlantic after a short stay in the Pacific it holds to be due not only to the inadequate accommodations afforded by Pacific ports but also to America's conviction of Japan's sincerity in respecting America's new territorial rights.

Would Welcome a Visit.

The Asahi regrets that the fleet cannot visit Japan to enable the Japanese to assure the Americans of their sincerity and to return the hospitality shown the Japanese at Jamestown. However, the Asahi is compelled to suggest the abrogation of article 2 of the commercial treaty between Japan and America to avoid in future troubles like those in San Francisco.

The Nichi-Nichi says: "War talk, the boycott bogy, and naval alarms can originate no solution for the San Francisco problem. The definite stoppage of discrimination is vital."

Sends to Learn Truth.

Director Ishii of the commerce bureau of the foreign office has been ordered to proceed to the United States and ascertain the accuracy of reports sent to the Japanese government by Japanese residents of San Francisco, and to make inquiry regarding the alleged discrimination against the Japanese subjects of the Pacific coast. He will be accompanied by S. Morimoto, a prominent politician, who is a supporter of the present ministry.

Russian Editor Is Delighted.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—The Novoe Vremya expresses delight at the present state of the relations between Japan and the United States, says it hopes for the worst, states that the controversy over minor happenings in California is "a mere blind," asserts that Japan is ambitious to control the trade of the Pacific by the quasi-open door, and adds that she is representing herself as being the injured side.

Continuing, the Novoe Vremya remarks: "Japan cleverly negotiated agreements and alliances with European powers, warded off the possibility of a coalition against her, and narrowed her opponents down to a single enemy, this time America, who, like Russia, is at a disadvantage, lacking an army and navy on two oceans. The American tenure of the Philippines is virtually on sufferance, at the will of Japan, but it will give America time to prepare for their defense."

Pacific Future Battle Arena.

LONDON, July 9, 3 a. m.—The Daily Mail in an editorial on the Japanese-American situation says:

"Around the immense area of the Pacific ocean the embattled nations of the world are gathering as the nations gathered around the Mediterranean 2,000 years ago. Careful observers universally will agree that the great events of the twentieth century probably will be occupied with the rim of this vast saucer.

"War between Japan and America is almost unthinkable. We believe the intentions of the statesmen of both countries to be profoundly pacific, and that the incidents at San Francisco are not responsible for the movement of the American fleet.

"Japan commenced the war with Russia, without previous declaration, by destroying half the Russian fleet. Such a move was effective the first time it was performed, and henceforth no nation will wait for a formal declaration of war, but will be ready to strike while there are yet no signs of a diplomatic rupture.

"The cautious and wise statesmen directing American policy are not violating prudence in deciding to concentrate their forces in the region where the eye can detect the menace on the obscure horizon."

TWAIN'S VISIT NEARS THE END.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 8.—The final week of Mark Twain's stay in England is filled with appointments. On Saturday he will sail for home, loaded with honors and attentions which admiring England has showered upon him.

Today he dined with F. M. Bell, assistant manager of the Times. Tomorrow he will take lunch at the house of commons as the guest of Sir Benjamin Stone. Arthur Balfour will be a fellow-guest. Tomorrow evening he will dine with the staff of Punch.

The joke about Mark "lifting" the Ascot cup has become such a habit here that when the story of the mysterious theft of the Irish regalia became known letters and telegrams poured into Brown's hotel asking Mark what he had done with the jewels and how he had managed to secure them.

In self-defense tonight he issued the following:

"Mark Twain has received a number of telegrams and letters from friends and strangers asking what he knows of the whereabouts of the Irish regalia. He has not replied to these inquiries because he has been advised by his lawyers it is best he should not commit himself."

FREE FRENCH RECRUITS OF 1903

Senators and Deputies Concur in General Measure to Aid Wine Growers, but Bar Mutineers.

PARIS, July 8.—The chamber of deputies today concurred in the senate bill providing for release of the recruits of 1903 on any date after July 12. This measure is designed to afford relief to the wine growing districts.

After a violent onslaught on the government by M. Jaures, the socialist leader, the chamber voted an additional clause to the recruits' release bill, which excludes the infantrymen, who mutinied during the recent troubles in the south of France, from benefiting under the measure.

Admiral, Sakamoto, who in an interview at Tokio on Sunday said American naval officers are brilliant figures at balls, but cannot fight, and that it is likely the crews of American ships would desert in a war, was a captain in the war with Russia. He commanded the battleship Yashima when it was sunk by a mine off Port Arthur, later was naval commandant at Dalny, and after the war went to England and brought back the new battleship Katori to Japan. It was while passing through the United States en route to England that he secured his extraordinary knowledge of the personnel of the American navy.

WANTS TO WAKE ROOSEVELT TO TELL HIM OF SEA FIGHTER.

Inventor Stopped by Guard as He Dashes in Auto Toward President's Home on Sagamore Hill.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 8.—An effort on the part of a young man of powerful physique to interview President Roosevelt at 4 o'clock this morning was frustrated by the secret service guard maintained night and day at Sagamore Hill.

The caller, whose name has been withheld but who is a member of a well known New Jersey family, had evidently lost his mental equilibrium through enthusiasm regarding the merits of a submarine boat he claims to have perfected and which he thought President Roosevelt ought to know about without the slightest delay in view of the proposed plan to send the battleship fleet to the Pacific.

He came to Oyster Bay in a touring car hired in New Jersey for the trip and in charge of two machinists. The automobile had not climbed half way up Sagamore hill when it was halted by one of the secret service men, who induced the inventor to turn about and wait in the village until morning.

After an interview with Secretary Loeb at the executive office this morning he returned to his home, where it is understood he will be cared for.

A Question of Definition

A "bargain" is a matter of the value secured—not the amount of money paid.

The fashionable and sterling garments, strictly up-to-date and direct from the Rochester Tailoring Institution of Ely Meyer & M. C. Simon are today at their regular prices—which never are reduced—than are the best of other ready-for-use clothes at cut prices.

Better Bargains

And in view of the time saved over an equal class of tailoring to order, they are better value at their standard prices than even high-class custom tailoring would be at a reduced price.

A convincing fact is that our garments sell readily, and constantly, and repeatedly, to the classes of men who appreciate the best—and mean to have it.

RULES OUT PART OF GOULD PAPERS

DIFFER ON AUTO MISHAP.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, July 8.

Supreme Court Justice McCall today rendered a decision by which he granted the application of De Lancey Nicoll, attorney for Howard Gould, to have stricken from the complaint of Mrs. Gould in her suit for divorce several paragraphs containing alleged scandalous matter. Justice McCall granted Mr. Nicoll's application in regard to the section referring to Mr. Gould as having maintained "immoral relations with divers women of bad character and having conducted himself in this respect so openly and notoriously as to insult, humiliate, and bring shame and contumely upon the plaintiff."

Rules Paragraph from Gould Papers.

The justice also caused to be stricken out a passage which accused Mr. Gould of having had an agent intercept and read Mrs. Gould's letters and furnish him with the information they contained.

Justice McCall refused to rule out a paragraph alleging that Gould caused detectives to surround his wife's home for two years previous to the commencement of the action for divorce and keep her under constant surveillance. This passage, he held, was neither irrelevant nor scandalous.

Dr. Julian P. Thomas, aeronaut, wine vagonist, automobilist, and health biscuit maker, will recover from injuries received in the automobile accident which ended his midnight ride with two young girls on Sunday night. It has not been decided however, whether or not his right leg, which sustained a compound fracture, will have to be amputated. Miss Florence Haas, whose right leg was amputated at the knee this morning, is in a bad condition, but it is thought her chances of recovery are good. Miss Alvina Weissman escaped injury, with the exception of a bad fright and a shakeup.

Girls and Man, Hurt in Auto, Differ on Story.

Mrs. Thomas, who was at Arverne, L. I., with her two boys while the doctor's ride, with its unexpected conclusion, was in progress, got to New York this afternoon. She visited her husband in the hospital. She had not heard then of the girl episode.

Mrs. Thomas, when asked for a statement, sent this down: "It is too early to talk about this just now. My place is beside my husband until he gets well. Further than this I have nothing to say."

Almost as soon as Dr. Thomas recovered consciousness this morning he gave out a statement in which he said he had met the girls when he stopped his machine to make some repairs. They had, he said, professed to know him and had asked for a ride, which he gave them. This does not correspond with the story the girls tell.

Frank Haas, father of the injured girl, said he is going to bring suit for damages.

In the case of Daniel W. Burrows against the Interborough-Metropolitan company and others Judge Holt of the United States Circuit court has overruled the demurrers of the defendants with leave for them to answer. The object of the suit was to obtain an adjudication declaring the transfer of certain stock of the Metropolitan Securities company to the Interborough-Metropolitan company illegal and set it aside.

Chicagoan Wins Point Against Car Merger.

Burrows, who is a resident of Chicago and owns 1,411 shares of the Metropolitan Securities company stock, says, in his complaint, that the Interborough-Metropolitan merger is in violation of an agreement with August Belmont to purchase from him all the capital stock of the Interborough.

The court held that the facts alleged in the complainant's bill do not constitute a violation of section 168 of the penal code, but the principal question of the case is whether section 7 of the stock corporation law has been violated. Section 7 reads as follows:

"No domestic stock corporation or no foreign corporation doing business in this state shall combine with any other corporation or person for the creation of a monopoly, the unlawful restraint of trade, or for the prevention of competition in any necessity of life."

The defendants say there was no creation of a monopoly, because by monopoly is meant the exclusion of all others from the field. Judge Holt says that, while that is the strict legal meaning of the term, it has a commoner meaning to the effect that the monopoly thus formed may effectually, if not legally, prevent all competition, and that the latter kind of monopoly is meant by section 7.

No monopoly could be more complete, says Judge Holt, than the Belmont-Ryan merger, since every surface, elevated, or subway railroad in this city is under its control.

H. J. Wilson, the messenger who disappeared last week, after having collected $1,700 in cash for the First National bank, has been found by two of his friends, who are endeavoring to persuade him to come out of hiding and explain just how the money was stolen from him. According to his story, communicated by letter to the bank officers, he was robbed on a street car, and then fled, fearing to face possible arrest and disgrace.

Bank Messenger Found; May Escape Arrest.

Wilson is bonded for $5,000 by a guarantee company. If he is able to establish his story to the satisfaction of its officers he probably will not be arrested.

Crazed by the heat, a workman on a Wall street building ran amuck among his fellows today, killing one and dangerously wounding two others with a hatchet. He was then attacked by the crowd which had gathered and narrowly escaped death himself. The crazed man's name is Milton Albin, a plasterer. His victims are Michael Reilly, who died tonight; Patrick Sullivan, and Edward Smith.

Crazed by Heat; Kills One, Wounds Three.

Albin, without cause or warning, attacked Sullivan, and after he had beaten him unconscious turned upon Reilly, whom he struck with the hatchet, fracturing the skull. Smith was wounded in attempting to separate Reilly and Albin.

The hatchet was wrenched from Albin's hands and he was so badly beaten by a crowd that the police had to send him to a hospital.

Chester B. Runyan, the defaulting teller of the Windsor Trust company, today was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny. He is accused of taking $60,000. The case of Mrs. Laura Carter, in whose apartments Runyan was arrested, and to whom he says he gave $15,000, has not yet been considered.

Runyan Indicted on Grand Larceny Charge.

Detectives today opened two boxes in safe deposit vaults, held in the name of Mrs. Carter. In one was found a small insurance policy and the other was empty.

Resolutions Passed at Convention Indorsing "World Peace" at Hague.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 8.—"World peace" was the rallying cry at the opening session of the fiftieth annual convention of the National Educational association which convened in Los Angeles today. Before the session adjourned at night it was decided that E. G. Cooley, superintendent of schools of Chicago, will be the next president of the association, succeeding Nathan C. Schaefer of Philadelphia, incumbent, who retires.

Seeks Peace Aid from Schools.

There were 4,000 delegates when the meeting was called to order. After preliminary business, President Nathan C. Schaefer delivered an address on "How Can the Schools Aid in the Peace Movement." In part he said:

"As soon as the girl takes up the study of history she begins to wish that she had been born a boy. Her text book magnifies the achievements of men, and devotes little space to the deeds of women. Gradually she reaches the conviction that her greatest misfortune is to have been born a girl.

"The boy is apt to form similar ideals from the text books. In fact, peace has become so great a shibboleth that the introduction of rifle practice into public schools now is advocated as a peace measure."

Favors Disarmament Plan.

At its conclusion the convention received and referred to the committee on resolutions a strongly worded resolution favoring international arbitration, disarmament, and other international reforms. Two sections of the resolution were cabled to the American delegates at The Hague.

The national council, comprised of sixty of the leading members of the association, held its first meeting, which was presided over by Elmer E. Brown, United States commissioner of education.

President A. Storms of Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., then spoke upon the topic of "Education and Democracy." At its conclusion the session adjourned.

MORGAN'S YACHT NOT SEARCHED

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, July 9, 3 a. m.—The Milan correspondent of the Chronicle withdraws his recent story about the Italian customs officials searching J. Pierpont Morgan's yacht, the Corsair, for contraband art treasures, which story he ascribes to the newspaper Corriere Della Sera. He gives the following as the original yarn:

"'A large party of Mr. Morgan's American friends, who were awaiting the arrival of the yacht from Rimini, were courteously permitted by the customs authorities to go aboard as soon as the Corsair arrived, with all their baggage. The officials later carried out the required visit of inspection aboard the yacht itself, thus sparing Mr. Morgan's guests the inconvenience of unfastening and repacking their luggage at the custom house.

Mr. Morgan is said to have greatly appreciated the compliment, and to have showered rewards rather than angry words upon the obliging officials.

BRIDGE FALLS BEHIND TRAIN.

Section Men Discover Collapsed Structure Along Big Four Tracks While Following Passenger Coaches.

Wabash, Ind., July 8.—[Special.]—Section men on the Michigan division of the Big Four railway abandoned the track to let a passenger train from Indianapolis pass today and, immediately placing their handcar on the track, followed. Two miles farther on they discovered a bridge over a small stream had given away and fallen into the water. It is believed the bridge collapsed just as the last passenger coach passed from it.

ST. LOUIS BANK PRESIDENT AND PUBLISHER INDICTED.

Edward G. Lewis of People's United States Institution Faces Seven Charges of Fraud.

St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—Seven indictments were returned on Saturday by the federal grand jury against Edward G. Lewis, president of the People's United States bank, charging fraud. In one indictment Lewis and Francis V. Putnam, cashier of the bank, are charged with using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud the bank's stockholders. Lewis is publisher of the Woman's Magazine and the Woman's Farm Journal.

Another indictment against Lewis, Frank J. Cabot, and William M. Miller charges conspiracy to defraud the government on postage rates on the mailing of a publication issued by Lewis.

MICHIGAN POST CARRIERS MEET

Mail Delivery Men Elect and Install Annual Officers, Then Attend Postmaster Prettyman's Banquet.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 8.—[Special.]—Michigan Association of Letter Carriers held their annual convention here today. Alexander McDonald of Grand Rapids was reelected president. It was decided to hold the next convention at Lansing. This evening the delegates were banqueted at the home of Postmaster Prettyman. E. G. Gainor, national vice president, Muncie, Ind., installed the new officers, who are as follows: Vice president, W. D. Thomas, Kalamazoo; secretary, Fred P. Raynor, Battle Creek; treasurer, Fred A. Traynor, Jackson.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—The husband of one of the women members of the Finnish diet attempted to commit suicide, but failed. When he was arraigned he said he and his family were reduced to such misery by his wife's neglect of her home that he decided to end his trouble by killing himself. His wife was so occupied with political matters she could not find time to look after her home. She received more than $75 monthly as a member of the diet, but allowed him only about 12 cents a day. The police say he was suffering from want of food.

SHOT; WHIPS HIS ASSAILANT.

John Berry, St. Louis Aerial Inventor, Proves Valor.

REFUSED TO SIGN APOLOGY.

Resists Demand of Former Judge R. B. Haughton to Humble Himself.

St. Louis, Mo., July 8.—[Special.]—Former Judge Richard B. Haughton shot and, it is believed, fatally wounded Prof. John Berry, an airship inventor, this afternoon in an alley near Spring avenue and Delmar boulevard, where Berry had been asked by a stranger to go to repair a mythical automobile.

Berry said he was shot after he refused to sign a written confession on his knees that he had called Haughton an insulting name over the telephone.

After Berry was shot he horsewhipped Haughton, chased him several blocks into a crowded street car, and fought with him with his fists. A policeman on the car arrested Haughton, and as Berry stepped from the car he fell to the pavement unconscious.

Tells Cause of Trouble.

At the city hospital Berry said: "I quarreled with Haughton during the world's fair, when I was president of the Berry Aerial and Navigation company, of which Haughton was a director and counsel. We planned to sail airships at the fair, but our plan fell through. I always believed the dissensions which wrecked the company were caused by Haughton, and I told him so. We had frequent quarrels.

"Today I was asked by a stranger to go into an alley and look over an auto to see if he had been cheated in purchasing it. I met Haughton, who walked up to me and said:

"'Hello, Berry, I want you to apologize for insulting me over the phone. I've got a written apology, and you've got to sign it.' But I would not do so.

"'Then I'm going to shoot you,' said Haughton.

Wounded; Thrashes Assailant.

"'Go ahead,' I said. He leveled his revolver at me and shot. Then he grabbed a buggy whip, or maybe the other man handed it to him—I'm not sure. I took the whip from him and beat him with it. When I turned around the man who lured me into the alley was gone."

At the hospital it was found that Berry's wound is of a type generally considered vital and physicians say he has little chance to recover.

HUNT BEGINS FOR TELEGRAPH TRUST

New York Judge Names Referee to Take Evidence of Reported Combine.

NEILL GOES TO COAST.

Labor Commissioner and Members of Operators' Union Leave for San Francisco.

New York, July 8.—Acting on a petition filed by Attorney General William S. Jackson, Justice M. W. Platzek in the Supreme court today appointed R. Burnham Moffatt, an attorney, to take evidence based on the attorney general's allegations that the Postal Telegraph and Cable company and the Western Union Telegraph company have formed an illegal combination to increase rates in New York and other states. Mr. Moffatt announced this evening that the first hearing in the matter will be held at his office on Wall street July 16.

In his petition Attorney General Jackson charges that the alleged combine was formed in this city last January and is a monopoly in restraint of competition in the telegraph business.

He asks that Robert C. Clowry, Clarence H. Mackay, George J. Gould, E. H. Harriman, Morris K. Jesup, and other officials of both companies be summoned to produce records, books, etc., and give testimony before the referee as to the existence of the alleged combination.

The attorney general said tonight, in relation to the petition, that his department for about two months has been engaged in making an investigation of the alleged combination between the two telegraph companies.

President Mackay of the Postal company declined tonight to make any statement regarding the attorney general's action in court today. President Clowry of the Western Union could not be found.

Roosevelt Sends Neill West?

President Roosevelt's anxiety over the telegraph strike situation is said to be responsible for the sudden departure for San Francisco last night of Commissioner of Labor Charles P. Neill, who has been in Chicago several days attempting to avert a local walkout of operators.

Mr. Neill was accompanied by three members of the executive board of the telegraphers' union. It is believed that the strike in the western city has reached a critical point and that unless the trouble there is settled quickly a spread to other places is inevitable.

Mr. Neill was reticent regarding the sudden change in his plans. It was reported, however, that he was in communication during the day with President Roosevelt.

The three members of the union executive board who accompanied the labor commissioner were S. J. Konenkamp, acting deputy president; M. J. Reidy, and J. M. Sullivan. General Secretary Wesley Russell was left in charge of the Chicago headquarters as a precautionary measure to prevent radical action here.

Situation Quiet in Chicago.

Locally the situation was noticeably more quiet. While there was a good deal of strike talk about the telegraph offices, and many operators expressed disappointment over the decision of the meeting last Sunday to defer a walkout for one week, the leaders asserted that they had the local unionists well in hand and said they had no fear of a stampede strike.

The rumor was circulated among the operators in Chicago that, besides a peace mission, the members of the executive board had another reason for proceeding to San Francisco. It was said a difference of opinion has arisen between President Small and the board members regarding the conduct of the San Francisco strike, and that an investigation is likely to be made upon their arrival there.

KENOSHA DOCTOR IN TROUBLE.

Prominent Young Physician Arrested on Charge of Alienating Affections of Factory Foreman's Wife.

Kenosha, Wis., July 8.—[Special.]—Dr. Francis H. Ehlman, a prominent young physician of this city, was arrested today on complaint of Richard Thierfelder, a foreman in the Chicago and Kenosha hosiery works.

The charge was made that the physician had alienated the affections of Mrs. Thierfelder from her husband, but the district attorney refused to give out any of the statements on which the complaint was based.

Mrs. Thierfelder, it is said, refused to appear against the doctor and the doctor said the charge was made for the purpose of blackmail. The hearing was adjourned for a week.

PLOT TO POISON WHEN GAS FAILS.

Vrzal Boy Testifies That Herman Billik First Tried to Asphyxiate Girls.

OVERCOME IN THEIR BED.

Couch Moved Into Room with Jet for One Night Only; Rescue by Brother.

Jerry Vrzal occupied the witness chair in Judge Barnes' court nearly all day yesterday. He will continue this morning his astounding story of a murder plot by which, he believes, Herman Billik killed six members of the Vrzal family.

The long story of slow poisoning was intensified when Jerry told the jury that poisoning at one time seemed too dilatory a method to Billik for bringing the life insurance due, and he made an attempt to kill Jerry's three sisters at one time by asphyxiation.

"One night I was awakened by hearing some one entering the house on the first floor," said the boy. "I found that mother already had gone downstairs, and I went to the head of the stairs and listened. I knew by the voices that it was Billik and his son Herman that had entered.

"My three sisters, Rosa, Tillie, and Bertha, all were asleep on a bed, beneath the gas jet, in the kitchen. I heard mother and Billik in conversation. One said, 'No, you turn it on,' and the other said, 'No, you turn it on.'

Finds His Sisters Unconscious.

"I went back to my room, pulled on my trousers, and went downstairs a few minutes later. The room where my sisters slept was full of gas. My mother seemed sort of dazed, so I called Mrs. Lawrence, who lived above us. We found the girls unconscious and called a doctor. They all recovered soon. My mother said, 'One of the girls must have struck the gas jet with her arm accidentally.'

"Was it customary for the bed to be in the kitchen?" asked Assistant State's Attorney Popham.

"No, sir," said Jerry. "The bed was moved to the kitchen that day and was moved back into the bedroom the next day."

"Was there any gas jet in the bedroom?"

Same Symptoms in Each Case.

Jerry recited the story of each sister's death. The symptoms were identical. The dates of the deaths of the entire family and the amount of insurance are as follows:

Martin Vrzal, aged 47, the father, died March 26, 1905, $2,000 insurance.

Tillie Vrzal, 18 years, died Dec. 22, 1905, $620 insurance.

Rosa Vrzal, 14 years, died Aug. 30, 1906, $300 insurance.

Ella Vrzal, 12 years, died Nov. 30, 1906, $165 insurance.

Mrs. Rosa Vrzal, 45 years, committed suicide Dec. 5, 1906, $3,000 insurance.

Mrs. Vrzal's suicide followed the investigation by the police into the death of her children. It is charged she killed herself upon Billik's "recommendation."

Jerry said each of his sisters was in perfect health until about four weeks before her death.

"Tillie took sick in November, 1905, about three months after Mary's death," related the boy. "One day Billik brought a box of small powders—twelve in number—and gave them to my mother, saying, 'Here are those powders for Tillie.' My mother took them and put them in the pantry. I saw her give two of them to Tillie. The powders were white and sank in the water. About an hour after the powders were given Tillie would have vomiting spells. She would complain of feeling tired; of sharp pains in her stomach; her lips became parched, her eyes swelled out, and her skin took on a dark yellowish color."

These symptoms were given as those of each of the sisters.

Jerry told of several instances of Billik's charm working, in which the fortune teller went through all kinds of maneuvers with powders and mysterious black boxes.

Whipped for Criticising Billik.

"Once I accused him of being a faker, and he told my mother," said Jerry. "She thrashed me, and told me she would whip me again unless I talked nicely when Billik visited our house."

Jerry referred again to "the job," by which, he said, Billik meant the contemplated murder of his own mother, who, however, is still alive. Billik told the Vrzals that as soon as his mother died he would be able to pay back the $5,000 he had borrowed from Mrs. Vrzal. Billik repeatedly got money from Mrs. Vrzal "to finish the job."

LAWRENCE THINKS THE PUBLIC 'EASY'

"LIKE ROBBING A CHILD."

Publisher of 'The Tribune' Tells More Facts About Conspiracy of Newspapers.

The cross examination of Medill McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, was concluded last evening in Municipal Judge Fake's court.

The entire day was devoted to a wearisome repetition of matters previously covered by the witness, over and over again, and everybody found it hard to keep awake.

Attorneys for the Examiner, the Record-Herald, the Daily News, and the American, the newspapers which, with their representatives, are having a preliminary hearing under charges of conspiracy, worked hard to make the witness say something that could be twisted into a defense of the combination against THE TRIBUNE and sundry newsdealers.

They hadn't succeeded when court adjourned. Mr. McCormick simply told what he could recall of various conversations between himself and representatives of the Examiner and the Record-Herald.

Evidence Establishes Accusation.

Everything in the testimony further established the truth of the accusation upon which the complaints are based:

That the Examiner wanted to advance the price of its Sunday edition from 5 to 7 cents.

That the Record-Herald and through it the Daily News entered into a collusion with the Examiner against THE TRIBUNE when Mr. McCormick refused finally to have anything to do with the proposition to put the price up.

The defense endeavored to elicit from Mr. McCormick some admission that would tend to show that the entire controversy was based on a trade war between the Examiner and THE TRIBUNE.

Walter L. Fisher, who did most of the cross examining, brought out from the witness the admission that Frank B. Noyes, publisher of the Record-Herald, had told Mr. McCormick it was unwise for him to invade the outlying territory claimed by the Examiner with an early Sunday edition, printed on Friday. Mr. McCormick disagrees with Mr. Noyes, he said.

Plans of "The Tribune" Long Made.

Later, Attorney Francis Walker, personal counsel for Andrew M. Lawrence, publisher of the Examiner, undertook to drag from the witness an admission that the early Sunday edition of THE TRIBUNE had not been contemplated until it was learned that the Examiner was about to advance the price to 7 cents a copy in that territory.

"We had made arrangements to print the early Sunday edition months previous in December," Mr. McCormick answered. "The interview in which Mr. Hearst told me that he wanted to advance the price of Sunday papers to 7 cents was in March. I did not consider it necessary to advise the Examiner of our plans."

"But," said Mr. Walker, "you informed no one. Isn't it a fact that you were 'stringing' the Examiner into the belief that you had no intention of invading its special outlying territory?"

An objection to Mr. Walker's question by attorneys for the prosecution was sustained.

"In that territory, it may be explained, as in cities like Denver and Kansas City, the Sunday reached Sunday morning by newspaper printed on Saturday. The papers designed for it are printed about midnight on Friday, and around newspaper offices they are known as the "bull pup" edition.

Regarding Examiner Territory.

It appears from the evidence and the attitude of attorneys for the defense that the Examiner thought it had a mortgage on this territory.

"Didn't you get out circulars advertising a 5 cent 'bull pup' edition in Examiner territory?" persisted Mr. Walker. "Why did you push your edition in that territory?"

"It doesn't make any difference," Attorney Austrian said, after Judge Fake had sustained the objection, "whether THE TRIBUNE sold a Sunday paper in that territory printed on pink, or blue, or green paper, or for 1 cent, or 5 cents, or 10 cents."

Mr. McCormick explained that the 5 cent edition of THE TRIBUNE called "bull pup" had not been sold exclusively in the territory that the Examiner had fenced in for itself.

Mr. McCormick said he never had seen any of the five complaining newsdealers. He had no recollection of having ordered any one to speak to them concerning the complaints.

There was a determined effort on the part of the defense to make the witness admit that THE TRIBUNE was paying the expenses of the complaining witnesses—all newsdealers. Most of these questions were objected to by attorneys for the prosecution, and the objections sustained. Mr. McCormick answered them at one stage, however, as follows:

"I have said," he testified, "that the complainants would suffer no loss—not be out of pocket—by their loyalty to THE TRIBUNE."

Mr. Fisher, who is the special counsel for the Record-Herald, undertook to bring out that Mr. Noyes was acting entirely in the role of a peacemaker between THE TRIBUNE and the Examiner.

His cross examination elicited one further detail concerning the attitude of the Examiner toward the public, with reference to the advance from 5 to 7 cents for Sunday newspapers.

"Like Taking Candy from Child."

"Mr. Lawrence," said the witness, "said it would be the easiest thing in the world to get 7 cents from the public. He said it would be like taking candy from a child."

This was during the conference attended by Mr. McCormick, Mr. Lawrence, and Mr. Noyes in the Record-Herald office on May 1.

The nearest the combination came to forcing THE TRIBUNE into an agreement to raise the price of Sunday papers to 7 cents a copy, it developed, was at a conference in New York. Mr. McCormick, Mr. Noyes, and representatives of the Hearst papers were present.

"As the price of peace," said the witness, "I said I would agree to the 7 cent rate."

Later, after a conference with W. T. Adair, circulation manager of THE TRIBUNE, Mr. McCormick adhered to his original determination to stick to the 5 cent rate.

AGAIN SUED BY MRS. DAHLBERG.

William Grace Now Asked to Pay Fifty Thousand Dollars Because of Prosecution for Throwing Pepper.

Another chapter was added to the difficulties between Mrs. Augusta Dahlberg and William Grace when the woman filed a suit yesterday for $50,000 damages against the contractor. This latest action is based on alleged malicious prosecution. Three years ago Mrs. Dahlberg was accused by Mr. Grace of having thrown pepper into his eyes after the two had had several lawsuits. She was found guilty, and the case was carried to the Supreme court, where it was remanded for a new trial.

MANY WANT POLICEMEN'S JOBS.

Physical Examination Taken by Nearly Two Thousand Applicants for Positions as City Patrolmen.

President Elton Lower of the city civil service commission had charge yesterday of the physical examination of nearly 2,000 applicants for positions as patrolmen.

The physical tests, which probably will require three days, will be followed by the mental examination in a week or ten days.

Inspector Wheeler of the first police division is attending the conclave of the Knights Templars at Saratoga, N. Y., after which he expects to visit a number of eastern cities and the Jamestown exposition. He will return July 22.

HEARST ATTEMPT AT A NEWSPAPER TRUST.

[From the Chicago Journal.]

The public is not interested in the petty squabbles of newspaper editors that are being aired in some Chicago publications just now. The day has gone by when newspapers were run to serve personal ambitions for notoriety and attacks of their editors on one another occupied public attention. Those fulminations may have been exciting in the time when news was scarce, but they belonged to the frontier era in which they were delivered and are out of date in 1907.

But there is one feature of the newspaper quarrel now going on in Chicago in which the public is concerned. That is the attempt being made to increase the price of Sunday newspapers to 7 cents. The people think that 5 cents is quite enough to pay for the advertising circulars of which Sunday newspapers are composed, and they do not relish the idea of being forced to pay 40 per cent more every week.

The originator of this plan to gouge the public is, strange to say, that self-styled friend of the people and enemy of the trusts, W. R. Hearst. Anybody who reads his newspapers would suppose him to be the champion of the downtrodden, the little brother of the poor. Yet we find him not merely leading a movement to rob the poor but willing and eager to use criminal methods to make sure of robbing them.

Hearst not only conceived the idea that the people were buying Sunday newspapers too cheap and that more money could be squeezed out of them but he employed methods nothing short of criminal to force some of his competitors to join him in the conspiracy. His attacks on THE TRIBUNE were as illegal and immoral as anything that was ever done by the Standard Oil company or any other trust against which he thunders so loudly in his editorial columns.

It is to be hoped that Hearst's endeavors to introduce the tactics of dishonest trusts into the newspaper business will fail. The people do not like to be robbed by men who profess to be their friends.

MUST WAIT FOR NEW BRIDGE.

INSPECTION BY MINWEGEN.

Incidentally Lights on Most Crowded Section in City.

John Minwegen, vice president of the board of local improvements, took an automobile cruise yesterday afternoon through what, with good reason, might be called the "most crowded" district in Chicago. His object was to ascertain whether the demands of Ald. Stitts and some of his supporters for a bridge across the north branch of the Chicago river at North Carpenter or North Sangamon street are justified.

Mr. Minwegen decided that the city can get along without the proposed bridge for a long time yet. Incidentally, he found himself pursuing an unpremeditated study in sociology.

Accompanied by a TRIBUNE reporter, Mr. Minwegen set out from the city hall to study the congestion on North Halsted street, supposed to result from the scarcity of bridges. At North Sangamon street the conditions were most discouraging.

Would Cost Over a Million.

"It would cost more than $1,000,000 to put a bridge here, considering the nature of the approach and the fact that it would be necessary to condemn and cut away about twenty-five feet of the building of the Hanchett Paper company after we got the bridge across the river, so that vehicles could turn north on Hickory street or east on Haines street," said Mr. Minwegen, mentioning crooked passages between lumber piles and warehouses that are recognized as streets only by residents in the immediate neighborhood. "A new bridge is being built across the North Halsted street canal, and I am confident that if the complainers will have a little patience the congestion will be relieved thereby. Until this is completed the Elston avenue bridge can be used, necessitating a detour of only two blocks."

Mr. Minwegen then climbed to the top of the elevated tracks of the Wisconsin division of the Chicago and Northwestern railway and walked west to North Carpenter street. It was found that conditions for bridge building were even worse there than at North Sangamon street. Under two thick stone walls confining the six railroad tracks a subway would have to be bored at heavy expense, and then, after some kind of approach across surface switch tracks had been arranged, a big lumber yard would have to be traversed to reach the river. Mr. Minwegen was so impressed with the impracticability of the project that he turned the inspection in another direction.

Has the Ghetto Beaten.

"Come this way and I will show you something that has the ghetto beaten several different ways for congested population," he said, leading the way along the tracks to a little east of North Carpenter street.

Mr. Minwegen pointed to a patch of ground wedged in between tracks and literally "packed full" of little ramshackle dwellings, facing all points of the compass, and with scarcely room between them for a good sized cat. Some had doors in the upper story facing the track and little bench like porches where a multitude of children, mostly dirty, but healthy looking, sat so close to the track that the spinning drivers of passing locomotives almost grazed their knees.

A few of the children who played with chickens in little yards about thirty-six inches square were clean, and their cleanliness was conspicuous in the squalid place, innocent of a blade of grass.

Formerly a Picnic Ground.

"I can remember forty years back when this spot had trees and grass, and was called Elston's grove," said Mr. Minwegen. "People used to hold picnics here. In those days the Chicago river was so clear that fishes lived in it. If there is a patch of ground within the city limits that the average Chicagoan knows less about and that is more packed with humanity I should like to be taken around to see it."

SANATORIUM TO BE ENLARGED.

Provision Will Be Made to Accommodate Ten More Patients at Naperville Tuberculosis Camp.

A contract will be let this week for an additional "shack" accommodating ten patients at the Edward sanatorium, Naperville, Ill., bringing the capacity up to twenty-five patients.

The sanatorium was built as a memorial by Mrs. Keith Spalding in 1906 and was presented to the Chicago Tuberculosis institute on June 1, 1907. It is intended for patients in the early stages of tuberculosis.

A clinic for the free diagnosis and treatment of tuberculosis has been opened by the institute at Oliver house, 34 Vedder street. It is open to patients Mondays and Thursdays at 10 a. m. The institute intends to open other clinics in different quarters of the city.

DENEEN LINES UP FORCES FOR FIGHT

C.P. HITCH TO BE MANAGER

No Alliance with Senatorial Candidates, Independent Canvass to Be Made.

Gov. Deneen has asked a majority of the "big men" in the down state congressional districts to meet him in Springfield today, tomorrow, and Thursday. By Thursday night it is expected that the Deneen campaign organization will have been made, the plans of the governor's down state campaign for renomination made, and the governor will be able to come back to Chicago to tell the local republican managers just what backing he can expect outside of Chicago.

He spent yesterday at the Great Northern hotel, meeting both local and down state republicans. His local advisers, among them County Chairman James Reddick, inform him that there is no disposition on the part of the men who were with him in 1904 to break away from him now.

Chicago Managers to Confer.

It is planned to hold a conference of Chicago managers following the down state series, either the latter part of this week or the first of next and by that time it is probable that the Deneen and anti-Deneen lineups will be pretty well defined.

The men who will meet the governor in Springfield this week include some of the leading figures in the federal organization, such as United States Marshal Charles P. Hitch, who managed Senator Cullom's last campaign; Charles G. Eckhart, and representatives from the Prince, Graff, Rodenberg, Sterling, McKinney, and other congressional districts.

Mr. Hitch will be one of the Deneen campaign managers. Thus far there has been no hint of alliance, defensive or offensive, with regard to the senatorial contest. The governor has made it a point to keep hands off so far as Senator Hopkins' troubles are concerned.

"I am going on the assumption that I am running only for governor," he told one of his friends yesterday.

With a considerable portion of the federal organization working with him, this position has been the only one Mr. Deneen could occupy up to date, and his intention is to continue to occupy it until conditions change.

In each congressional district from which representatives will go to Springfield for the series of conferences, the congressional leader has been in consultation with the different county organizations.

Governor to Make Announcement.

The governor is preparing to make a formal announcement of his candidacy and to give out a list of the prominent republican politicians all over the state who will be with him, but does not guarantee that he will be able to do so before his return to Chicago at the close of the week.

His petitions, which are in circulation throughout the state, will not be brought to Chicago until next week.

The governor spent most of yesterday in consultation with James Pease, James Reddick, and Roy O. West at the Great Northern hotel, having moved his political headquarters there from the Union League club. Some of the politicians complained that the club was "too aristocratic," and longed for the more congenial atmosphere of a hotel.

Busse's Attitude Big Factor.

Whatever the facts in the local situation may be, the governor's friends in the Cook county organization are endeavoring to persuade him that Mayor Busse and the city hall organization will not oppose him. They bring word from the mayor himself to that effect, and the governor does not pretend to know what the facts are other than as they are presented to him.

If the city hall version be accepted, there will be a partisan contest to prevent Deneen from getting a majority of the Cook county delegates. Mr. Reddick says that all the leaders who were behind Deneen in 1904 are anxious to hold a conference and decide on such action as is acceptable to the majority. Such a course would give the majority of the delegates to Deneen if it included leaders who delivered their strength to the present governor, although personally they were not for him.

Mayor Busse was in this class in 1904, his delegates sticking with Deneen until the latter's nomination, although between the two men there never has been even political friendship.

The anti-Deneen men hear no rumors of peace, but plenty of rumors of war.

Other Politicians in Town.

W. A. Northcott, Cicero J. Lindly, Frank L. Smith, and a number of other down state republicans were in the city during the day, and with them came a story that Lieut. Gov. Lawrence Y. Sherman intends to return to the legislature next session, and to be a candidate for speaker of the house. Mr. Sherman says that if such be his purpose it has been decided without his approval.

Little Girl Dies from Bite of Dog.

HELEN BRASY

Helen Brasy, 4 years old, daughter of John Brasy, proprietor of a meat market at 23 Eugénie street, died yesterday at the Augustana hospital from the bites of a Great Dane, belonging to George Schade, a saloonkeeper at Mohawk and Eugénie streets, on May 31. Schade also was bitten, and is undergoing treatment. Schade denied that the dog was mad, but the attending physicians said hydrophobia caused death, and the coroner's jury so found. The dog was killed immediately after injuring the child.

CONVICTED BANKER ON PAROLE.

Victims of Pan-American Failure Hear of President Hunt's Release; Ex-Senator Mason Sponsor.

William H. Hunt, president of the wrecked Pan-American bank, has been on parole from Joliet penitentiary since March 5, but this did not become known outside until yesterday. The penitentiary authorities stated that he had been paroled to former Senator William E. Mason. The latter is absent from the city, but his legal associates stated that Hunt reported to him at the office once a month. The news of Hunt's freedom aroused much talk among those who suffered from the failure of the bank. The grounds of parole are explained to have been that he had served to within a year of his time and that many of his former creditors signed the petition for the parole.

A gentle pull—no strains or jerks—
The Royal starts—how easily it works.

The simplicity of the operation adds still another to the Royal's long list of detail triumphs. The women are not obliged to "ask a policeman" or wait for a chance chauffeur. The two illustrations show unmistakably the slight effort required.

And it being so easy for the women to crank and operate, the Royal becomes a necessity vehicle which may be pressed into service at all hours for any purpose. And the work it will perform will surpass that of a stable full of horses.

It will take the man of the house to his office after breakfast. The wife may shop and perform needful errands and in the afternoon make her calls and entertain her friends with a spin in the suburbs. In the evening she can go after her husband and at night the Royal will carry them to the theater and through the parks.

Moreover, throughout this program, the Royal's beauty adds to the pleasure of the ride. It is luxuriously appointed, convenient, modern, comfortable, silent as the Sphinx and altogether untiring. It's a royal car surely—not only in name, but in deed and appearance and durability.

AIDING PROFESSIONAL BEGGARS.

Not long ago it was announced by the police authorities that a concerted attack would be made on all professional beggars to drive them, if not to the uttermost parts of the earth, at least so far away from Chicago that they would no longer pester an industrious and hard working population. This announcement was received with long and loud applause save by the professional gentry at whom it was aimed, and immediate results were expected.

But it is quite apparent that no such measure of reform can be effective if it is not held up by public action as well as by public sentiment. It has been urged in the name of charity and helpfulness that there are classes of citizens who persistently refuse to contribute money to the support of professional beggars, while there are other citizens who, out of their largeness of heart, are easy marks for those who scorn to work. It is argued by men who are "panhandling" for publicity that the givers are to be commended for their generosity while the withholders are to be reproached for their selfishness and niggardliness. And yet the persons who foster laziness and encourage professional begging by their misplaced kindness are the ones who are impeding the action of the authorities and making more difficult the task of weeding out the professionals from the deserving poor. As long as people encourage begging and give money for the pretended wants of unknown and uninvestigated applicants, so long it may be expected that begging will flourish as a profession.

Prof. Sophocles of Harvard university was accustomed to excuse his lavish distribution of change to every beggar he met by the apologetic remark that it "kept his heart open." Individually this is sweet and touching, but it is not the less an egregious error. There is only one effective way of disposing of the professional and undeserving beggar, and that is in a general refusal to yield to his importunities. Charities are now so systematized and relief for the worthy is so easy to procure that it seems laziness rather than generosity to dismiss a beggar with a dime or greater or smaller coin. The citizen realizes that it is the quickest and easiest way of getting rid of a nuisance to toss him a piece of money, and the beggar counts on this as a means of getting money merely by asking for it.

So it would seem that a man's life is not full of good works and his whole nature radiant with beautiful charity because he aids a class of people who fatten on ill considered generosity. It is useless to call on the authorities to arrest vagrants and disperse professional beggars while the public is ministering to the vices of these pretended unfortunates.

NEVER MIND THE ADMIRAL.

A Japanese admiral is quoted in a Tokio paper as saying that if there were a war between Japan and the United States most of the American crews probably would desert, and that American naval officers, while brilliant figures at balls, are deficient in professional training and practice. According to a Washington dispatch army and navy men in that city angrily resent these observations and say that they have greatly increased the possibilities of war between the two countries. If the Japanese admiral used the language ascribed to him he was indiscreet and may be taken to task by his government for his indiscretion, as American officers have been by this government for talking too much. But as nobody in this country believes that American crews would desert or that American naval officers would prove themselves incompetent there is no reason for getting excited over the alleged interview.

It does not follow that there is tension between the United States and Japan because European papers say there is. There is a scarcity of stirring topics in Europe, and the papers can find no more interesting theme than the possibility of a war between the two countries. Some of them would like to see it, because the result would be the weakening of the two nations. There are many on the other side of the Atlantic who have no affection for either.

Americans have many things to talk about—the crops, the weather, baseball, and the railroads. They are not giving much thought to Japan or to the Pacific ocean, whose mastery is said in some quarters to be the prize for which the United States and Japan will contend in the distant future. The people have not asked the national government to send a fleet of battleships to that ocean, but they do not take enough interest in the subject to object to their being sent there.

The American people are in an eminently peaceful mood at this time. They are busied in the occupations and recreations of summer and will not let themselves be disturbed by the gloomy speculations of European journals or the uncivil and untruthful remarks of a Japanese admiral.

OBEY THE LAW.

Manifestly the traveling public appreciates the 2 cents a mile railroad rate. Otherwise passengers would not submit to the inconvenience to which they are put in their efforts to get it when journeying between Illinois and Iowa points. Each state has the 2 cents local rate, but the interstate rates based thereon have not been put in operation by the roads. Therefore, a man going from Chicago to some Iowa point on the Burlington road in order to get the lower fare to which he is entitled has to buy a ticket to Burlington. There he leaves his car, buys a ticket to his Iowa destination, has his baggage rechecked, and, if he has time to do all that during the five minutes' wait, goes on to the end of his journey. Burlington dispatches tell of the crowds at the ticket window and the inability of the ticket agents to attend to all. Some have to miss their trains or go without tickets.

The excuse of the railroads is that it is a difficult and complicated matter to make out the new interstate rates. They say that if fares were based exclusively on mileage the longest route to a competing point would charge more than its competitors, and hence would get no business. This means that some roads will have to charge less than 2 cents a mile to get their share of the traffic. There has to be a delicate process of intricate adjustment, it is said, to meet the difficulties presented by the existence of competing points.

All this does not alter the fact that the traveling public is entitled to 2 cent interstate rates between such states as Iowa and Illinois or Illinois and Indiana and Ohio. The fact that some roads may find themselves compelled to charge less than 2 cents a mile does not affect the right of the public to be carried at 2 cents. Let the railroads begin by giving the public what it has a right to demand and then settle at their leisure whatever questions there may be among themselves.

Compelling a passenger to stop at the state line, buy another ticket, and recheck his baggage in order to get the lower fare the law entitles him to is shabby business for a railroad to engage in. It is time for the interstate commerce commission to take notice of what is going on in this part of the country.

MARS.

The blood red star named by the ancients in honor of the god of war and represented by Dante as the celestial home of the souls of the Crusaders is the object of especial interest just now. The astronomers who prefer the repetition of old lore to the discovery of new facts may pour contempt upon what they call sensational astronomy, but men of the reputation of Pickering of Harverd and Todd of Amherst are taking advantage of the nearness of the planet to store away material in the form of photographic plates for future study. The public may perhaps expect too much from the work of the astronomers, but it is conceivable that some knowledge may be added to the world's stock.

The interest in Mars felt by the layman is due to the human element. Other planets, with possibly one exception, are known to be incapable of supporting the existence of human beings like ourselves. So far as science shows there is no reason why human life or the life of some kind of beings of a high order of intelligence should not exist on Mars. Moreover, the so-called canals of Mars canbot be explained on any theory based upon known facts, but are easily explicable if Mars is inhabited by sentient beings. The judgment of some astronomers that the canals have no real existence and that the appearance of canals is due to some optical illusion is more difficult to accept than a belief in the artificial character of the canals. The adverse argument that the canals are too broad for real canals has been met by the suggestion that they are really beds of vegetation sustained by irrigation, which seems plausible.

But one thing is certain. The science of optics will have to progress much further before any glass will reveal the appearance of living beings on Mars. The question whether there are any such beings there will be settled long before the possibility of seeing them is within reach. There will be no message from Mars this year. An advance in the construction of telescopes in the same ratio as the advance from Galileo's glass to the Yerkes telescope may take as long. It is always possible, however, that some new discovery may shorten the time and that the next century may see the question definitely settled.

In the meantime there is no barrier of facts in the way of the nimble imagination of the novelist. He may give his fancy free rein, and find in Mars the precise degree of civilization and morals that he thinks would make interesting reading. That is not sensational astronomy, but dreaming, and deludes no one.

SOME USES OF A BRASS BAND.

Perhaps the worst that can be said of a brass band—a good brass band—is that it is taken as connoting war and the martial spirit, that it is not infrequently a little too noisy for delicate nerves, and that its tendency is away from the things that conduce to a gentle and tranquil mood. So the brass band is associated with such functions of human life as have not been connected with spiritual development and religious progress.

And yet it does not follow that the brass band may not serve a specific purpose for good in connection with active church work. Even a deep rooted custom may be overturned, and it is quite plain, having been emphasized by the Wagnerian movement, that music stands for what the humor or fancy of the composer or listener may dictate. For many years, among certain strict religionists, the organ with its tremendous volume of sound was regarded as little better than an instrument of sin, much more to be deplored, in fact, than is the obstreperous brass band of today. Custom sanctified the use of the organ just as it may permit the employment of the band, and it may be pointed out significantly that for the use of the church militant the brass band has special advantages which accrue to it at once from popular conception of its characteristics.

The organ, from public familiarity, has ceased to be a means of attracting and holding large congregations, and it may be that as soon as the novelty of the brass band wears away other methods must be employed to carry on the good work. But this does not affect the present question or condition or interfere with temporary efficacy. The Salvation army has made good use of its musical instruments, and its means of attracting popular attention are apparently as powerful as ever. It would be going a little too far to characterize the use of a brass band at a sacred service as extreme sensationalism, even if sensational measures are deemed necessary to promote desirable ends, and the most severe criticism can complain only of unconventionality, which may become so common as to pass without protest. Every kind of reform is a breaking away from the things conventional.

PASTEURIZING MILK.

Some of the most prominent medical men of the country have joined in a movement to secure pasteurization of milk as a precaution against the spread of disease. Their report is being circulated with the indorsement of the chief of the government bureau of animal industry and the secretary of agriculture. With such official support it cannot fail to attract widespread attention.

There has been sharp difference of opinion among physicians regarding pasteurization of milk. This divergence of view is fully recognized by the report. Attention is called to an exhaustive study made by one of the government officials who has weighed the arguments on both sides and has reached the conclusion that the advantages so far overbalance the disadvantages as to warrant the recommendation that there be compulsory pasteurization of all milk not certified.

Certification of milk is attended by certain requirements, including one that the milk is that of cows proved free from tuberculosis by the tuberculin test. Certification, however, while making the milk reasonably safe, is not counted an absolute protection from disease germs. Pasteurization is recommended to all who wish to feel perfectly secure.

The general acceptance of the suggestions of this report means that pasteurizing plants must be established where large quantities of milk are handled. But that necessity for the milk dealer need not disturb the housekeeper, since the same results may be obtained by bringing the milk used in the home to the boiling point, thus destroying the germs of disease which it may contain.

It has not been many months since Chicago experienced much alarm because of a scarlet fever epidemic, which was believed to have had a starting point in dairies where that disease had raged. The report is outspoken against the use of raw milk, declaring that cholera infantum, scarlet fever, and diphtheria have been spread in this way, and that typhoid fever, tuberculosis, and other infectious diseases have resulted from carelessness in this respect.

The fight for a pure milk supply is one which has to be kept up all the time by the city authorities. The indorsements given the report of the physicians behind the movement for pasteurization make it highly desirable that the Chicago officials take up the matter promptly. There are plenty of conditions in a large city which work against the health of the people. If safety in connection with the important element of the milk supply is possible, every effort should be made to bring the methods of such safety to the attention of housekeepers and to use official authority to compel the dealers to use necessary precautions.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1907: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

SIR HARRY MACLEAN, the Scotch commander in chief of the Moorish army, is described in all the dispatches announcing his treacherous capture by the insurgent chief Raisuli as a soldier of fortune and a mere adventurer. It may be well, therefore, to recall the fact that he is the scion of an ancient and illustrious house of the Scottish aristocracy, being a younger brother of the MacLaine of Loch Buie, head of the grand old Scotch clan of MacLaine, the founder of which was Gillean of the Battle Ax, one of the most notable figures in Scottish annals of the twelfth century. A junior branch of the family is headed by Sir Fitzroy MacLean, whose baronetcy dates from 1682, and the possessions of the house comprise, among other things, the greater part of the island of Mull.

Sir Harry himself was formerly a captain of the Sixty-ninth regiment of infantry in the British army, served as a member of the Red river expedition in Canada under Lord Wolseley, and left the English service while stationed at Gibraltar to take command of the late sultan of Morocco's bodyguard, being advanced in course of time to the position of generalissimo. The kaid, as he is called in Morocco, has never found it necessary to become a Moslem in order to strengthen his position, and, although the Moors are, perhaps, the most fanatical of all the followers of the Prophet, the fact that he has remained a strict Presbyterian has never been allowed to interfere with their excellent relations with this fine old Scotchman.

Sir Harry has had a good deal of domestic trouble. His marriage was an unfortunate one, and the social position of the now ex-Lady MacLean was such, both prior and subsequent to becoming his wife, that nobody at Gibraltar, and none of the European ladies at Tangier, would consent to hold any social intercourse with her, while, in spite of the powerful position and the popularity of her husband, she was ignored by all the foreign legations. Three years ago Sir Harry was compelled to divorce her, her own daughters testifying against her, the co-respondent being a man of the name of Spencer Lewis Mortimer.

Mingled amusement and indignation prevail at the court of Madrid in connection with the frauds perpetrated on the public by unscrupulous photographers, who have been selling to various publications, and to the foreign and American press, alleged photographic representations of the ceremony of the presentation of the baby prince of the Asturias, immediately after his birth, to the assembled dignitaries of the realm and foreign ambassadors by his father, King Alfonso. Not only from one but from several friends high in office who were present on that occasion, as well as from members of the diplomatic corps, I learn positively that no photograph of the ceremony in question was ever made. Proof of this is afforded by the fact that each picture of the ceremony published as an alleged photograph represents the affair as having occurred in a different room. Several of the pictures portray the queen mother, the Infanta Isabella, and the Infant Fernando and his wife, the Infanta Maria Theresa, as being present. Now, neither the queen mother nor the Infanta Isabella was with the king when he presented his son to his ministers and the foreign ambassadors, but only the Infanta Eulalie and the duchess of San Carlos, the Camarera mayor, or grand mistress of the robes, both eventually protesting against keeping any longer in the room the baby, who was moving about in the deep silver platter lined with soft cotton partly covered with rare old lace, which left the face, arms, and breast exposed to view. Prince Fernando and his consort, far from being present, were quarantined in a remote wing of the palace, being ill at the time with measles.

Some of the photographs show the royal infant on the platter as devoid of clothes, while others again portray him as covered. Then, too, the imaginative artists who show three Chinese diplomats as present in their robes and a young German officer in all the glory of the uniform of a subaltern of the Prussian guard du corps, are evidently unaware that only the ambassadors and chiefs of missions were present. Consequently, there was but one Chinaman, while the Prussian officer in question was de trop.

Finally, some of the pictures show the American minister as present in evening dress, while others ignore him altogether. As a matter of fact, the United States minister was present in full evening dress. It is true that he was out driving when the summons to the palace came. But he found, on inquiry, that he had still time to return to his legation and to don the regulation costume for occasions of ceremony at the court of Madrid where American diplomats are concerned—namely: evening dress, and the story that he was present on the occasion in morning dress, owing to his not having had time to return to the legation to make the change, turns out to be unfounded. It is a story originating at Madrid which it is quite as much of a pity to spoil as the popular belief in the alleged photographs of the ceremony of presentation. But historical accuracy demands that the exact truth should be placed on record. Not that much harm would have been done if Minister Collier had appeared in the guise attributed to him by the story. For he is so punctilious that the king would have known that only the desire to be on hand to present his own personal congratulations and the good wishes of the nation which he so ably represents on such a momentous occasion would have prompted him to sacrifice ceremony sooner than to be missing from the function. Moreover, he has become persona gratissima with the young monarch, and with the two queens, and a great favorite in Madrilene society.

Among the most ridiculous stories that have ever found their way across the Atlantic is that to the effect that Pius X. had offered to bestow upon J. Pierpont Morgan the dignity of a prince of the holy Roman empire. Aside from the fact that Mr. Morgan is about the last man in the world who would be willing to accept a foreign title of this kind, it may be pointed out that the holy Roman empire came to an end at the close of the eighteenth century, when it was wiped out of existence for all time by Emperor Napoleon. Consequently, there have been no princes, or counts, or barons of the holy Roman empire created since then. The pope confers the title of prince, but it is a purely papal honor, and, instead of being "of the holy Roman empire," it is merely "of the court of the Lateran and of the Apostolic palace." Nor is it necessary that Mr. Morgan should become a convert to Roman Catholicism in order to obtain an honor of this kind. For there are quite a number of Hebrew financiers in Paris who, by gifts to the church and by the payment of the heavy registration fees at the vatican, have obtained without difficulty the papal title of count.

Inasmuch as Baron Rudolph von Konig is a frequent visitor to this country, where he has business interests, and where he has enjoyed the courtesies of several important clubs, it may be as well to mention that he has just been proclaimed from the bench as a scoundrel by Sir William Grantham, the presiding Supreme court judge, in a trial in the king's bench division of the High Court of Justice in London. The baron was the defendant in a particularly disgraceful case of betrayal, breach of promise, and abandonment, which resulted in judgment against the baron. The proceedings in court shed so disgraceful a light upon the baron's antecedents and mode of life that they should be carefully considered before he is ever again admitted as a guest or as a temporary member to any American club where he is liable to be brought into contact with American men of honor and of breeding.

Uniforms for Telephone Collectors.

Chicago, July 8, 1907.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Would suggest the putting of uniforms on all telephone collectors, particularly collectors visiting the residence districts, for obvious reasons. J. J. ROSENCRANS.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS

The performances now being given by the Ben Greet players at Scammon garden and in Mandel hall are attracting large audiences, and artistically and financially the engagement is one of the most successful that Mr. Greet has ever played in Chicago. The al fresco stage at Scammon garden is an ideal setting for the presentment of the outdoor scenes in the several Shakspearean dramas included in the repertoire, and the combinations of the natural foliage and the artistic lighting effects employed make a scene truly picturesque. Last evening the threatening clouds drove both players and audience to the shelter of Mandel hall, where the second and final week was ushered in with a performance of "Much Ado About Nothing."

A rendition of the merry comedy was given which was spirited and refreshing, the condensed version used being arranged with care. The necessary cutting, required to bring the play within the time limit required for a performance where there are no changes of scene and consequently no waits of any length, in no way detracted from the interest or hindered the development of the plot, and all moved smoothly and easily.

With particular zest and spirit were the arbor scenes enacted, although this portion of the performance could be made even more effective if a change in the stage arrangement brought Benedick, and, in turn, Beatrice, into the full view of the audience. As it is they are hidden in the wings, and their actions are obscured to the majority of the audience.

Mr. Greet presented a Benedick that was a coxcomb and a dandy, inclined toward sentiment, but wanting in the wit which rightfully belongs to the character. Miss Sybil Thorndike was a vivacious and sprightly Beatrice, nimble of tongue and of wit, but womanly and attractive withal. The Hero of Miss Lucia Cole was sympathetic and appealing. Sydney Greenstreet played Dogberry in a ponderous fashion. Frederick Sargent was a dashing Don Pedro, Fritz Leiber an acceptable Don John, and Percy Waram a satisfactory Claudio.

At Ravinia park tonight, in conjunction with the New York Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be played by the Greet company. The entire Mendelssohn score will be used and the performance will be given in the open air. The arrangement of plays for the remaining evenings of the week at Scammon garden is as follows: Wednesday, "A Comedy of Errors"; Thursday, "The Tempest"; Friday, "The Merry Wives of Windsor"; and Saturday, "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

U.S. RULES THE PACIFIC, SAYS BISHOP FALLOWS.

Chicago Churchman Declares Oriental and Occidental Nations Must Keep Their Hands Off the Philippines.

"Our other island possessions make the Pacific ocean ours. We intend to be 'lords of the main' if we have to create a navy second to none that floats."

So declared Bishop Fallows of Chicago here today, in an address at the unveiling of the Hicks monument to the Wisconsin soldiers of the civil war.

Wars Yet to Come.

Bishop Fallows made the sensational declaration near the close of an address in which he had reviewed the martial history of the United States. He had praised the valor of the soldiers who had fought under the stars and stripes. Then he struck a higher note, saying:

"A maudlin sentimentality, unenlightened and unreasoning, may decry the military spirit by dreaming of immediate international peace, but many a holy war for liberty and righteousness is yet to be waged. The Hague conference will be prolific of results in the direction of arbitration and perhaps of partial disarmament, but there are a thousand millions of people who are being fired by lawless ambition and the lust of conflict who must yet be reckoned with by civilized and Christian peoples.

Police Force of the World.

"Our clear destiny now is to become the police force of the world. We have been pushed to the front by a divine, irresistible power. When we took the Philippines we grasped a live wire which we could not let go. But the hand of omnipotence forced it into our hands and holds it there still.

"Sneering skeptics said: 'Your Filipino is half child, half devil.' Away with him.' An overruling providence says: 'Then help make him half man and half angel.' It is a stupendous task, with our own unsolved race problem, to undertake. But it cannot be helped. Where much is given much is required. The mightiest tasks are for the mightiest nations."

"The experience of unpreparedness of the soldiers of the civil war and in part of the Spanish-American war shall never be repeated. The national guard of the respective states shall be ready for every emergency.

Wants Army of 2,000,000.

"We must have 2,000,000 men in training in the United States. These must be held in honor as the volunteer soldiery of the nation. He who puts contempt on the uniform either of the regular or the volunteer force by any overt act should meet with summary justice. The regular army is to be the leavening force in this great army of volunteers, and as leaven it must always be small in comparison with the mighty mass to be leavened.

"Legislatures, labor unions, corporations, employers, and private citizens should be lavish with their material aid and sympathy and coöperation in promoting the efficiency and welfare of these soldier boys from our own homes.

Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget that American soldiers were the saviors of the country in the days that are gone, and, in the strife of arms, American soldiers, north and south, must be its saviors in the days to come."

The bronze monument unveiled today was the gift to the city of Oshkosh by John Hicks, United States minister to Chile. It is the work of Chevalier Gaetano Trentanove, Florence, Italy. It consists of a bronze group ten feet in height, surmounting a stone pedestal fifteen feet in height. There are three figures—an officer, a private, and a bugler. They are posed to suggest an advance on the position of the enemy.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

[From the Baltimore Sun.]

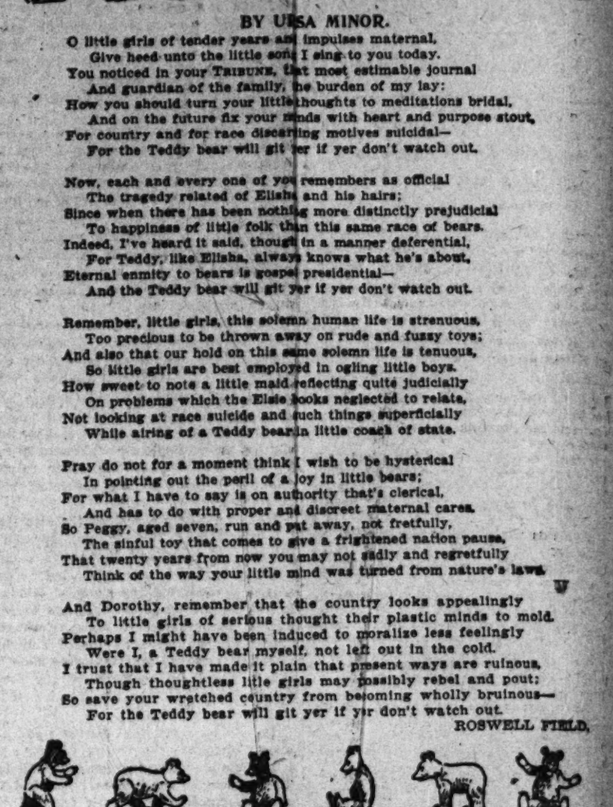
"It's queer how little most people know about little things," said a quarrelsome man not long since. "Some day I am going to start a school where only the minutiæ of life will be taught—how to button the coat when you put it on, how to brush a hat, and so on.

"Not one in a hundred persons knows it is a mistake to button the bottom of a coat first. The top button should be the first on, otherwise the shape of the coat, even if it is carefully tailored, is seriously affected. This little pointer alone would save many persons a lot of money.

"A hat should always be brushed in the direction opposite to the hands of a clock. Otherwise the pile of the felt is taken out and the hat given a cheap, poor appearance. Of course, with straw this does not apply.

"In the care of paste, too, it is odd how little is known by most people. The best way to buy paste nowadays is in the water-well jars put up by all large manufacturers. Then when such a jar is gotten keep the well always half full of water. If paste becomes hard, too, from lack of use stir it with a stick until it has proper consistency. If obdurate add a little water. If still obdurate after this add a little glycerin and water. This will put it in good condition.

"Altogether, if people only knew more about the little things of life and less of the pretentious and immaterial ones, it would be a far happier place to live in—this world we have down here."



BY ULSA MINOR.

Give heed unto the little song I sing to you today.
You noticed in your TRIBUNE, that most estimable journal
And guardian of the family, the burden of my lay:
How you should turn your little thoughts to meditations bridal,
And on the future fix your minds with heart and purpose stout,
For country and for race discerning motives suicidal—
For the Teddy bear will git yer if yer don't watch out.

Now, each and every one of you remembers as official
The tragedy related of Elisha and his hairs;
Since when there has been nothing more distinctly prejudicial
To happiness of little folk than this same race of bears.
Indeed, I've heard it said, though in a manner deferential,
For Teddy, like Elisha, always knows what he's about,
Eternal enmity to bears is gospel presidential—
And the Teddy bear will git yer if yer don't watch out.

Too precious to be thrown away on rude and fussy toys;
And also that our hold on this same solemn life is tenuous,
How sweet to note a little maid reflecting quite judicially
On problems which the Elsie books neglected to relate,
Not looking at race suicide and such things superficially

Pray do not for a moment think I wish to be hysterical
For what I have to say is on authority that's clerical,
And has to do with proper and discreet maternal cares.
So Peggy, aged seven, run and pat away, not fretfully,
The sinful toy that comes to give a frightened nation pause,
That twenty years from now you may not sadly and regretfully
Think of the way your little mind was turned from nature's laws.

Perhaps I might have been induced to moralize less feelingly
Were I, a Teddy bear myself, not left out in the cold.
I trust that I have made it plain that present ways are ruinous,
Though thoughtless little girls may possibly rebel and pout;
So save your wretched country from becoming wholly bruinous—

CHICAGO EXPLORER FINDS OLD TEMPLE.

Prof. Breasted, Searching in Egypt, Unearths Ruins of Structure Thirty-three Centuries Old, Built by Ikhnaton, Greatest of Pharaohs.

Prof. James H. Breasted of the University of Chicago, searching among the buried treasures of Egypt, has found the ancient temple of Ikhnaton, the greatest of the Pharaohs, for which scientists have searched for many centuries. He unearthed the find in Nubia, near the third cataract of the Nile, and it is believed the discovery will be a great event in science.

Word from Prof. Breasted was received yesterday by Prof. Robert F. Harper, director of the University of Chicago oriental exploration fund, under whose direction Prof. Breasted is working. The news came in a fifty page letter, which will be published in the second volume of the memorial works of the late William Rainey Harper, entitled "Old Testament and Semitic Studies."

Discovery Not Expected.

Prof. Breasted's discovery was unexpected. He was not searching for the ancient temple, which is thirty-three centuries old, and which marks the beginnings of monotheism in Egypt. In fact, the temple and the ruins of the city surrounding it, as well as many of the inscriptions of the temple, have been known for a long time. None of the previous scientists who have chanced upon the site, however, recognized it to be the relic of the famous Egyptian monarch after whom it was named.

They were deceived by stucco work which covered many of the inscriptions. This is explained in Prof. Breasted's letter, which in part was as follows:

"The temple always has been called the temple of Sesebi. It lies in the heart of the most inaccessible region of Nubia. It is situated at the foot of the third cataract of the Nile, a few miles below the Kadlar rapids, on the west side of the river, opposite the residence of the mamur of the district. It is separated from the north by the third cataract and from the south by the terrible rapids of the second cataract."

Almost Lost on Wide Plain.

"Looking southwestward from the hill of Sesebi, the temple and the ancient city appear lost in the wide plain which stretches west from the Nile to the distant hills of the Sahara. At the time I made my observations the air was so obscured by flying dust and sand that the horizon was never clearly visible.

"In the front half of the temple there are two columned halls, one behind the other, each having eight columns in two transverse rows. Those of the rear hall have now disappeared. In the first hall three columns stand in the second row.

"A deeply cut disk at the top in the center of Seti's relief puzzled me. I conjectured that it was one of the deeply cut sun disks usually appearing in Ikhnaton's adoration scenes, but I wondered how I could prove it. I was suddenly confronted by the familiar outlines of Ikhnaton's figure, peculiar and unmistakable.

"These were palimpsest columns and this was a temple of a great revolutionary, the first and only one known in Nubia. No other columns of this great heretic anywhere have escaped destruction.

Royal Figures Not Erased.

"When this column was appropriated by Seti I. his sculptors chiseled out the reliefs of Ikhnaton as far as possible, but the royal figures and especially the sun disks could not be completely erased, while some smaller things, like the titles of Ikhnaton's queen, were overlooked or neglected. When the work of the erasure and of destruction was complete the defaced surface of the column was filled out, patched, and smoothed with stucco.

"The reliefs of Seti were then sculptured upon this new surface, partially in the hard stucco and partially in the sandstone of the column. Fresh coloring over the whole concealed the stucco work, and the fraud was only discernible when the colors had disappeared and the weather of centuries had loosened all the stucco till the last vestige of it had fallen out."

Prof. Breasted is now in Berlin. He will go again to Egypt before returning to Chicago next year. He will probably not return to the university until the fall of 1908.

Naked Truth.

[From Lippincott's Magazine.]

Francis Wilson tells of an encounter of wits that took place between the late Eugene Field and a New York woman.

It was at dinner, and the woman was in evening dress, which was decollete. After a skirmish between the two relative to the respective merits of a well known author, it would seem that Field came off second best.

"O, Mr. Field," exclaimed the woman, exultantly, "you must admit that you are fairly beaten at your own game!"

Field bowed politely, and, with a smile, promptly rejoined: "At any rate, Miss Blank, I have one consolation; you can't laugh at me in your sleeve."

It Would Be Asking a Good Deal.

Second Tramp—"So would I. I wouldn't have the nerve to ask for a night's lodging if the nights were six months long."—Smart Set.

NARRATIVES PICKED UP ON SUMMER VACATIONS.

Good Stories of Life in the Open Brought by Readers of The Tribune from Fishing Trips and Camp Fires.

Interesting, terse, pointed yarns about rare fishing experiences or other exploits of the camp are sought for this department. You have at least heard a clever story while on your vacation, if you were not a factor in its making. Write the story—not over 250 words—and send it to THE TRIBUNE. Those used will be paid for at regular rates. Unavailable manuscripts cannot be returned.

Had Three Fish on One Hook; Got Them All.

IN the early days of the country the officers and men serving at frontier military stations often indulged in hunting and fishing expeditions. "On one of these occasions, away back in the '50s," said Gen. Dodge at a "camp fire" recently, "I saw a minnow one day in a Texas stream. A small bass took the bait, followed almost instantly by a larger fish taking both bass and minnow. I had three fish on my hook when I got it out of the water," continued the general, "an incident," he added, gravely, "without a parallel, I imagine, in the annals of fishing."

In one of the general's hunting expeditions his companion risked a long shot at a great black bear, followed by a cub, moving leisurely along on the further bank of a wide stream, quite unconscious of the presence of the hunters. The shot evidently struck the animal, but the missile was so far spent that it did little injury. The beast stopped instantly when the ball struck and scratched her side industriously for a moment, and then, turning upon the cub, belabored it unmercifully, evidently under the impression that it was the author of the annoyance to which she had been subjected.

Fish Gets Away; Caught Again Half Hour Later.

WHILE out at Fox lake in the early part of May, 1905, my wife and I were fishing in front of Lippincott's for perch, as we had been fishing for bass without results all morning. We were anchored and had several poles out. On one of them I had a frog, paying more attention to the lines baited with worms. When in a little while I saw the pole on which the frog was bait almost in two, I dropped my line and got hold of the other pole, when to my surprise I saw a large fish, which turned, and twisted, and finally broke away. Of course I was disappointed. After half an hour I picked up anchor and was slowly rowing back and trolling to the hotel when a jerk on the line told me something was on the hook. I slowly pulled in, and when I landed the fish I saw something sticking out of his large mouth, and it was nothing more nor less than the same identical hook that he broke away from while still fishing. It turned out to be a fifteen pound pickerel.

"Musky" Had Old Fisherman by His Toe.

"TALKING about fishing," said Bill Pike as he lit his pipe and pushed his feet up near the campfire in the northern part of Wisconsin, where a dozen of us had been for a week angling, "reminds me of how old Si Jenks caught his thirty-seven pound muskellunge."

We all craned our necks and maintained discreet silence. Bill continued:

"Gol ding, boys, it was great the way old Si got him. When Si fished he always stuck his bare feet in the water, and on this occasion he planted himself as usual, and the rest of us went on, but were called back to Si by the almightiest yellin' ever you heard. When we got to Si he was in midstream with just his nose out of water.

"We looked on with our eyes stickin' out like door knobs. Then we seen something had had hold of Si, and was towin' him downstream. We rushed out with a boat and found the thirty-seven pound muskie had Si's big toe in his mouth, and Si crooked his toe in such a way that the fish couldn't let go. We landed both of them, but Si's toe was so lacerated and chawed we had to amputate it then and there."

HOW SOME FISH SHRINK.

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

Are wondrous large, I ween;
The fish that just escape his net
Are fish I've never seen.
And when he illustrates their size,
Their length we cannot miss;
Always the ones that get away
Are just as Big as this.

But, O, the fish that father brings
To us at close of day
Must be a different class to those

CHILDREN AMAZED BY COWS.

Visit of Tenement Infants to Summer Camp Delights Them.

EIGHT TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Previously acknowledged	$983.80
Mrs. Edward A. Stonehill	3.00
Mrs. John Gibbons	10.00
Total	$996.80

Contributions in aid of "The Tribune's" free summer charities—the hospital for convalescents and the free distribution of ice—may be mailed to "The Tribune" office. Checks should be made payable to J. E. Rawson, treasurer. All contributions will be acknowledged promptly.

Eight little children of the tenements who never had been in the country before were taken yesterday to THE TRIBUNE summer hospital at Algonquin, where, with the aid of clean, fresh air, wholesome food, trained nursing, and medical treatment, they will be restored to health and strength.

"O look at the trees, they're so big," cried little Edith Mulaney, as she was lifted to the ground from the bus and carried to a hospital tent. "I never saw such big trees before—I didn't know they growed so big."

"Haven't you ever been in a park?" asked the nurse, kindly. "Haven't you ever been at Lincoln or Garfield park?"

"No, I never was," replied the child, wistfully, "but I've heard of them. Mamma said she was going to take me once, but she lost her place and so she couldn't, cause it costs money to go to the park, she says."

Amazed at Sight of Cows.

"There's a cow!" screamed little Myrtle Jelinek, hobbling over to the crest of the hill on her crutches so she could look into the valley where the cows were grazing. "It looks just like the pictures in the reader."

"That's where we get the milk from," volunteered Susie Blixt, who serves as the guide to newcomers. "That cow's a Jersey, and she gives warm milk."

The nurse said she'd go, and so those of the children who were able spent the first half hour of their visit inspecting the horses and chickens, and ducks in the barnyard. They were told that after they got well enough the gray horse would take them for a ride. The whole day was spent on the greensward in front of the tents, where the children gathered in their wheel chairs and let the country air and the sunshine do what medicine wouldn't do for them in their humble homes.

Ice Delivered at Tenements.

And while the eight new patients at the hospital camp were enjoying their first day in the country, THE TRIBUNE ice wagons were delivering ice to over a thousand homes of the tenement districts—ice to keep the babies' milk fresh and sweet in spite of the hot weather. The demand for ice was so great in some sections that the wagons were compelled to make two trips—the regular morning trip and an extra trip in the afternoon.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

An engagement of interest to Chicagoans which has just been announced is that of Miss Caroline McCormick, daughter of Mr. William McCormick of Baltimore, formerly of Chicago, to Mr. Francis Louis Slade of New York. Miss McCormick, who is the sister of Mrs. Herbert S. Stone, now is the guest of Mrs. Emmons Blaine.

Mr. John T. Dale of Winnetka announces the engagement of his daughter, Jane, to Mr. William W. Power of Glencoe. The marriage will take place in the early fall.

The marriage of Miss Gwendolin Kerby, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Cornwell Kerby, to Mr. Richard Burton of Cairo, Egypt, son of Lady Edmund Buckley, who is the wife of Sir Edmund Buckley, baronet and member of parliament, will take place tomorrow at the residence of the bride's mother, 220 East Fiftieth street. The young couple met two years ago at Shepheard's hotel in Cairo, where Mr. Burton was stationed as an engineer for the British government. Mr. and Mrs. Burton will leave Chicago immediately after the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Charles H. Bixby, rector emeritus of St. Paul's Episcopal church. They will go to London and thence to the country house of Sir Edmund and Lady Buckley, where they will visit prior to going to Cairo, where they will reside.

A plan to build an exclusive yachting and canoeing club along the north shore, about midway between the Saddle and Cycle club and the Exmoor, is being discussed by south side society folk. According to present plans, which are only tentative, the club is to be modeled after the South Shore Country club, although not so pretentious. An initial membership of fifty is proposed, which will be increased to a 300 limit later on.

The armory at Sixteenth street and Michigan avenue has been secured by the managers of the "Bazaar of Nations," which is to be given Nov. 7, 8, and 9 for the benefit of Wesley hospital. The following names have been added to the list of managers:

Mrs. John R. Thompson, Mrs. Walter Pond,
Mrs. Wilson E. Craig, Mrs. Frederick Becker.
Mrs. Oliver H. Horton,

Mrs. Charles Gilbert Comstock Jr., formerly Miss Helen Spencer, will hold her first post-nuptial at home today at 4847 Lake avenue. Her sister, Mrs. J. P. Smith of Highland Park, will receive with her.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey Ross will go to Wequetonsing, Mich., next week to visit Mrs. Clinton Locke at her summer place, Lockshaven.

Mrs. Frank Crawford Letts, 1014 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston, will entertain at bridge tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. George Y. Banzet of Evanston have returned from a week in Moline, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gates Allen.

Mrs. Otto Young has left London for Paris to join Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Martin Jr., who went earlier by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keep II. are at Lake Geneva this year. Mrs. Keep's mother, Mrs. Edmund Burke, has been spending the last few days with her.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hall, 3545 Grand boulevard, are spending a few weeks in Atlantic City prior to their departure for Europe.

ROSES COST HIM $1,000 EACH.

R. W. Bailey, Board of Trade Operator, Pays Old Creditors in Full; Members Show Appreciation.

R. W. Bailey, the board of trade operator, who on Saturday sent out about $38,000 in checks liquidating debts obligated fourteen years ago in a raid on lard by big packing interests, yesterday received from his fellow members fifty-eight American beauty roses—a rose for every $1,000 paid by him.

The big bunch of flowers was accompanied by a talk of strong appreciation from George F. Stone, the secretary of the exchange. Mr. Stone's speech called forth unanimous applause from the assembled traders and the suggestion of moisture to Mr. Bailey's eyes. Mr. Bailey's checks represented 100 cents on the dollar, plus interest for fourteen years.

Swift & Company's

For Each Woman, According to Her Needs.

In the LINEN CLOSET

Marriage Chest.

It is in the embellishing of household furnishings that western nations excel. Only those who have seen a German marriage chest have any idea how wonderfully beautiful these domestic belongings may be made. It was once my good fortune to occupy temporarily the house of a German woman of high rank. Her marriage portion of linen was both an inspiration and an education. The house was most liberally supplied, but not a quarter of the box had been drawn upon. There was enough and to spare left for future generations.

Everything was tied in bundles of dozens with pink linen tape and carefully labeled, and while the texture and designs used in the napery were marvelously beautiful and varied, yet the embroidered markings with initials and coronets and running vine designs tempted a spirit of covetousness hard to control. From the dark blue linen pot lifters, iron holders, and dust cloths up to the finest and most exquisite pillow cases upon which my lady placed her dainty head, all had individual markings. On some were used simple German cross-stitch, on others the most exquisitely fashioned monograms and initials in circles, or surrounded with running vines that spread out to border the edges of the cloth, done in that quaint old "over and over" stitch with finest cotton thread. This simple form of embroidery, in which the outline is padded and then worked over with cotton, linen, or silk thread, of course is more or less mechanical, but in the hands of an artistic worker it is susceptible of much elaboration, and long has been used extensively in German, French, English, and Irish handiwork. Different stitches are added now and then and called by novel names, and various colors employed hold a temporary vogue, but the over and over embroidery found today, not only upon my lady's undergarments but upon her outer wraps and gowns, on her napery and household belongings of all kinds, is exactly like that which delighted the soul of her grandmother and her great grandmother, too. It seems to have been dipped in the fountain of perpetual youth. For years the convents in Europe and some in America have made a specialty of over and over cotton embroidery for personal and household use, and many women have learned the art for the purpose and pleasure of beautifying their possessions with their own handiwork.

Only the woman in whom the instinct of housewifery is present understands the almost miserly delight that is found in a well filled linen closet, containing hemstitched and embroidered sheets, pillowcases, toilet table covers, towels, and napery, the exquisite needlework upon them being fashioned after her own designs and by her own fingers. It is akin to the masculine accumulation of stocks and bonds in a safe deposit box.

Nothing is more pleasing and satisfactory in the way of needlework than the over-and-over cotton embroidery; others may be more decorative, but not so lasting. To masculine eyes a woman is never more attractive than when engaged in strictly feminine arts. Dainty bits of sewing, whether useful or otherwise, seem to hint of a spirit of domesticity which is included in every man's ideal of woman.

Towels, napkins, and sheets are now usually embroidered with initials or monograms in this "over-and-over" work. French cotton or a fine mercerized cotton thread is used. The latter gives a silky finish to the work and washes much better than silk. Two inches is the size for the towel letters and one inch for napkins.

In the SEWING ROOM

Hang Skirt Perfectly.

Finish your skirt all but the bottom, then give it a thorough pressing. Take a large pail or a small tub or anything round that measures about nineteen inches in depth and about seventy-five inches around the top and has a good edge. Be sure your depth measures even all around. Put your piano stool in center of tub. If the top is hollow put a board over to make it level. Now you can raise and lower your stool, according to the length you desire your skirt. For a full length the stool must be even with edge of tub; if shorter, lower your stool as much below the edge as you want the skirt to measure from the floor. Stand up on stool perfectly still, allowing your skirt to fall over tub. Have some one mark on the edge, on the right side of skirt, with a piece of tailor chalk, being careful not to slide the skirt away from its natural place. Turn up according to chalk line, and you will have a perfect length. MRS. C. E. L.

To Unwind Silk.

Wind over back of a chair as much silk off the spool as you think necessary for the work. Slip off chair, hold silk firmly, and cut at one end. You now have all your threads the same length. Next take a piece of beeswax and wax well. Press with a warm iron and tie with string in center of threads to keep all together. You thus will be able to use every inch of silk without the usual knots and snarls. B. M.

Boy's Blouse.

When making my little boy's blouse waists I always make a waist out of the same goods to come down just under the arm, a little longer in the front. It takes the place of the V for the neck, and is always in place.
MRS. JOHN PERRY.

Cutting Thin Goods.

Lay the goods between two thin sheets of paper and cut out paper and all. This prevents material pulling out of place.

With the Girl Workers

Women Preferred in Many Places.

Of all the problems that confront the working girl, by no means the least to be considered is the question of remuneration and the best method for its advancement. That woman has become a necessity in the working world of today is an assured fact, and that she is in a great many ways giving better satisfaction than man is becoming more and more evident.

I heard my employer tell a man the other day that he only employed men in such positions as woman was not qualified to fill, and that, on business principles, he preferred women every time, stating, as a special reason, that Saturday nights were fatal to a great number of men, and that "spree" were costly to his business.

Supply and demand are great factors in determining the value of almost everything, and the one great cause of woman's inferior pay is that the supply is more than equal to the demand. In the army of workers there is a large number of girls whose fathers and brothers, and women whose husbands, are earning good wages and able to take care of them. They do not work from necessity, but that they may have a little extra spending money. Until this element is eliminated the salary of the woman worker will be inferior to her worth.

The question is too deep for me, but is well worth the attention of those who are seeking to elevate the standard of woman's work and worth. MARGARET GALLAGHER.

Learn to Profit by Criticism.

Before I secured my present position, which I have held for eight years, I was public stenographer, and in that capacity met many varieties of the genus stenographer in our city. As I was young and fresh from school, the principal faults then noted made a vivid and lasting impression upon me, and I honestly believe that it is because I refrained from many of these errors, hereinafter named, that I still am retained.

The successes are not the girl who goes downtown to work "just to earn a little pin money" to gratify her vanity for self-adornment, nor the one who "detests housework," and goes into the office or store to get out of helping mother; nor the girl who eagerly watches the clock, anxious for "quitting time," apparently fearful lest she do a minute's more work than she is paid for; and, last but not least, the gravest fault with many stenographers (you see I'm bound to talk shop, for that has been my vocation so long) is their unwillingness to receive well meant criticisms on their work, or to make corrections when asked to do so.

One never is too wise or too old to learn. By keeping my eyes and ears open, just such little suggestions have proved my best helps—it shows your employer or friends are taking cognizance of what you are doing. I'd rather work for a particular man any day in the week than for a slack one.

Tattling is an annoying trait in some stenographers—when your employer takes you into his confidence, as he is bound to do to some extent if you are his private secretary, he does not desire you, in turn, to take the whole world into your confidence and publish broadcast his business secrets. They should be guarded as sacredly as if they were your own.
CHARACTER.

In the BOUDOIR

Oatmeal Cleans Skin.

Many young people are annoyed by the appearance of pimples and slight skin eruptions, which are disfiguring, if not serious. Our grandmothers used to dose their young folks with some of the most horrible concoctions "to clean the blood." Many of these remedies seem out of the question entirely with us, but some of them were efficacious and simple. One of these last mentioned is oatmeal water. To make it put a heaping tablespoonful of fine oatmeal into a tumblerful of cold water. Allow it to stand all night, and in the morning stir it up well. Let the thickest part settle again and then drink the clear part. This should be continued for two or three weeks, and it will clean the complexion remarkably.

Care of Feet.

When the feet are swollen and burning bathe them in warm water and rub the soles with cut lemon. This will freshen and ease them. Hot sea salt baths are restful and another delightful foot bath is made by dissolving two teaspoonfuls of the following in warm water: Alum, one ounce; rock salt, two ounces; borax, two ounces. Besides the usual bath in the morning, when the feet are scrubbed with a small brush, they should receive another bath in the evening, especially if they are inclined to perspire and ache. Before putting on the stockings sprinkle the feet with the following powder: Phenic acid, ten grams; alcohol, twenty grams; starch, 200 grams; Florentine orris; essence of violet, two grams; add the violet essence to the acid dissolved in the alcohol, then the starch and orris root. All callous places should be rubbed off with pumice stone, but corns may only be permanently removed by removing the cause—a tight or ill fitting shoe. If the ankles are weak, high shoes should be worn summer and winter. Sandals and moccasins are the only really comfortable footgear.

In the KITCHEN

Keep Fruit.

If two rubbers are used on a jar, one old one, and on top of that a new one, the fruit will be almost certain to keep, as the top will fit much tighter. After screwing on the top tightly, turn jar upside down to make sure that there is no leakage.
ELLA M. WILLIAMS.

Twine Spool.

Take a large empty spool and put it on a nail in the kitchen closet. When you unwrap your parcels take the twine, tie it together, and wrap it on the spool. You need never look for a piece of twine when you want it. MRS. W. D. M.

Stained Hands.

If lemon juice and cornmeal were kept on the kitchen sink and the hands thoroughly wet with one and rubbed well with the other immediately after preparing vegetables and fruits, and before soap is applied, the hands could always be kept clean and smooth.

Pantry Blackboard.

A most excellent help for housekeepers with "forgettery" memories is a blackboard made by painting black the inside panels of the pantry door. Then, with a bit of chalk handy, the list of necessary supplies will always be ready. PHEBE BRUCE.

To Skin Potatoes.

A piece of rough sacking will quickly and easily rub off the peel of new potatoes or carrots with much less labor and time than scraping. MRS. L. S.-T.

Sham Battle for Children.

Warlike children's games, played with perfumed paper flowers, bright colored spears, dainty bows and arrows, and riding whips, are popular this season. They are being used at many of the outdoor parties given in the country and at the seashore and mountain resorts.

The games are artistic because the "instruments of war" are made of such gay colored crêpe paper. When thrown or shot they give a kaleidoscopic effect that is remarkable. That the little folks are delighted with the new plays called "Battle of the Flowers," "Charge of the Spears," "Defense of the Arrows," and "Whips" is demonstrated by their screams of pleasure when they line up ready for the onslaught. Bags of sachet are attached to the ends of the spears, arrows, or on the ends of the whips, so that when a child is hit even with a whip they will bend and break. The scent will get on the hair, frocks, or suits of the children. In all of these unique games the side having the greater number with sachet sprinkled bodies loses.

The "Battle of Flowers" is the prettiest of these games. In playing the game sides are chosen after two leaders have been selected. The desire of each captain, as the leader is called, is to get the boys and girls who can throw straight. As many children can take part in the battle as there are flowers to be thrown. There must be the same number on each side. When all have been selected they march behind their captains in a straight line and right about face on a large space on the lawn. Facing each other at a distance of about ten feet they stand at attention until the leader gives out the ammunition. This consists of large paper roses, lilies, huge tulips, daisies on long green stems. With the flowers in their right hands, either line tends slightly forward, picks out the man opposite to kill, and at the word "Fire" all throw but the captain. Those who are supposed to be dead are recognized by the scent of perfume on their clothing. The ones who have been hit but not covered with the sachet must tell they were struck, to be counted as wounded. The captains then count up the dead and wounded. Then measuring off eight feet, they face each other and decide the battle by throwing flowers at each other. If neither is hit their duel is continued until one is struck and covered with sachet. The victory of the captain often means the winning of the fight, for the success of the leader counts the same as if one-third of the fighters had been killed.

In the Laundry

To Wash Chenille Curtains—

MRS. C. R. BUCHANAN.

How to Wash Flannels.

Take 10 cent soap shaker, the kind with wire sleve on end of long handle, fill with bits of white soap, shake in little hot water in dishpan to make good suds; then add a little cold water, so it is warm but not hot. Immerse flannels, using soap shaker vigorously. It forces the suds through the woolen fiber, and draws out all the dirt in a few minutes, without any rubbing, which is so injurious to flannels. They come out soft and white as can be. Rinse in several clear waters of same temperature as first water, and dry quickly. MRS. ANN WEEKS.

TESTED RECIPES

Fried Cheese Sandwich.

Take stale bread cut in slices about three-quarters of an inch thick. Make a sandwich of cheese, cut less than half an inch thick. Dip in milk or water and fry slowly to a nice brown in fresh lard or part butter. Serve hot. Nice way to use scraps of cheese.
MRS. A. E. LAUGHLIN.

Iced Coffee.

Fill a glass half full of chopped ice. Add one tablespoonful of coffee and two tablespoonfuls of sugar; fill with thin cream or rich milk. Shake well. DORA HOWELL.

Soft Boiled Eggs.

Take a pan that will hold about two quarts. Put into it from one to four eggs, pour over them boiling water and let stand from ten to thirty minutes. You will have nice boiled eggs. The whites will be tender and digestible. A dainty dish for the sick. STELLA B.

Prunes on Hay Stove.

To one pound of prunes add one cup of sugar and one quart of water. Boil on fire ten minutes, cover tightly and remove to the hay stove. Leave in, either over night or eight hours. MRS. SARAH FORD.

Fancy Nut Cake.

Eight eggs beaten separately and thoroughly, one-half cup sugar, three-quarters cup rolled cracker crumbs, one-quarter cup flour, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half pound English walnuts chopped fine, one teaspoonful baking powder mixed with the flour. Filling—One-half pound walnuts chopped, three-quarters cup milk, one-half cup sugar, two yolks of eggs. Boil until thick and spread between layers. Mix all the ingredients and lastly add the whites of the eggs. Bake in two layers and in deep layer tins.
MRS. F. C. HALLAVEN.

Caramel Custard.

One quart milk, five eggs, one teaspoon vanilla, three-fourths cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt; scald the milk, and add the sugar after stirring constantly until melted. Beat the eggs slightly, add salt and pour on the hot milk; add the vanilla; strain into a buttered mold, set in a pan of hot water, and bake about thirty minutes. LAURA JAMES.

Juicy Roast.

Heat some beef fat in an iron pan or broad kettle. Put the meat into it and with a fork stuck in the fat part turn until it is a fine brown on all sides. This is done to keep in the juices. Put into a hot oven elevated from the bottom. Now in five minutes you will find the top dried, which will make it necessary to dip the hot fat from the pan over the top of the meat. Repeat every few minutes. Add no water to the pan. When half done add salt and pepper, as it will toughen if seasoned before. MIRA HANSEN.

Vegetable Soup for Hay Stove.

Clean soup bone and put in large hay stove bucket; add water, salt, and pepper to taste; two carrots chopped fine; one good sized onion; two bay leaves; six allspice berries; one-quarter cup of rice. Cook one-half hour on fire. Then remove to hay stove and leave ten hours. ELEANOR A. RICE.

Asparagus Soup.

From a bunch of asparagus cut the stalks and put on to boil with an onion in cold salted water. When soft pass through a colander. Add a pint of milk to the water, then thicken the mixture with a tablespoon of butter and one of flour rubbed together. The tips which have been cooked separately may be served in the soup or mixed with a salad dressing and served as "asparagus vinaigrette" with the meat.

Metropolitan Golf Team Wins Trophy.

"METS" CAPTURE OLYMPIC TROPHY.

WESTERNERS ARE SECOND

Chicago Quartet Finishes Eight Strokes Behind the Leaders; Rockefeller Sees Play.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

Cleveland, O., July 8.—[Special.]—Led by Jerome D. Travers of Montclair, with rounds of 77 and 75, the Metropolitan Golf association team today won the Olympic team trophy at the Euclid Golf club with a total of 641. Eight strokes behind came the Western Golf association four, the former title holders. Western Pennsylvania representatives were third with 651, beating the royal Canadian quartet by three strokes. The six other teams, which were outclassed, finished as follows: New Jersey, 685; Transmississippi, 687; Ohio, 694; Philadelphia, 698; Stafford, 706; Massachusetts, 710.

The Pilgrims were added starters and did not represent the full strength of the Boston district.

As was predicted, the four leaders proved the class teams of the competition. So well did three of the western four perform in the morning that they had a lead of five strokes at the half way mark, at which period the count stood: Western, 316; Metropolitan, 321; Royal Canadian, 326; Western Pennsylvania, 327.

Travers' Remarkable Play.

Travers' score of 152 is three strokes better than that made by Willie Anderson on the first day of the western open championship in 1902, when he set a record of 290 for seventy-two holes. Willie Smith made 152 each day in that contest, these figures making the amateur's performance loom up large. Travis, Reid, and Herreshoff played well balanced and winning golf.

The downfall of the western team was due mainly to an off day by Walter E. Egan and two off holes by Chandler Egan. Western Champion Sawyer and Warren Wood shared the low scoring honors of the day with Jerome Travers. Ardo Mitchell, and Fritz Martin, the runner up in the Canadian championship last week, and George Lyon, the winner.

It is no often Egan has ten to decorate his card, but at the fifteenth hole he reached double figures. He explained it thusly:

"I sliced to the fence, two strokes; slobbed my brassey, two strokes; two more out of bunker, on the green in seven, and three putts. Now kick me."

Oil King Follows Match.

Scores today were harder than on Sunday. A strong westerly breeze carried many shots into the rough, and in the morning John D. Rockefeller was on the course. He followed W. C. Fownes, who sometimes plays at Oil City, and Walter J. Travis. Under the watchful eye of the oil king the players, of course, saved as many putts as possible. John D., it is said, saves his putts as well as his dollars. A six foot put bothers him as much as a subpoena.

The performances in the cup contest were taken as a basis for calculation for the qualifying round for amateurs, the championship which starts tomorrow. Nearly all the leading players were in action, and thirty-one had scores od 176 or6.

ROCKEFELLER AT GOLF TOURNAMENT.

Cleveland, O., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, celebrated his sixty-eighth birthday today by watching the play for the Olympic cup on the Euclid club links.

Shedding his coat, rolling up his trousers, and jamming his soft straw hat firmly on the back of his head, the man reputed to be the richest in the world trudged along in the midst of a crowd of golf enthusiasts, watching the play of Walter J. Travis and W. C. Fownes. He applauded their good plays, and in general enjoyed himself to the full in observing the play of these two crack amateurs.

No secret service men accompanied him. Almost unobserved he joined the gallery following the Travis match at the ninth green and trudged along with them over the last nine holes. He was particularly interested in the play of the veteran Travis.

"Why don't you play in the tournament?" asked a newspaper man.

"O, I am getting too old, my boy, getting too old," said Mr. Rockefeller. "It's too much of a nervous strain."

"Well, Travis took up the game pretty late in life," commented the newspaper man.

"Yes, that's true," Mr. Rockefeller answered, and then added: "That's an argument in favor of us veterans, but he is not so old as I am."

Travis sliced badly, driving to the eleventh green, and got deep into the weeds. He took no chances, but played straight out in the course instead of toward the green. Then Mr. Rockefeller philosophized.

"Generally speaking," he said, "the man who is the best diplomat and is straight himself will come out ahead. But there was a case—O, that was a good shot," Mr. Rockefeller exclaimed, as Travis holed out a twenty foot putt, "by Jove, that was fine," and he slapped his knee and repeated, "that was fine."

On the thirteenth green Travis topped his second shot and rolled into the railroad tracks. "O, too bad, too bad," said Mr. Rockefeller, but the next moment he was vigorously applauding a nervy play by the veteran Metropolitan golfer, who, instead of dropping back for the loss of a stroke, played his ball where it laid deep in the mud and close to the bank, getting out beautifully. Fownes was nervous and took three putts.

"What delayed you, Billy?" asked a friend in the crowd.

"O, the going was poor," said Fownes, grinning.

"That's the spirit I like to see," said the oil magnate. "That's the sportsmanship, Ah-h-h, that was a good one," and he stooped down to watch the flight of Fownes' drive, a terrific ball far down the course.

GOLF HANDICAPS ANNOUNCED.

E. M. Byers, H. Chandler Egan, and D. E. Sawyer Rated at Scratch in Western Association Allotment.

Official announcement was made yesterday of the Western Golf association allowances for the season, handicaps being assigned up to 18. National Champion E. M. Byers, former National Title Holder H. Chandler Egan, and Western Champion D. E. Sawyer are rated at scratch.

Walter E. Egan, R. R. Hunter, and Warren K. Wood, young Chicago golfers, and W. C. Fownes Jr., and Norman Macbeth Jr., of Pittsburg, are each allowed one stroke. Two strokes are assigned to K. L. Ames and J. M. Sellers of Glenview, Dr. D. P. Fredericks of Oil City, Pa., Fay Ingalls of Cincinnati, Harold Weber of Toledo, and H. R. Johnston of Chicago. Other important allotments follow:

Four—G. F. Clingman Jr., Homewood; Ralph O. Hayes, Allegheny; A. W. Mitchell, Rock Island.

Four—Sprague Abbott, Omaha; A. G. Bennett, Skokie; Wylie Carhartt, Detroit; R. M. Cummings, Onwentsia; Lawrence Eagles, Audobon; A. B. Lambert, St. Louis; R. H. McElwee, Onwentsia; Ralph McKittrick, St. Louis; L. W. Mitchell, Rock Island; Henry Potter, St. Louis; Lawrence Rea, Onwentsia; A. F. Schwartz, Audobon; S. G. and W. G. Stickney, St. Louis; Nelson Whitney, Audobon; Holden Wilson, Cincinnati.

Five—H. W. Allen, St. Louis; Nathan Rundy, Kent; F. G. Byrd, Atlanta; J. D. Cady, Rock Island; James Childs, Allegheny; R. D. Clapp, Hinsdale; W. E. Clow Jr., Onwentsia; H. T. Cole, Detroit; Joseph S. De Moss, Tuscumbia; Warren Dickinson, Des Moines; Walter Fairbanks, Denver; D. R. Forgan, Onwentsia; H. A. Gardner, Lake Forest; P. Gardner, Hinsdale; F. L. Griffith, Arlington; H. E. Havemeyer, Exmoor; Ralph Hoagland, Riverside; C. A. Jaffrey, Ninnishada; Charles McArthur, Homewood; J. T. McMillan, Detroit; C. B. Macdonald, Chicago; F. R. Pettit, Kenosha; R. Russell, Detroit; W. F. Schatz, Wheaton; Bruce D. Smith, Onwentsia; F. Stewart, Exmoor; Douglas and John Stuart, Homewood; Alden B. Swift, Onwentsia; Raymond Wells, Homewood.

NOTES OF THE GOLF TOURNEY.

So far the galleries have been good and the Euclid club officials are running things smoothly.

C. D. Corey was in poor form and requested Capt. Hugo Johnstone to leave him off the Massachusetts team.

The two best bits of golf were: Travers out in 36, 4 strokes and 4 up on bogey 38, and Wood in in 36, 3 strokes and 2 holes on bogey 39.

Canadian Champion Lyon, who defeated H. C. Egan at St. Louis and at Englewood last year, was paired with the Exmoor player yesterday and beat him by eight shots.

RACING AT LATONIA IS POOR.

Cincinnati, O., July 8.—[Special.]—Interest in tomorrow's great race for 2 year olds just now eclipses the burning question of "Where shall we race after next Saturday?" Twelve youngsters are carded to start, some undoubtedly having been attracted by the size of the stakes and the absence of such cracks as Hanbridge, Grande Dame, and Mollie Montrose.

Jockey Dave Nicol is here to ride W. J. Young's crack filly Chulita, and L. Williams is engaged for her stable mate, Moquette, so the entry has the advantage of the two best riders here. At that, they may not get anything, for on form the rich prize seems to lie between R. C. Ramo, Clonze, and Joe Moser, if the track should be good, which it will be, barring another rain storm. Lee will ride Joe Moser. Should the twelve that are carded go to the post the value of the stakes will be $4,380.

Not a favorite won. The third event was the better of those scheduled and was won by La Veita, the second choice. Convolo, the favorite, was second, and Javanese third. The track was heavy. Summaries:

First race, ¾ mile—Bellmence, 105 pounds [Powers], 12 to 1, won; Two Quarter, 100 [Pickens], 8 to 1, second; Hardshot, 108 [Taylor], 5 to 1, third. Time, 1:17 3-5. Frank Flesher, Little George, Charlie Mitchell, Penian, Hughes, Wedgewood, Ericson, and Carleras ran.

Second race, 9-16 mile—Beth Goodwin, 112 pounds [J. Lee], 5 to 1, won; Pinkie Prim, 112 [Pickens], 20 to 1, second; Merrigo, 112 [J Conley], 8 to 1, third. Time, :56. Inventress, Hazel M., Presenta, Orbent, Piessantview Belle, Silverdeer, and Snake Mary ran.

Third race, 1 mile—La Veita, 86 sounds [Butler], 2 to 1, won; Convolo, 101 [Austin], even, second; Javanese, 91 [Pierot], 6 to 1, third. Time, 1:44 3-5. Hussah, Princess Orna, and Barletta ran.

Fourth race, 1 mile—Hohneshaw Melino, 110 pounds [J. Conley], 20 to 1, won; Kern, 110 [J. Lee], 20 to 1, second; Harold D., 105 [Walker], 5 to 1, third. Time, 1:16 2-5. Hohneshaw Melino, Lightning Conductor, Airship, Frank Monteverde, and Komomo ran.

Fifth race, 11-16 mile—Albert Star, 102 pounds [J. Lee], 8 to 1, won; Relight, 100 [Heidel], 8 to 1, second; Sabado, 102 [Powers], 6 to 5, third. Time, 1:10. Black Dress, Marcus Aurelius, Waldorf Belle, Elder Vanen, Moscow Belle, Judge Dundon, Dinda, and Grahelm ran.

Sixth race, 1 mile—County Clerk, 105 pounds [Crimmins], 5 to 1, won; Delta Thorpe, 100 [Austin], 7 to 1, second; Dellestrome, 100 [Powers], 5 to 1, third. Time, 1:44 4-5. Dr. Lee Huffman, Guardt, Sir Geoffrey, Helen Virginia, and Anna Ruskin ran.

Race Results at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 8.—Two well played good things took the money from the bookmakers at Kenilworth today. Merrymaker, in the steeplechase, was backed from 6 to 1 and won handily. In the fifth race Niblick was played down from 7 to 1 to 4 to 1 and easily disposed of his field. Weather clear, track fast. Summaries:

First race, ¾ mile—Pedlaroz, 6 to 1; Merrimac, 4 to 1; John P. Bergen, 6 to 1. Time, 1:01 4-5.

Second race, steeplechase, about 2 miles—Merrymaker, 2 to 1; Bilberry, 3 to 1; Russell A., 6 to 1. Time, 4:01 1-5.

Third race, ¾ mile—Stanley Fay, 20 to 1; Seymour Beutler, 3 to 1; Please, 3 to 5. Time, 1:01 1-5.

Fourth race, ¾ mile—Edna Jackson, 1 to 2; Mediterasome Boy, 15 to 1; Col. Jack, 6 to 5. Time, 1:13 2-5.

Fifth race, 1 mi., and 40 yards—Niblick, 4 to 1; Cobmeas, 3 to 1; St. Joseph, 8 to 5. Time, 1:43 2-5.

Sixth race, 1 mile—Master Lester, 4 to 1; Nancy, 15 to 1; Betsy Binford, 7 to 2. Time, 1:41.

Results at Windsor.

Windsor, Ont., July 8.—The final week of the summer race meeting here was begun this afternoon. The feature was a seven furlong handicap, which went to Royal Breeze, a 9 to 20 favorite. The Glean, a popular performer on the circuit, was destroyed after breaking down in the long distance race. Summaries:

First race, ¾ mile—Lizzie McLean, 12 to 1, won; Raining Leaves, 15 to 1, second; Reticent, 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:14 4-5.

Second race, ¾ mile—Servile, 2 to 1; Petulant, 5 to 2; Abbacy, 8 to 5. Time, 1:01 4-5.

Third race, ⅞ mile—Royal Breeze, 9 to 20; J. R. Laughrey, 15 to 1; Usury, 6 to 1. Time, 1:27 4-5.

Fourth race, ½ mile—Catherine F., 3 to 1; Dandy Dancer, even; Bayou Lark, 12 to 1. Time, 1:02 3-5.

Fifth race, 1¼ miles—Cursus, 5 to 2; Chamida, 4 to 1; Monterey, 4 to 1. Time, 2:08 4-5.

Sixth race, ⅝ mile—Merry George, 7 to 1; Etrena, 11 to 5; Dick Redd, 4 to 1. Time, 1:24 1-5.

Seventh race, ⅞ mile—Halton, 5 to 2; Webber, 4 to 1; Doc Kyle, 4 to 1. Time, 1:28¾.

SEEKS ANOTHER GO AT BURNS.

MELBOURNE, Victoria, July 8.—The backer of "Bill" Squires, the Australian pugilist, who was defeated in the first round of his fight with Tommy Burns at Colma, Cal., on July 4, has cabled to the United States offering to give Burns $2,500 and the whole gate money, win, lose, or draw, for a return fight with Squires within a month.

TO REPRODUCE FAMOUS FIGHT.

John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain, who fought one of the greatest bare knuckle battles of the prize ring, are to pay a visit to Chicago in a few days. Beginning July 22 the two old time fighters are to give a reproduction of their memorable contest at Richburg, Miss., at White City for a week.

Blackburn Beats Barry.

Huff Sizes Up Three Eyes Players.

Bloomington, Ill., July 8.—[Special.]—George A. Huff is making the rounds of the Three Eye league cities on the lookout for promising youngsters for the Boston Americans. He is said to be particularly interested in Third Baseman Doyle and Pitcher Beecher of Springfield.

Giants' Manager to Quit in the Fall.

JOHN J. McGRAW

Confirmation was given by John J. McGraw in New York yesterday of the rumors which have indicated his stormy career in the major baseball leagues would terminate with the present season. He said he positively intended to retire from the management of the New York Nationals and quit baseball, unless he found opportunity to purchase a desirable minor league franchise. Although McGraw's relations with his players this season are said to have been anything but pleasant, they took the opportunity of showing their appreciation of his announcement by dropping to third place in the race.

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 8.—[Special.]—Right in the middle of the hottest spell of the season Capt. Chance brought on a soft drink drought in this section, and patriotic rooters are crazy with indignation. Today's game, which the Cubs won 5 to 0, broke up in a near riot.

In the ninth round, after two were out, the "bugs" back of first base hurled vile epithets and pop bottles at the peerless leader. He returned the same epithets and the same bottles, hitting one boy and a man in the bleachers. Then it was a case of cops and clubs and loud excitement. When the shades of night were falling an armored automobile pulled up at the side gate of the ball yard. More than an hour had passed since the bottle chucking episode, but they were taking no chances with a crowd lurking at the front entrance for a crack at the peerless leader. Into the auto piled Chance, surrounded by one police captain, two alert gumshoe men, and President Ebbets.

At a late hour tonight the peerless leader was reported well on his way to the tall weeds. Mr. Ebbets has prohibited the sale of soft drinks on the grounds until the Cubs leave his fair city. Being a magnate of wide and varied experience, Mr. E. knows many a hard blow can be struck with a soft drink bottle.

Worst Break of Career.

Seriously, though, it was a nasty piece of business on all sides. For the first time in twenty-five years, so Mr. Ebbets says, his polite Brooklyn rooters took to throwing bottles. At the same time Manager Chance made the worst break of his career in returning the glassware by the force of his mighty arm, and he admits it. He is sorry, and would give a lot to recall the two bottles that left in the heat of passion at wide, open faces. No one was hurt.

Chance was following his chosen profession at first base. Umpire Carpenter was standing near when a small shower of bottles from the cheap seats rolled at the heels of the athlete and ump. Chance grabbed one of the missiles and faced his tormentors. But came more bottles, and Chance let fly into the thick of the crowd standing on the seats. For an instant it rained streaks of glass, and in the midst of the fusillade stood the peerless leader like Mr. Ajax—defying pop bottles.

Ebbets Appeases Mad Fans.

Seeking higher game as his anger rose, Chance selected a mark in the 50 cent bleachers and slammed a second bottle. The high wire screen restrained the bugs, who tried to climb out and murder the athlete. Somebody yelled for the cops stationed outside the yard, but the omnipotent Ebbets beat 'em to the seat of war. He soothed the bloodseekers by promising to have Chance arrested. A detective walked with the boss Cub to the clubhouse. Then the regular police cleared the field and the game was finished after a delay of ten minutes, with "Artless Artie" Hofman playing first base.

It was long after 7 o'clock when the beleaguered athlete left the yard. He sat in the club's office with a number of detectives and players while a score of policemen chased part of the mob away from the entrance. Police Captain Maude told Chance he would have pinched him had he seen him heave either of the bottles.

"That's all right," retorted the peerless leader. "I did wrong to lose my temper and act the way I did. But it is hard to be cursed and made a target and not lose patience with a senseless crowd, sore because we beat the home team."

Talk of Arresting Chance.

When the heat of battle abated the detectives thought it safe to make a dash for the elevated station, one block distant, but Chance and Ebbets insisted on an automobile. The Brooklyn president said he never had had any trouble on his place, and would not risk it now, by letting Chance out the front way. So they phoned for a buzz wagon and made the trip to New York in safety.

Chance was advised by Police Captain Maude not to return to Brooklyn during the series. He is liable to an extended suspension anyhow. There is some talk of the battle scarred bugs having Chance arrested. The boy who claimed to have been hit was seen in tow of a lawyer after the game.

Details of Game.

For the first five innings the game was too scientific for the bugs who like to howl. Several thousand made the astounding discovery that the contest was a pitchers' battle and imparted the news to their neighbors. There was nothing else to talk about between peanuts. The Pasteurized pitching of Mr. Pastorius was painful to the Cubs, while the occult doings of Mr. Brown gave the Superbas an attack of cramp colic. In four rounds the locals eked out two singles and one hardy pioneer as far as third base. The Cubs had done little better with three hits and one man hurled into eternity trying to steal third. It was a vivid and awe inspiring pitchers' combat, all right.

But in the fifth the magic spell was shattered. Our resistless record breakers counted one tally with the aid of a double and two singles. Everybody allowed the game was a total wreck, as one tally would be sufficient to win in the face of Mr. Brown's superb prowess.

Ritter Starts the Trouble.

Lou Ritter contributed a thrill of melancholy in the local fifth by striking out and kicking himself out of the game. This incident so incensed the bugs they said Bob Ritter would starve to death when he lost his job as umpire. Ritter let out an awful wheeze on the last strike, which looked like a good one, but Brown had fanned the entire side in that round and Lou had a right to feel peeved. He was No. 3 in the death list and there was an impatient athlete hanging to second base while Brownie was turning his electric fan on the three Superbas.

Pastorius was jolted off the slab in the sixth with five heavy knocks, which included two doubles and one triple. McIntyre and Bergen finished the one sided combat, as Ritter was benced by Emslie in the fifth.

Evers started that round with a double and scored on Kling's single. Brown bunted a fly to the pitcher, Slagle made a hit, and the next two made outs. Jordan popped a Texas leaguer in the local fifth and stole second as Maloney fanned. Brown also whiffed Lewis and Ritter.

Chance was walked in the sixth and Steiney doubled. Tinker's hit sent in Chance and Joe was caught taking too much lead off first. Steiney scored on Evers' out. Kling doubled, Brown tripled, and Slagle poled a single, cleaning up two more runs. Sheckard grounded to the pitcher.

The locals were helpless against Brown. He had the goose sign on them from the start. Jordan and Maloney were out when the trouble occurred in the ninth. When peace was restored Lewis flied to Hofman. Score:

REDS AND BOSTON BREAK EVEN.

Boston, Mass., July 8.—After being shut out, 2 to 0, by the home team in the first of two games today, Cincinnati whitewashed Boston in the second contest, 4 to 0. Lindaman was effective in the first game, and the fielding behind him, especially by Bridwell, was clean. Huggins played brilliantly until put out of the game for disputing the umpire's decision. In the second game Hitt held the locals safe and their errors alone were enough to defeat them. Scores:

DETROIT VICTOR IN FOURTEENTH

Tigers Capture Game After Long Battle with Boston, the Final Score Being Six to Five.

Detroit, Mich., July 8.—It took fourteen innings to reach a decision today, a triple by Schmidt and single by Siever giving the game to Detroit, 6 to 5. Two bases on balls, a triple and double, all with two out, retired Mullin in the seventh. Four hits in a row by Detroit tied the score and disposed of Pruitt in the eighth. Then it was a fine pitchers' battle between Siever and Winter, with sensational fielding behind them. A wonderful catch by O'Leary off Barrett in the fourteenth proved Boston of two runs and probable victory. Score:

NOTES OF THE CUBS.

An Italian boy was exhibiting a mark on his leg claimed to have been made by a bottle Chance chucked. He is the alleged victim the lawyer had in tow.

It is regrettable that a leader like Chance should turn on the crowd. He is the first act of reprisal since Tim Hurst soaked a rooter with a beer glass at Cincinnati ten years ago.

The only chance the Superbas had was in the sixth. One out, Alperman singled, and Brown filled the bases by hitting Casey and walking Hummell. The next two were easy meat.

Mordecai Brown spent a restful morning at the aquarium in Battery park, looking at lobsters, suckers, and crabs. Such contemplation prepared his mind for the great struggle in the afternoon.

It is rumored in Brooklyn that President Ebbets paid St. Louis $5,000 for Outfielder Burch, who joined the Superbas today. Nothing like boomling the game now that the local bugs are excited and happy.

For Sabbath recreation President Murphy took in Rockaway beach, Coney Island. He rode to and from on a Western Union telegraph frank done up in a case like an annual pass. Murphy sprung the frank for a joke and the conductor fell for it.

WHITE SOX BEATEN BY 5 TO 2.

Athletics Swat Owen and Smith for Baker's Dozen of Hits.

BENDER IS HARD TO FIND.

BY SY.

Thirteen proved no hoodoo to the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday. Instead it enabled them to trim the White Sox by a score of 5 to 2 in the third battle of the south side campaign. Almost any team would take a chance with thirteen in its base hit column, and that is where Connie Mack's men placed the unlucky symbol.

It is not often the Sox twirlers permit the enemy to do double figure swatting off them, but the Athletics got to the two Franks, Owen and Smith, for a baker's dozen, including one choice smash which barely missed clearing the right field bleacher screen. Owen looked so good in the four innings he worked on Saturday and warmed up so fast he was chosen to do the flinging, but it transpired the Ypsilanti curver was not yet fit to go the distance.

Swarm of Drives Settles Game.

A swift swarm of clean drives, all of them straight into center field, in the fifth inning proved the absence or Owen's former strength, and incidentally settled the game. Nine of the thirteen swats were caromed off Owen's offerings in five innings, and four of the five runs were made in those rounds. Smith, who tried to pull the Sox out of their slough, was hit for only four safeties, but two of them got together in the seventh, including Harry Davis' near home run, and scored the fifth tally.

The Sox found Bender for only five singles, one of which was a bunt and another an accident. McFarland ducked so hard to dodge a curve on his first appearance at bat in the seventh that the ball bounded off his stick over Murphy's head into right. But without hitting Bender hard, the Sox made things interesting for a few minutes, and threatened to put themselves beyond reach in the opening round before the redskin twirler located either the plate or first base.

Fail to Seize an Opportunity.

With only one safe bunt to their credit Comiskey's men scored two runs in their first sally and failed to take more than half the advantage they might have taken of the fact that Bender was not on to his job. Those hitless tallies put the Sox in the lead for a minute or two, but the Sox never had another real chance. The Athletics scratched a couple of runs in their first and second innings, due to Owen's passion for letting the first man walk and to some uncanny thinking by the locals. For a pair of rounds they battled along on even terms, but when the visitors solved Owen suddenly for four singles, after two were out in the fifth, there was nothing more to the game but forlorn hopes, and the consolation handed out by the score board's news of a defeat for the Naps.

Some ground and lofty nabbing of hits by Bender and a running catch by Topsy Hartsel, which cut off a likely looking drive by Isbell in the penultimate session, were the leading defensive features of a battle which wore a serious aspect all the way.

Seybold Smashes a Timely Single.

Owen started by passing Nicholls and giving Jimmy Collins two bad ones before he finally located the plate. Then he made Collins force Nicholls. Seybold smashed a single through Rohe to left, and just as George Davis made a bluff to drive Collins back toward second base Harry Davis hit a roller through where George ordinarily would have been. Consequently it trundled itself out into left safely, sending Collins home. A pair of pops by Murphy and Oldring stopped the round.

In the Sox half things started their way in large chunks. Bender could not find the plate, and passed Hahn. Jones bunted and Bender was in doubt about the location of the first sack also, giving Fielder a life with a wide throw which Harry Davis almost speared. Isbell bunted safely past Bender, filling the bases, with nobody out. Dougherty popped out to Murphy. Rohe hit a slow one toward short and Bender grabbed it, but fired the ball low to first, and Isbell scored while Rohe lived.

A pass to Donohue forced Jones home from the overflowing bags, and just as the rooters were feeling sorry for the enemy George Davis raised a short fly to center and Isbell was doubled up trying to score on it.

Bender showed a complete reversal of form in the second, and kept it. Not until the fifth inning did the Sox get another safety, and in four innings they hit only three balls beyond the infield—all flies. With two out in the fifth Hahn and Jones lined out singles, but Isbell popped. In the seventh, with one out, McFarland made that circus single of his in dodging a pitched ball, but died on second. In the eighth, with two out, Dougherty wasted a single. That was all for Chicago.

The Athletics profited by Owen's second pass, which Hartsel drew in the second inning. Powers bunted safely, and Bender sacrificed. When Hartsel tried to score on Nicholls' rap, Donohue cut him off at the plate, but when Nicholls and Powers started a double steal the latter scored while the former was being chased out.

For two innings Owen blanked the Athletics and he had two men out in the fifth when Seybold stung a single to center. Harry Davis duplicated it, Murphy triplicated it, and Oldring quadruplicated it. Those singles all looked alike, and a blanket would have covered the spots where they hit. Two runs were in and men on third and first when Sullivan closed the round by catching Murphy on an attempted double steal with the bluff throw trick. Score:

MINES AND MINING.

Mohawk-Jumbo Leasing Syndicate

We Have a Special Offering of 5,000 Shares at 24 Cents.

You cannot buy this stock in Goldfield or anywhere else below 35 cents. This company own different leases—probably their most valuable one is on the Poleverde claim, owned by the Jumbo Extension Mining Co., and upon which they have already expended over $20,000. The management of this company is said to be of a high order.
THE OFFICERS ARE:
AUGUSTUS TILDEN, President, prominent Goldfield attorney.
S. R. MASON JR., Secretary and Treasurer.
MAJ. W. A. STANTON, General Manager.
H. T. BRAGDON, active mine operator and President of the Goldfield Stock Exchange.
JAMES R. DAVIS of the widely known firm of Loftus & Davis, probably the most successful mining operators in all Nevada, who, with the officers, complete the Board of Directors.
The MOHAWK-JUMBO LEASING SYNDICATE refers to any bank, merchant, or broker in Goldfield. Maj. W. A. Stanton, the General Manager, is a mining engineer of marked ability.
The price at which we are offering this stock—viz.: 24 cents—is 30% below regular selling price. Our correspondents in Goldfield say that stock of the MOHAWK-JUMBO LEASING SYNDICATE "is certainly one of the choicest PLUMS in Goldfield." If you want to secure any of this stock at the bargain price of 24 cents
"GET A MOVE ON."
THAT'S ALL.

NEW YORK, July 8.—[Special.]—The greater part of the list on the stock exchange today showed neither strength nor weakness, and was ruled entirely by the movements in the few features, going upward at times under the leadership of Amalgamated Copper and Reading, the strong features, only to fall back again when Union Pacific and a few other stocks which showed weakness were in places of prominence on the exchange. The latter set the pace at the end of the dealings, however, and the closing was

WHEAT HAS SHARP DECLINE

WEATHER BETTER FOR CROPS

Following a fleeting period of firmness early yesterday's wheat market took on marked weakness. Heavy liquidating by longs was prompted by more encouraging thrashing returns in the southwest, generally better weather conditions in both spring and winter wheat territory, increasing fears that the movement of new grain soon would assume big proportions, a bearish visible supply statement, and a more favorable Missouri report than the recent run of news had led the trade to expect. Final quotations showed net declines from Saturday of 1¼@1⅝c.

The local market was relatively weaker than the principal outside marts. The bulk of the frail support came from houses with northwestern connections and from scattered shorts. Late in the session, however, there was fairly good absorption by commission houses on resting orders. The display of weakness at the start was based principally on slightly firmer Liverpool cables and on an opinion of the Minneapolis curb market. The latter spots brought forth a deluge of grain, price quickly crumbling 1c and later dropping off to a net decline of 2c. The support was at no time adequate to offset the pressure. Toward midsession some of the more confident bears increased their short lines.

Missouri Report Pleases Bears.

According to its state report the Missouri yield of wheat will not fall much more than 1,000,000 bu under the government's estimate. There was a growing sentiment that the government's July statement, to be issued a few minutes before tomorrow's close, will be given bearish construction. The report will estimate the extent of farm reserves as well as the condition on July 1. Expert Jones came out with a statement to the effect that only a fair yield would be the best that spring wheat growers could reasonably expect, and that conditions in many sections of the belt were against rapid crop development. Scattered advices indicated that the Red river valley had received too much moisture in the last few days, and other sections expressed increasing apprehension over the presence of rust. The "green bug" complaints were not as numerous or so serious as recently.

Increase in Visible Supply.

The visible supply statement was a distinct surprise and afforded the bears much working material. It showed an increase of 304,-000 bu after the finish of the crop year, against a decrease of 933,000 bu a year ago. World's exports last week were 10,112,000 bu, about as expected, compared to a total of 9,920,000 bu the corresponding period in 1906. Supplies on ocean passage showed a falling off of 1,720,000 bu, the amount now afloat being 37,224,000 bu, compared to 33,776,000 bu a year ago at this time. Of the total world's shipments Russia and the Danube exported 4,016,-000 bu, compared to about 2,875,000 bu the week before. Liverpool's early strength was based largely on unfavorable weather conditions in the united kingdom. There was a reaction later, prices going off on liberal general selling.

Northwestern Receipts Liberal.

Duluth and Minneapolis reported 566 cars of wheat received, against only 239 cars the similar day last year. Total primary receipts were 763,000 bu, compared to 670,000 bu last year. There were various estimates as to the amount of export business worked, one source "seeing" as much as 110 boat loads. There was a moderate lot of No. 2 red wheat sold here at 31.2c under September in store, and a sale of 20,000 bu No. 2 hard was reported at Kansas City to millers. The only bull report showed a little improvement in the crop condition of Kentucky wheat, the condition being given as 79, compared to 92 a year ago. Seaboard clearances were 570,000 bu, wheat and flour.

Corn Values Depressed.

Excellent weather for crop advancement, comparative dullness at the sample tables, and the weakness of wheat were depressing influences in the corn market, which, however, gave ready response to late buying. The close showed declines of ⅝@⅞c. The early hour witnessed considerable selling of long stuff, the support being hesitating. The state reports from Missouri and Kentucky showed moderate improvement, but the outlook is not promising compared to the showing at this time a year ago. Liverpool closed ½d firmer. Country acceptances of bids sent out since Saturday were quite heavy. World's exports last week aggregated 7,523,-000 bu, compared to 4,892,000 bu a year ago, the Danubian countries again contributing heavily to the total. Supplies on ocean passage increased 1,171,000 bu. There was an increase of a little more than 1,000,000 bu in the visible supply, against a falling off of 498,000 bu the similar time last year. Primary receipts totaled 718,000 bu, compared to about 600,000 bu last year. Seaboard clearances were 411,000 bu. Local arrivals were 274 cars, the estimate for today being 511 cars.

Oats Sag After Start.

Early trading in the oats market was at firmer quotations, a further generous run of unfavorable crop reports being largely responsible for the soundness. Later, however, enough long stuff came out to cause weakness. Shipping trade was at low ebb, men at the sample tables being disappointed at the failure of the east to show better buying power. It had been expected that by this time the easterners would be compelled by the lightness of their holdings to be more active in the western marts. The Kentucky report showed a decline of 7 points for the month, that issued by the Missouri state authorities reflecting slight improvement. Local arrivals were only 62 cars, the estimate for today being 184 cars. Total primary receipts were 402,000 bu; shipments, 254,000 bu. The visible supply statement showed a decrease of about 750,000 bu. Final quotations showed ⅛@⅜c off for the deferred months and about steady for July.

Hog Run Is Heavy.

Weakness prevailed in the market for hog products, depressing influences being the weakness in grains and a comparatively heavy movement of hogs to the leading western centers. Local packing interests took little part in the trade, smaller outside packers pressing on a moderate scale. Shorts and a few scattered investors gave about all the support. The run of hogs west was 79,-700, against 65,700 the corresponding day last year. The week's exports of pork, lard, and bacon were materially under those of the similar time a year ago. Final pit prices showed declines of 5@12½c for pork, 2½@7½c for lard, and 2½@7½c for ribs. Estimated local receipts of hogs for today were 17,000.

Rye Mart Featureless.

The rye market was without feature, ruling dull and a shade easier in sympathy with other grains. The visible supply showed an increase of 17,000 bu. Receipts were 2 cars. No. 2 free on board, 83@85½c; No. 3, 70@80c; No. 4, 60@70c. September was 78c bid, and December 79c bid.

Barley was steady with choice malting grades scarce. The visible supply decreased 94,000 bu. Receipts were 6 cars. Feed was quoted 50@55c; malting, 55@66c; screenings, nominal.

Flaxseed was ½c higher. No. 1 northwestern was quoted $1.24½; No. 1 from the northwest, $1.24; rejected northwestern, $1.17½@1.18½. Receipts were 2 cars here, 20 cars at Minneapolis, and 39 cars at Duluth.

Timothy seed was steady. Contract spot was quoted $4.75, and new September at the same price. Country lots were $3.50@4.50. Clover seed was dull and unchanged at $15.25 for contract, $13.50 for new October, and $8.50 @14.50 for cash lots.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

Country acceptances of wheat both here and in the southwest were heavier over Sunday, and some of the local houses bought considerable, one concern getting about 100,-000 bu. Otherwise the market was dull and featureless. A sale of No. 2 red in store was made at 3½c under September. Outside millers appear to be totally indifferent. Outside markets were lower and reported a light demand. Minneapolis elevators were the principal buyers in that mart. Kansas City was 2@3c lower. A sale of 20,000 bu No. 2 hard was made there to go to St. Louis millers out of store at 1¼c over July. Texas millers were reported to have their representative at Minneapolis arranging for the shipment of wheat from the northwest. This is said to be the first time this has ever happened. The seaboard reported a moderate inquiry for Manitoba, but near the close a New York message said that export bids had been withdrawn. Offerings of corn from the country were larger yesterday, while the shipping demand was only fair. Prices were ¼@⅜c lower. Oats were steady, with a fair demand, but local offerings were small. Prices were about steady. Local sales were 35,000 bu wheat, 250,000 bu corn, and 230,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported sales late Saturday and yesterday of 880,000 bu and 750,000 bu corn.

Clement-Curtis, Canby, Bartlett-Frazier, Logan-Bryan, and Knight-McDougal headed the selling of wheat after the early spurt at the opening. Until the September struck 95c there was indifferent support, but late in the session there was a good class of buying by Wrenn, who was a moderate buyer throughout the day; Bartlett-Frazier, Canby, Armour, Chapin, Barrell, Lake, Hulburd-Warren-Chandler, and other commission houses. Comstock threw over a big line of May corn yesterday, and there was a good deal of scattered liquidation throughout the day. Geahart, Re Qua, Wagner, Le Valley, and cash houses sold freely. Marfield, Crighton, Hellman, Pringle, Bartlett-Frazier, and Logan sold oats early, but on the break Marfield, Bartlett-Frazier, and Wrenn were good buyers. Ware-Leland bought early. Clifton sold lard at the start. Buying was by scattered shorts.

H. V. Jones, the crop expert, came in yesterday from a trip through North and South Dakota. He said: "It is too early to talk figures for the northwest crop, but in my judgment the three states can produce only a fair yield of wheat. There is a diseased condition running more or less over the three states, and important areas in the Red river valley produce light yields. The undergrowth is not strong enough to make a large head except for limited areas where there is good stand. Considerable of the area in North Dakota will not head before August. As Minneapolis and country mills grind 125,-000,000 bu, there will not be much to spare for shipment outside of durum. A large area will give only half a crop."

Vincent, Bartlett-Frazier's traveling man, wired them: "Wheat cut Kansas City to Wichita. Weather perfect. Whole state dead ripe. Eastern part Rock Island territory looks like heavy yield. Around Wichita yield probably 10 bu where six is expected. Many fields much heavier. Practically no fields abandoned. Everybody much more cheerful. Thrashing just begun. All after bids. Likely get poorer reports from western Kansas later, where wheat was frost damaged. Corn east part fine condition. West of Herrington two weeks late, but growing every minute. Some fields poor and weedy. Farmers all cutting wheat. Need good weather for the corn around Wichita. Oklahoma reports say favorable season will make biggest corn crop on record."

World's shipments of wheat and corn last week, with comparisons, follow:

Long distance telephone messages from Manitowoc from Fred Lewis of the Northern Grain company said that sensationally bad reports were coming in from all parts of Wisconsin of "green bugs," rust, and general lack of vitality in the plant. Southern Minnesota and South Dakota reports were said to be of the same tenor, and the advices from Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana were bad. Many fields have a large number of plants which appear to be dead ripe, but the heads are nothing but chaff.

Fible of Huston-Fible, Kansas City, wired Shearson-Hammill: "I made a short trip through Johnson county, Kansas, yesterday, the soil of which is exceedingly rich. I found corn a fine color, clean, but later than I expected. I should say it is from two to three weeks late. About 75 per cent of the wheat was cut. From the information coming to hand I believe my former estimate of 60,-000,000 bu wheat for Kansas is too low. Nearly all my reports say wheat is turning out better than expected."

Respecting the presence of rust in the vicinity of Bradley, S. D., R. E. Stone, the rust expert, wired the Updike Commission company: "From Bradley to Wallace south and back grain looks better, less rust but considerable moisture in the fields. The red rust is bad and may develop into black rust, but it will be at least two weeks before the latter will appear. There is a chance for a good crop, but the fields are too full of wild mustard and other weeds."

The visible supply of wheat increased 304,-000 bu last week; corn increased 1,085,000 bu; and rye gained 17,000 bu. Oats and barley decreased 732,000 bu and 56,000 bu, respectively. Comparative visible figures follow:

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Last year.
Corn	9,779,000	8,694,000	5,573,000
Oats	6,498,000	7,230,000	6,393,000
Rye	748,000	731,000	1,438,000
Barley	646,000	702,000	780,000

Watson & Co. wired Wrenn & Co.: "Some elevator men who claimed there was no damage last week are now claiming damage. Mr. Taylor, a representative of six of the largest flour mills in Texas, is in the northwest to arrange for wheat shipments to Texas. This is the first time Texas has ever bought wheat in the northwest. According to our reports the northwest will not have much wheat to spare for export."

E. F. Leland, who took a 200 mile trip through Indiana on Saturday and yesterday, said: "Wheat looks well, corn uneven and late, but has good appearance, oats decidedly bad, going back every day and many fields will not be cut. Red rust in every field and some fields have the appearance of having been scorched by a fire, there is so much red rust there."

The July Kentucky state report, as wired by King of Toledo, makes the July corn condition 79, year ago 92, June 77. Crop last year was 105,000,000 bu. Acreage this year 95. Oats condition 72, June 79, year ago 75, and crop only 6,000,000. Wheat condition 90, June 82, prospective yield 84 per cent of year ago, when the crop was 11,500,000 bu.

Minneapolis wired: "Entomologist Holzinger, professor in the State Normal school of Minnesota, pronounces the green bug discovered in Winona county as the regular article. He is in constant communication with the entomologists of the south and declares there is no doubt of their being the regular Kansas and Oklahoma aphis."

Sales on the call were: Oats, No. 3 July, 5,000 bu at 43¼c; Illinois proportional: Standard, August, 10,000 bu at 39½c Illinois proportional; No. 3 white, August, 10,000 bu at 38¼c Illinois proportional; No. 3 white, September, 10,000 bu at 38¼c Illinois proportional.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, ¼@⅝d lower; Paris, ¼c off to ½c higher; Antwerp, unchanged; Berlin, ½c lower; and Budapest, ⅝c up. The advance in Budapest was due to bad crop reports from Hungary.

Provisions exports for the week were as follows, with comparisons:

	Last week.	Last year.
Pork, brls	1,341	2,000
Lard, lbs	9,221,000	12,452,000
Bacon, boxes	19,821	22,798

Kansas City wired: "The first car new hard wheat here. Tests 61¼ lbs. Field averaged 14 bu per acre. Was estimated at 10 bu before harvest. It came from Dickinson county."

Hoyt, Lake's traveling man, wired from Minneapolis that the prospects for wheat in the Red river valley were not good—too much rain and considerable rust.

An Antwerp cable read: "We look for advancing markets. The Budapest exchange is excited. French stocks are small, and their crop is three weeks late."

Amendment to Banking Law Aims to Reduce Abuses.

Loans to Officers Permitted Only on Vote of Directors.

State Auditor J. S. McCullough has issued with his report of the condition of state banks on May 20 a copy of the amendment to the banking law passed by the last legislature.

It is something which bank stockholders and bank directors will find considerable interest in studying, for it is intended to prevent certain abuses that have characterized the banking business. The fact, too, that the state auditor has been considerate enough to inclose a copy of the amendment with the regular report indicates a desire on his part to promote good banking practice. The following is a pertinent paragraph:

"Any officer, director, or employé of any bank or association organized under the provisions of this act who shall willfully and knowingly subscribe to or make, or cause to be made, any false statement with intent to deceive any person or persons authorized to examine into the affairs of such bank or association, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment of not less than one year nor more than ten years."

This provision, carried out, will mean disaster for men who seek to do what has been done in banks in Chicago in the last year.

Auditor May Withhold Charters.

Another paragraph, which seems to make the auditor responsible for granting a charter, and consequently responsible for the unfitness of those shady characters who organize new banks, is as follows:

"The auditor may, in his discretion, withhold the issuing of the said certificate, authorizing the said commencement of business, when he is not satisfied as to the personal character and standing of the officers or directors elected or appointed in accordance with sections 3 and 4 of this act; or when he has reason to believe that the bank is organized for any purpose other than that contemplated by this act."

Curb on Loans to Officers.

"It shall not be lawful for any bank to loan to its president, or to any of its vice presidents, or its salaried officers or employés, or to any corporation and firms controlled by them or in the management of which any of them are actively engaged, until an application for such loan shall have been first approved, both as to security and amount, by the board of directors."

It is a matter of regret that the Provine bill did not become a state law. It provided that the officers and directors of national banks should not be permitted to become officers and directors of state institutions.

It may be noted in this connection that the report of the state auditor sets forth certain official facts which warrant him in taking special interest in some banking practices in Chicago. It will not be necessary for him to have any special reports, for his own report contains the necessary information. And since the clearing house association as a whole appears to lack the courage to do the necessary housecleaning, the auditor might, in pursuance of his sworn duty, do what the association fails to do.

Sears-Roebuck Earnings.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. report June sales to have been $3,961,915, a decrease of $253,563. Since Jan. 1 the sales have been $25,082,296, an increase of $1,457,100.

It would be interesting to know whether the decrease in June sales might be taken to indicate a general slackening in sales. The company's business extends over many states, and includes a greatly diversified patronage. It is, however, mostly a small town business.

Gold Exports Resumed.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. have engaged $500,-000 gold for shipment to Paris today. Lazard Frères have increased their engagement to $1,250,000. The total engaged for export on this movement is $26,800,000.

GROUND VALUE RISES FAST.

Land Bought for $90,000 Two Years Ago Sells for $150,000.

PROFIT FOR MRS. HEYWORTH

Mrs. Julia F. Heyworth sold to the Jennings estate the ground at 1523 to 1531 Michigan boulevard, for $150,000. The land fronts 100 feet, and has a depth of 198. Mrs. Heyworth has leased the land for 198 years, at an annual rental of $7,500, equivalent to 5 per cent of the purchase price. The land is improved with a three story building, erected two years ago, at a cost of $85,000. It is occupied by the Diamond Rubber company and the Chicago Cold Storage company, on ten and fifteen year leases respectively, at a rental which nets Mrs. Heyworth over and above the ground rental, taxes, and insurance $6,000 annually. Oliver & Co., who also negotiated this deal, sold this land to Mrs. Heyworth two years ago for $90,000.

Frederick H. Bartlett & Co. have sold to William A. Hunter of Warren county, Ind., the Norwood apartments and ground, 51x119, at Indiana avenue and Thirtieth street, for $90,000, subject to $20,000 incumbrance. The building is five stories and contains twenty-one apartments. Mr. Hunter gave $20,000 in cash, a twelve flat building at 568 to 572 East Fiftieth street, and a 308 acre farm in Fountain county, Ind., in payment.

At the real estate board auction rooms the leasehold interest in the building at 248 Monroe street was sold to Elmer H. Adams for $675. The lease extends from Jan. 1, 1908, to Dec. 31, 1915. The action is the result of a decree in partition by Joseph H. Durham against H. G. Halloway & Bro. The building is owned by Oberlin college.

H. O. Stone & Co. have closed a contract whereby Mrs. Mary D. McCrea and Mrs. Mary C. Prindle will construct a three story and basement building to cover the greater part of a lot 60x150 feet, at 20 South Jefferson street, for the McDowell-Stocker company, manufacturers and dealers in machinery, now at 50 South Canal street. The building has been leased for fifteen years. It will be used for a machinery warehouse.

The Calumet Brick company has purchased from Frank and John Popp about thirty-one acres in sections 5 and 6, Thornton township, for $18,783.

Judicial sales of real estate for the first six months of the year were less than any like period during the last seven years. The totals for the first half of the year for seven years of sales made by order of court at the real estate board auction rooms are:

Men's Two-Piece Suits of Blue Serge

To tailor a suit of light weight blue serge so that it will have all the lines possible in suits of heavier materials and retain its shape requires a degree of skill seldom attained in the making of Ready-to-Wear Clothing. Then, too, it is quite often a case of taking the time. The tailoring establishments we have selected to supply our clothing have the talent, and they give to every garment the requisite time and attention to attain the standard of excellence we demand. Second Floor.

Blue serges are the ideal summer suits—practical for business and appropriate for warm summer evenings; single and double breasted, quarter lined with mohair or silk—$18.00 to $25.00.

Men's Bathing Suits: The Best Assortments and the Best Values.

Our Men's fine Worsted Two-piece Bathing Suits are splendid values—so made as to resist unusual wear. They are in the following combinations: Navy with white borders, black with red borders, gray with white, black or red borders—$2.50, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00. First Floor.

Mandel Brothers

Men's $20, $25 and $30 business suits reduced to $15

The class of fabric and shop tailor work in each and every one of these suits places them, in point of value, far ahead of the many $15 sales about town. Any fair judge, at a glance, will recognize that they are strictly high grade.

No suit in the assortment is worth less than $20; most of them are regular $25 and $30 grades

$15 Besides the many different shades and patterns from light to extreme dark, are also plain blue serges, but serges such as you rarely see priced at $15. Fine Clay weave worsted serges that hold their shape and will not cockle or pucker on the edges as many serges do. Sizes from 34 to 44. All at $15. $15

For Quick Clearance

The Reason:

We do not carry over Suits from one season to the next; never have; will not. Our purchases for next season are made; our workshops are hard at work.

We are not going to wait till the last moment to close them out. We have a great, big stock. We have cut up all our summer fabrics into Suits, fresh and clean. They are what we know to be

Advance Ideas

Every Suit in our house, no matter what it is, is on sale. You may want a linen, a silk, a mohair, a tropical worsted or a white serge Suit. It doesn't matter what you are seeking, every Suit in our salesrooms goes at

Half Price

The regular price range on our linens was from $15 to $75. The regular price range on our other Suits for summer began at $30, $32.50, $35, $40, $45, $50 and ran as high in some cases as $150.
